ENTIRE ESTATE OF COOLIDGE IS LEFT TO WIDOW

Will, Found, to Be Filed for Probate January 17; Simple and Brief.

HOLDINGS BELIEVED TO TOTAL $500,000

Instrument Was Drawn Up During Occupation of White House.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge's will, leaving his entire estate to his widow, Grace Goodhue Coolidge, was found today among his papers at his home, the Beeches, Ralph W. Hemmenway, his former law partner, announced.

No estimate of the value of the estate was given by Hemenway, counsel for Mrs. Coolidge. The document, which was found where Mr. Coolidge's "family would expect to find it," will be filed for probate January 17, Hemenway said. Until that time the text will not be revealed.

Hemenway described the will as typical of Mr. Coolidge, "simple and brief." It was drawn up during Mr. Coolidge's occupation of the White House, although the actual date was not disclosed. The witnesses were Edward T. Clark and Everett Sanders, secretaries at the time to Mr. Coolidge, and his stenographer, Erwin C. Geisser. Mrs. Coolidge was named executrix.

Son Provided For.

In telling of the terms of the will, Hemenway said that Mr. Coolidge's only living son, John, had been provided for in a trust fund at the time of his marriage to Florence Trumbull, daughter of former Gov. Trumbull of Connecticut.

Although there was no official estimate of the estate of the former President, who died last Thursday of a heart attack, Northampton neighbors ventured the opinion that it would be at least $500,000. Mr. Coolidge's only publicly known real estate holdings were his home and the old Coolidge homestead at Plymouth, Vt. He was known to have had stock holdings in years past, some of his investments having been in the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Confers With Secretary.

The announcement concerning the will was made from the office of Hemenway after he had conferred with Harry Ross, last secretary to Mr. Coolidge, who has remained at The Beeches assisting Mrs. Coolidge in the disposition of Mr. Coolidge's various undertakings.

John Coolidge and his wife, who came here from New Haven upon the death of Mr. Coolidge, returned today to their home.

Mrs. Coolidge did not venture out today in the inclement weather and

He will be the fifth president of the museum since its establishment in 1869. He has been a trustee of the museum since 1923, when he was elected to succeed his father, Henry P. Davison.

Air Crash

MARIAN EDDY.

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Marian Eddy, stage star and aviatrix; C. N. Henderson, sportsman pilot of Washington, D. C., and M. W. Leaphart, of Wheeling, W. Va., were injured late today when Henderson's plane struck a pine tree on the Miami Biltmore golf course and crashed to the ground.

Examination at a hospital showed Miss Eddy had received a broken nose, probable broken ribs and laceration of the left leg. The men received cuts and bruises.

Golfers who were playing in the neighborhood said the plane had circled about twice in the near darkness at the south edge of the golf course and appeared to be making a long glide toward a landing when

BIG CROWD ATTENDS RITES FOR MISS KIRK

Police Hopes for Solution of Crime Boosted; Will to Be Filed Today.

The "good angel" of St. Marys County, Md., was buried yesterday.

Miss Ida Kirk, who had spent her life and wealth helping others, and who had "not an enemy in the world," was laid to rest in the burying ground at Chaptico, Md.—just two miles from the spot where she was fatally injured by an assassin's bomb last Saturday while en route to Washington on a shopping trip.

The wealthy spinster's will is to be filed for probate at Leonardtown, Md., today, and from it investigators hope for a clew toward solving the crime.

St. Marys County turned out in great numbers to attend the last rites. White and colored Southern Maryland aristocracy, county officials and relatives from Washington formed the crowd which overflowed Christ Episcopal Church and its yard.

They attended brief ceremonies at Sunnyland—Miss Kirk's estate—filled the church and grouped around the grave with bared heads, as the murdered woman's shattered body was lowered beside those of her parents.

Following the burial they stood around the church in groups and talked quietly of "Miss Ida"—as she affectionately was known throughout

Mad Professor Beheads Himself Beneath Train

Napa, Calif., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Roger Sprague, former university professor, who in 1919 shot and wounded two college officials, laid his head on the tracks of the Napa Electric Railway today and was decapitated. Dozens of passengers saw Sprague time his movements so Engineer W. J. Corbett would not have time to stop the train.

Railway officials removed the body and notified the Napa State Hospital, where Sprague had been a patient thirteen years, having been declared insane after the shootings. Only recently physicians after an examination had granted him the right to stroll through the grounds unwatched.

8 Police Added to Bar Speeding on Boulevard

Throwing an extra force of eight men into the war on speeders on the Baltimore boulevard, Maryland State police yesterday made plans for a 24-hour offensive against violators of the 40-mile limit.

The eight new men, brought here from all over the State, will supplement the regular force of men detailed to the substation at Laurel. The new men will work on 12-hour shifts, to keep a constant lookout for speeders between Washington and Baltimore.

SENATE REPEAL BILL LIKELY TO PERISH IN HOUSE

WET VOTE FORECAST EARLY NEXT SESSION

Move of Former Stronghold of Drys Is Hailed as G. O. P. Victory.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The "unreconstructed" Senate judiciary committee, more or less impregnable behind the six-year terms of its members, yesterday reported a so-called prohibition amendment repeal resolution which hasn't a chance of getting through Congress.

The so-called repeal resolution reported by the committee with the recommendation that the Senate adopt it, was so much closer to the Republican platform declaration than to the unequivocal Democratic platform that the resolution was hailed as another Republican parliamentary victory.

How much chance the committee's so-called prohibition repeal resolution is thought to have is indicated by private conversations of Democratic leaders in the House, as well as by their public declarations. Privately House leaders yesterday were discussing the line of procedure they should follow to bring about passage of a prohibition repeal resolution by the next Congress.

Prospect of Passage.

Prospect of passage of a satisfactory repeal resolution at this closing lame duck session of the Seventy-second Congress, was regarded as not worth counting on, in view of the attitude of both Democrats and Republicans in the Senate. The discussion went so far among House leaders that it was decided to bring about a repeal vote, conforming to the declarations of the party platform, on the first suspension day in the expected extra session of the next Congress. And, it was agreed, the repeal declaration should be as forthright as that which Speaker Garner forced the present House to vote upon the first day it convened in the present session.

Disapproval of the Senate judiciary committee hybrid repeal measure was expressed emphatically today by Speaker Garner in discussions with newspaper reporters.

Mr. Garner ran for election as Vice President on the Democratic platform and apparently is taking his party's platform more seriously than is any one else in Congress in a similar strategic position. The platform must be adhered to, Mr. Garner says, and those who argue with him are confronted with the platform.

Sheriff Asks Sale Be Declared Void

Pennsylvanian Tells Court He Was Threatened With Bodily Harm.

Doylestown, Pa., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Judge Hiram H. Keller, of the Bucks County Court, was asked today by Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner to declare void a sheriff's sale where the highest bid for a farm was a few pennies and where horses and cows brought the top prices—5 cents each.

Gwinner made the request as he filed his official report on the sale last week which netted a total of $1.18 for the farm, home, personal effects and all the live stock of John Hanzel, in Bedminster Township. The sheriff declared he was threatened by members of the Farmers Protective Association, who, he said, crowded around the auctioneer and prevented bids of more than a few cents being offered.

At the conclusion of the sale, members of the farmers' group who had made the successful bids gave all the purchases back to Hanzel, a widower with three small children.

"I was threatened with bodily harm," Gwinner said, "called vile names and jostled by the crowd, which was sympathetic with Hanzel."

Spanish Riots Persist; Death Toll Put at 30

Communists Seize City Hall at Ripolles and Raise Red Flag, but They Are Routed Later by Civil Guard Forces.

Madrid, Tuesday, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Sporadic outbreaks through a troubled night added casualties to the mounting death lists in the Extremist uprising in many sections of the country as the authorities early today sought to quell anarchistic unrest.

The total dead remained in the neighborhood of 30, it was believed, although at 1:15 a. m. Undersecretary of the Interior Carlos Espla told newspapermen the announcement that 13 had been killed at the Village of Pedralba was incorrect.

"The report was due to first official reports to the Governor of Valencia," Espla explained. "None was killed at Pedralba."

He admitted violence in widely separate areas, however, and police reports of recurrent riots in Valencia and elsewhere kept the country disturbed.

Five men at Grao shot down a policeman as he left his home, a dispatch from Valencia reported. Three bombs exploded in three different places. Slight damage was done, the report said. Other bombs were found in the police roundup.

At Malaga, six men seriously wounded a civil guard, Antonio Surera, on a vacation there. They fired when he passed near the Syndicalist headquarters.

Barcelona remained uneasy. Police were fired upon during the night at two different crossings as they patroled the city where the Extremist uprisings began over the week-end. Isolated shots were heard during the night. At least nine were killed in that city alone.

The reports that 13 were killed in Pedralba arose when authorities in Madrid gave out the report as coming from the Governor of Valencia. It was subsequently revealed that three policemen were killed at Bugarra after retreating from Pedralba, where only two civil guard were wounded, according to latest dispatches. Eleven civilians were arrested.

A bootblack was killed at Cadiz when Extremists stoned street cars. The civil guards there sent the 3,000 Extremists and their sympathizers scurrying through the thoroughfares and the uprising was over in a few minutes.

Anarchists seized the Town Hall at the village of Tabernes de Valdigna, in Valencia, also, and stubbornly fought the guards. The insurgents cut telephone lines connecting the

ROOSEVELT IN LONG TALK WITH STIMSON

"It Was Delightful," They Compliment Each Other, Divulging Little.

The informal conversation with President Hoover's Secretary of State begun over the luncheon table at the Roosevelt estate near Hyde Park, was continued through the 75-mile drive in a heavy snowstorm by automobile to the East Sixty-fifth street home of the President-elect here tonight. Beyond telling newspapermen who were received in the dining room of the Hyde Park home that "everything in relation to foreign affairs" was discussed, Mr. Roosevelt would go into no details.

His request to have Mr. Stimson here at this time has led to speculation that the President-elect is con-

McAdoo Stops at Dallas On Capital Air Flight

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—William Gibbs McAdoo, United States senator-elect of California, rested in Dallas tonight, breaking an airplane trip from Los Angeles to Washington and New York, where he plans to confer with President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt and other Democratic party leaders.

The plane landed at Love Field after an 8-hour-and-10-minute flight from the coast. Weary from the journey, his party dined in their hotel rooms and retired early. They planned to leave at dawn tomorrow for Washington.

AIR MECHANIC DARES DEATH TO FIX PLANE

Anacostian Hangs From Craft at 6,000 Feet; "Crash Landing" Saves Two.

Scott Field, Ill., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—C. W. Bailey, noncommissioned mechanic, hung by one hand from the undercarriage of an Army airplane 6,000 feet in the air today and fought desperately to dislodge the retractable landing gear, which had stuck.

Below the slowly encircling plane, 5,000 Army men and civilians watched breathlessly as the mechanic defied death in an effort to make a normal landing possible.

Pirie and Bailey were en route from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, D. C., to San Diego, Calif. Shortly after they left here for Muskogee, Okla., their next scheduled stop, they discovered the landing gear had jammed.

Pirie returned to the field and circled about as Bailey climbed down to the wheels and tried to repair the

Pinchot Certifies Davis Returns Before March 4

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The certificate for the reelection of Senator James J. Davis will be sent to Washington by Gov. Pinchot before March 4. "I will certify the returns for Davis' election when they get to me and of course, before March 4," the governor said today.

He declined to say whether he will postpone issuance of the certificate until after Davis' trial next month, on charges of violating the Federal lottery laws. Some time ago the governor said he would attach some reservation to Davis' certificate, questioning his qualification for office.

Britain Perils World Peace, Says Patel, Urging Downfall

Branding Great Britain as the greatest menace in existence to world peace, President V. J. Patel, of the Indian Legislative Assembly, said last night in an address at the Playhouse, that all peace-loving people should work toward the downfall of England.

The right-hand man and first lieutenant of Mahatma Gandhi, who has been exiled from his native land by the British government, told his audience, made up of representatives of many nations, including his own, that Great Britain's promises to India for freedom are as hypocritical as her avowed interest in disarmament.

The representatives of India at the round table conferences in London, he said, are mere pawns picked by the British government. England will never give up India ntil she is compelled to, because with the surrender of this great Eastern country, there can be no British Empire, he asserted.

President Patel accused England of bleeding India of all her wealth and then charging that India owes her a debt. He declared that if the facts were placed before an impartial tribunal the verdict would be in favor of India.

To support his charge that England's expressed interest in disarmament is hypocritical, the ostracized Indian observed that if Great Britain did disarm she no longer could control India—an extreme she would never permit. He blamed the British government and not the people of England for "persecution" of India.

Suffering from influenza, President Patel went to the meeting place from the Mayflower Hotel against the protest of physicians. His voice failed at times during the speech and he was forced to pause at intervals because of coughing.

A man whose face is almost wholly covered by gray beard, the Indian was attired entirely in black, including a black cap very much in the style of the overseas cap of an American soldier during the World War. He wore a black ministerial

SENATE GROUP BACKS FURTHER U. S. PAY SLASH

Davis Makes Unexpected Appeal to Reconsider Recommendation.

ODDIE PLEDGES FIGHT ON FLOOR TOMORROW

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A last effort to stop in committee the threatened 1 2-3 per cent additional Federal pay cut failed yesterday, when the $961,000,000 Treasury-Postoffice supply bill carrying the economy rider and wage slash was sent to the Senate, over minority opposition.

A floor fight to defeat the cut when it comes to the front tomorrow or the next day was promised immediately by Senator Tasker L. Oddie (Republican), Nevada, chairman of the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations subcommittee. A number of senators will speak against the measure.

The motion to reconsider the pay cut recommendation in the economy rider was made unexpectedly yesterday by Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, at a meeting of the full Senate appropriations committee. It was badly defeated, viva voce, although Senator Oddie and others supported it.

Group Led By Bingham.

Arrayed on the floor against the thin line of senators who feel an additional pay cut at this time would operate against economic recovery, will be a unanimous bipartisan Senate economy committee of six members, led by Chairman Hiram Bingham. This group was reversed last year by the Senate, and may be again.

Senators already committed in opposition to the slash include Senators William E. Borah (Republican) Idaho; Lynn Frasier (Republican), North Dakota; Edward P. Costigan (Democrat), Colorado; Arthur Robinson (Republican), Indiana, and M. M. Logan (Democrat), Kentucky.

These may be reinforced by Senators La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin; Johnson (Republican), California; Blaine (Republican), Wisconsinsin, and Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

Changes Are Ordered.

The Senate appropriations committee yesterday ordered a number of changes in the House draft of the Treasury-Postoffice bill. For maintenance of assay offices in four Western cities $25,000 was added. Some minor changes were made in the phrasing of the economy provisions.

The committee threw out a House provision that none of the funds should go toward the ocean mail contract of the Seatrain Co., of New

Rescued Seaman Sent to America

Man, 22, Taken From Ocean After 48 Hours Tears Up His Papers.

Rome, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Abraham Epstein, 22, a sailor from Philadelphia, who was picked up 60 miles south of Gibraltar by the steamer Tosari and told a story of being in the water 48 hours after jumping from another ship because of bad treatment, wept today and tore up his birth and seaman's certificates when taken aboard the steamer Chester Valley for return to the United States.

He declared that it would be his last sea trip. Epstein had fastened provisions for several days and a bottle of water to his life belt before he jumped into the water. Inasmuch as he lacked papers entitling him to entry into Italy he had been held in jail since he arrived on the Tosari Saturday, pending the arrival of the Chester Valley today. The latter ship will take him to New Orleans.

The captain of the Chester Valley recovered the torn documents, which Epstein threw on the deck, and said that he would keep them until arrival in the United States.

Issue of Treasury Bills Largely Oversubscribed

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mills announced last night that applications totaling $229,845,000 had been received for the tender of $75,000,000 of 91-day Treasury bills dated January 11.

The highest bid was 99.987, equivalent to an annual interest rate of about 0.05 per cent. The lowest bid accepted was 99.939.

DUNCAN RENALDO.

Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Duncan Renaldo, film actor, convicted of falsifying a passport, was sentenced to four years in Federal prison and fined $2,000 today by Federal Judge George Cosgrave.

Terms of the sentence provided that Renaldo would have to serve but two years. He was sentenced to two years on a charge of making a false statement on a passport application that he was a citizen of the United States and to an additional two years for perjury in swearing to the statement, but the court ruled that the two sentences would run concurrently.

Harry Baiter, assistant United States attorney, said Renaldo might escape the prison term through deportation proceedings which the Government planned to start immediately.

SENATE DEMOCRATS DELAY ALL TAX BILLS

Agree With House to Await Program After March 4; Economy Is Goal.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Sustaining their party leaders in the House in the decision to postpone revenue legislation until after March 4 Democratic members of the Senate finance committee publicly announced their agreement yesterday to delay all tax measures until the Democratic economy program is enacted.

This decision signalizes the abandonment of all new tax measures in the present session, for it was acknowledged at the same time by members of the House ways and means committee that even if the committee took up a general revenue bill this week there would not be time to complete it before March 4.

These developments confirmed Treasury officials in their understanding that all prospects for budget-balancing taxes in the short session had been abandoned in the House last week.

Shortly before the Democratic members of the Senate finance committee announced their new policy yesterday, Chairman Collier of the House ways and means committee said he had given up his plan for tax hearings this week and now expected there would be no further consideration of the matter until "we know exactly how much can be saved by reducing expenditures."

In announcing the results of the informal caucus of Senate Democrats, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, also acknowledged his own abandonment, for the time being, of the higher income taxes approved by the party conference at the New York home of President-elect Roosevelt last Thursday. This plan was abandoned by Speaker Garner and Representative

Athens Statesman Quits Finance Post

Decision to Pay Foreign Debts, Instead of Tax Cut, Responsible.

Athens, Greece, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—M. Angelopoulos, minister of finance in the Tsaldaris cabinet, resigned today because he opposed insertion in the budget of the equivalent of $2,631,000 for payment to foreign creditors, instead of the abolition of certain taxes.

M. Angelopoulos submitted his resignation once before, on December 15, when the cabinet decided to pay 30 per cent of the debt due to foreign bondholders under the Varvaressos agreement. Today's report indicated he had withdrawn his previous resignation.

SENATOR BORAH AND JOHNSON IN HEATED DEBATE

IS ONE OF SHARPEST DISPUTES IN HISTORY

Idahoan Reiterates Belief France Was Led to Feel Hope of Revision.

(Associated Press.)

Borah, of Idaho, and Johnson, of California, doughty debaters and foes of many years, had it out in a shouted Senate dispute yesterday after the latter had accused the Idahoan of withholding vital information on war debts from the Senate.

It began with Borah reiterating—in the face of a denial from Secretaries Stimson and Mills—his assertion that the administration had given France reason to believe America would grant a revision of the debts if German reparations were readjusted.

One of the sharpest exchanges in Senate history followed. Forgetting the formality which requires that remarks be addressed to the chair, the two stood facing each other. Senators hurried into the chamber as word spread that the two veterans were clashing as they never had clashed before.

Takes Borah to Task.

The stocky Californian took Borah to task for not giving the Senate his information when the moratorium was pending.

Borah answered that he assumed Johnson "kept himself informed," but that hereafter he would "start a kindergarten."

"All right," Johnson shot back. "I trust the senator will."

"He will have the Senator from California for the first student," Borah returned.

"He will have a kindergarten which the Senator from Idaho has not observed in this discussion," said Johnson. "It will be a kindergarten of disclosure and of good faith."

Borah's speech was prompted by the letters from Stimson and Mills in which they denied any cancellation or revision commitments were made at the 1931 Hoover-Laval conference here.

Not Defending Default.

The Idahoan said he had very little difference with the communications from the Cabinet officers on the question of facts. He added, however, "there was some understanding (at

Typhoid Wave Is Traced To Boy's Swim in River

Chamberlain, S. Dak., Jan. 9 (A.P.). The bathing of an Indian boy in the city water supply was held partly responsible by the authorities today for a typhoid fever outbreak which totaled 150 cases, with 3 deaths since the outbreak of the epidemic a week ago. One-seventh of the city's population has contracted the disease.

A physician said the Indian boy's swimming in the Missouri River near the inlet of the city water system and a temporary difficulty with the chlorinator at the water plant were responsible for the outbreak.

WAGNER ASKS R.F.C. HELP FOR DESTITUTE

(Associated Press.)

Quicker and greater relief for the destitute by loosening restrictions under which the Reconstruction Corporation is operating was proposed yesterday by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, after officials of the corporation had entered a vigorous defense of their much-criticized activity.

Seven points composed the senator's plan, including one that the organization's entire Treasury balance be opened for loans to the destitute.

Shortly before Wagner stepped forward with his bill, C. A. Miller, a banker and president of the corporation, had paused in the midst of a defense of loan policies before a Senate committee to suggest that industry resume normal production with the Government underwriting any losses that might be sustained.

Miller described the plan, which he said was advanced by Fred I. Kent, a director of the Bankers Trust Co., New York, as one that "comes nearest to solution" of present economic conditions.

Denies Red Tape Delay.

The corporation's president, with Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the board, told the Senate manufactures subcommittee that "red tape" is not barring loans from the needy, but that distribution of money is going forward on a business rather than a sentimental basis.

The heads of the huge corporation were called as hearings on the La Follette-Costigan bill to raise $500,000,000 by a Federal bond issue and redistribute it in outright grants to the States moved toward a conclusion.

Miller said distribution of funds has been "on a business basis that has behind it a very warm-hearted desire to help."

"When a human being is in distress," Pomerene asserted, "I'm not for asking the why or wherefore."

In the course of his testimony Pomerene said Chicago and Illinois officials in asking a relief loan before elections had said increased State funds could not be expected until afterward, because downstate legislators did not want to impose additional burdens on taxpayers at that time.

Chicago Relief Leads.

Fred C. Croxton, the corporation's assistant in charge of relief, said an average of $35 a month is spent on each needy family in Chicago, the highest figure of any city in the country.

Only $300,000,000 of the corporation's funds were made available for relief loans, with nearly half of this gone, but Senator Wagner's bill would limit the amounts only to the size of the corporation's balance on hand.

Other changes in the act suggested by the New York senator would "simplify" a section of the law under which States seeking aid are compelled to "take virtually a 'paupers' oath.'" And would permit State, municipal and other public corporations to borrow construction funds for use on needed public works, without the requirement that they be "self-liquidating."

Northeast Boys Club Equipment Race Close

Two teams of the Northeast Boys Club, 1663 Kramer street northeast, are waging a heated battle to determine supremacy in a contest to secure a new wrestling mat and boxing ring.

The youngsters are out every day after school selling old papers and magazines, running errands and doing other odd jobs, in an effort to obtain money for the equipment. The team securing the greatest sum toward purchase of the mat and ring will be rewarded by an outdoor "weenie roast."

SENATE DEMOCRATS DELAY ALL TAX BILLS

Rainey in the House on Friday of last week.

Questioned as to what tax scheme would have the right of way with the Senate Democrats when the economy measure is passed, Mr. Harrison said it still was undetermined whether they would favor higher income levies or lowered exemptions to balance the budget.

New York Conference.

While thus holding the New York conference plan in reserve, along with Speaker Garner's 49 ways of raising new revenues, Democratic leaders on both sides of Capitol Hill now are in substantial agreement on fiscal policy. Reduced to a few words, this new policy is to wait until it can be known definitely how much money is to be appropriated for the fiscal year 1934 and then turn to tax legislation for the remainder of the session until March 4.

Since final action on the economy and appropriation bills can not be realized until well along in February, this plan would leave anywhere from ten days to three weeks for the consideration of whatever revenue bills are to be enacted.

In summarizing the budget problem as it appeared to him yesterday, Chairman Collier said that in the final analysis there is really no serious problem before the Congress. By assuming that all the reductions recommended in the budget message are to be realized, that further economies of $100,000,000 are to be affected in the House and Senate, that the gasoline tax will be extended and that the beer bill will become law and yield $125,000,000 the first year—by assuming all these things, Mr. Collier explained, there remains a 1934 deficit of only $130,000,000, plus the item of $328,000,000 due during the year from foreign governments on the war debts.

Collier Is Confident.

"That $130,000,000 doesn't terrify me at all," Mr. Collier said cheerily. "The agreement at the New York conference was to try to effect that saving through economies. If that fails we were to resort to additional income taxes. Of course, I can think of a lot of easier ways of raising $130,000,000, but I will abide by the conference. But raising that amount doesn't scare me a bit."

"Then you are going to raise at least $130,000,000 in new taxes?" a newspaperman asked.

"I didn't say that," Mr Collier replied testily.

"Oh," said the newspaperman.

Survey Would Be First Step, After Which U. S. Would Give Banks Authority to Finance Industry, With Guarantee Against Loss.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The Fred I. Kent plan for economic recovery, described in Washington by C. A. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Corporation, today as one that "comes nearest to solution" of present conditions, calls for resumption of industrial operations on the scale prevailing in 1927.

Any losses that might be sustained by industry in stepping up production to 1927 levels would be met by the Federal Government.

The plan, as outlined in a report of the Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers Association, of which Kent was chairman, would be prosecuted through the Reconstruction Corporation, with banks throughout the country acting as agents.

The individual banks would canvass their industrial clients for information as to how much money they would need to resume operation on a 1927 scale, as to how many workers would be reemployed if they did so, how much more raw material would be purchased, and finally the character and quantity of the increased production.

This information would be coordinated, through the Federal Reserve Banks, by the Reconstruction Corporation. Armed with the data, which would give it a composite picture of industrial conditions throughout the country, the corporation then would decide whether to proceed with the plan.

If it were deemed advisable to do so, and if authority were obtained from Congress, the corporation would proceed to direct the banks to make loans to their industrial clients, with a guarantee against loss "for such proportion of the loan as was not covered by the sale of the increased production."

"Each loan made would carry an agreement on the part of the borrower," the report said, "to employ a certain specified number of additional men, to buy raw materials necessary to produce its regular products and to pay the loan at maturity, provided such products were sold at prices sufficient to cover the cost. Further, that in lieu of the insurance to the industry, carried in the guarantee of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the borrower would pay the corporation 50 per cent of any profits that his company might make through the sale of the production."

The plan, described as having been approved by 83 1-3 per cent of the hundreds of industrialists who examined it, was presented "as one that should not be carried out unless the only alternative should be the dole." Its purpose, however, the report said, was to reestablish industry in a way that would result in "the least possible cost to Government and leave no scar of legislation after its need was over."

MUNITION MEN HIT STIMSON ARMS BAN

Move to Strengthen Cause of Peace Also Opposed by Hurley.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Secretary of State Stimson's plan to strengthen the Kellogg pact by keeping American arms from warring nations yesterday had aroused the opposition of both munitions makers and the War Department.

The State Department's draft of a congressional resolution empowering the President to put an embargo on shipments of U. S. arms to warring countries has lain in the White House for more than three weeks. Authoritative sources said the resolution either will be modified by Mr. Hoover before it goes to Congress or that it will be buried entirely.

Stimson, these sources say, has urged Mr. Hoover to submit the resolution in its original form. Secretary of War Hurley has opposed the plan.

Fish Scores Arms Men.

Meanwhile, Representative Hamilton Fish, New York, author of another resolution to regulate arms shipments, yesterday issued a statement attacking the munitions interests.

He said:

"The limitation of profits from arms and munitions to foreign countries is a step forward in the cause of peace. It will help put an end to the vicious programs of profiteers of hate, hired by munitions and arms trusts in the United States and foreign nations, to sow seeds of discord at international conferences, called for the purpose of peace and limitation of armament."

The State Department embargo plan was drafted by Stimson and his assistants. They intended to use it to keep U. S. munitions from Bolivia and Paraguay, now at war in the Chaco territory. Recently Bolivian troops appeared on the field clad in U. S. Army uniforms.

Held at White House.

Stimson presented the resolution to Mr. Hoover several weeks ago to be forwarded to Congress for approval. At the time, the State Department understood that it would go to Capitol Hill immediately.

However, the draft struck an obstacle at the White House and has been there ever since.

Meanwhile, the arms manufacturers took their plea to the War Department. Secretary Hurley showed those protests to Mr. Hoover.

The War Department itself also objected to the original draft resolution, holding it unfair to bar American arms firms from markets of warring nations when these markets still remained open to foreign munitions companies.

GRAYSON AND AIDS TO CONFER TODAY

First Meeting of Inaugural Committee to Be at 11 This Morning.

With the inauguration of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt less than two months away, plans for the ceremony will be discussed by the inaugural committee at its first meeting scheduled for 11 a. m. today in the Washington Building.

Following a conference with Mr. Roosevelt at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the general inaugural committee, returned here yesterday with the announcement that Mr. Roosevelt is heartily in accord with arrangements made thus far.

Admiral Grayson, since his appointment as inaugural chairman, has conducted an exhaustive study of inaugurals, and indicated that the President-elect showed great interest in the program for his first day in Washington.

Although Mr. Roosevelt has expressed a wish for quiet and simple ceremonies, Admiral Grayson declared that private citizens in many sections are taking it upon themselves to contribute traditional color.

Old friends and neighbors of the President-elect in Hyde Park, N. Y., plan to come here by special train for the occasion and other delegations throughout the country have indicated their intentions of taking part.

No matter what the weather on March 4, spectators from the Capitol to White House will be assured of protection and unmarred view of the proceedings, the committee announced yesterday.

Stands and seats to be erected along Pennsylvania avenue will be covered over as a protection against any change in the weather. The first-row seats will be elevated to such a height as to assure a clear view over the heads of those standing in the street.

Lieut. Byrnes Entitled To Retired Pay, Ruling

Lieut. William Armstrong Byrnes, Medical Corps, U. S. N, retired, may receive both his Government civilian pay and retired military allowance, it was ruled yesterday by Comptroller General McCarl.

In interpreting the economy act, McCarl ruled that Lieut. Byrnes was entitled to $3,800 as a doctor for the Veterans' Administration and his retired military pay of $137.50 a month. Lieut. Byrnes was gassed and wounded by gunfire during the World War, thus coming under the economy act provision as a United States officer retired for disability incurred "in combat with an enemy of the United States."

gear. Pirie radioed Commandant John Paegelow at the field what was happening. Paegelow advised both men to abandon the plane and drop to safety with parachutes.

"We can't do that," Pirie radioed back. "We'll make a try at landing as soon as our gasoline is exhausted."

While Pirie circled, exhausting the gasoline supply so that the ship would not catch fire if he crashed, Bailey fought desperately in an effort to lower the wheels. He succeeded in getting them down about 3 inches, but had to climb back into the plane when Pirie signaled him that the gasoline was gone and that they must land.

They had been circling the field for three hours when Pirie started down. Men and women in the crowd watched breathlessly. Several women screamed as the plane struck the earth, skidded 50 feet and turned over on its nose.

Clanging ambulances and fire trucks raced onto the field. As they reached the wreckage Pirie and Bailey climbed out, cool and uninjured.

ANGELS OF ECONOMY LEAGUE TO BE BARED

Robinson Gets Promise List Will Be Made Public; $15,000 Paid Curran.

(Associated Press.)

Out of a wrangling argument between Senator Robinson, of Indiana, and Henry H. Curran, director of the National Economy League, the joint congressional committee on veterans' legislation yesterday won a promise that names of all contributors of $25 or more to the organization would be submitted to it.

Curran agreed to submit this, but said the American Legion and other organizations on the opposite side of the veterans' question from his own also should be required to make public their financial support.

The Economy League director had been summoned at the request of Robinson, consistent critic of the league and opponent of many of the $450,000,000 worth of reductions in veterans' outlays it is advocating.

The Indiana senator began by expressing the opinion that the league should report its receipts and expenditures under the corrupt practices law, and Curran retorted with a declaration that he had no inte tion of doing so.

He asserted the league was not a lobbying group.

"Your purpose is to influence legislation," Robinson observed.

"Our purpose is to get the facts before the people—and I believe they will influence legislation," Curran replied.

Byrd Paid No Salary.

Robinson said "the whole movement (of the league) is an effort to relieve the big income taxpayers."

"That's not true and you know it is not true," Curran answered. "You just want to get back in the papers again."

Their exchange at one point led Chairman McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, to insist on order.

Curran told Robinson that Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, chairman of the league, who has been criticized on the Senate floor by Robinson, received no salary from the organization, and last year was paid $900 for expenses on speaking tours.

He estimated the league received $200,000 last year, of which $35,100 was provided by 17 contributors. The largest he said, was a $6,000 donation from E. Roland Harriman. Others for $5,000 each, came from Edward F. Harkness, George W. Naumburg and John D. Rockefeller, jr.

Curran Draws $15,000.

The late Calvin Coolidge, Curran said, was a member of the advisory council at the time of his death, and other members were Elihu Root, jr., Newton D. Baker, Alfred E. Smith, Gen. John J. Pershing and Admiral William S. Sims.

Asked by Robinson if any of the Du Pont family were contributors, Curran replied not that he knew of. The senator reminded him "they were heavy contributors" to the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, of which Curran was an official until recently.

Curran said "I don't see that that has anything to do with this."

"My salary is about 40 per cent less than it used to be and yours is only 10 per cent less."

Robinson objected, and McDuffie, asking for a direct answer, elicited that Curran receives $15,000 yearly from the league.

leader, who is destined to be Speaker of the next House, was as emphatic, if not more so, in his disapproval of the Senate so-called repeal resolution.

Antiprohibitionists, however, found solace in the action of the dry Senate Judiciary Committee which has for years been one of the strongholds of the Antisaloon League and undoubtedly has been one of the last groups in Congress to hear about the changed sentiment of the country.

Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, one of the outstanding wets among the Republicans who was swept out of office in the last election, presented the report of the committee. He didn't make any comment about the report or the resolution the committee had given birth to after much labor and travail. Previously he had told newspaper reporters that he didn't expect to get out of the committee any resolution which would be acceptable to antiprohibitionists.

Text of Resolution.

Jouett Shouse, erstwhile chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee and at present president of the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, confirmed the prediction of Senator Blaine. The committee's substitute was so bad, Mr. Shouse said, that it were "infinitely" better that the present amendment should continue in effect.

Text of the resolution reported by the committee follows:

"Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein) that the following amendment is hereby proposed to the Constitution of the United States, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States.

Article XX.

"The eighteenth article of amendment of the Constitution of the United States is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. The eighteenth amendment to the Constitution is hereby repealed.

"Section 2. The transportation or importation into any State, territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

"Second 3. Congress shall have concurrent power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises where sold."

Reich Move

Germany Expected to Send Military Attache Here, First Since War.

Berlin, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The appointment of Maj. Gen. Friedrich von Boettischer as the first German military attache to the United States since the World War may be expected shortly, it was learned today.

The appointment will be one of the first to be made soon, as part of a new policy to appoint military attaches to Germany's embassies and legations all over the world. The move was regarded as highly significant, inasmuch as Germany has had no such attaches since the end of the war.

Gen. von Boettischer at present is commander of the military academy at Jueterbog. He was expected to proceed to Washington the latter part of next month. Reports in Berlin said the Department of State had agreed to the appointment as acceptable.

The new military attache is widely known on the continent, and is the author of several books, including one on Frederick the Great.

The action created a stir in political and diplomatic quarters in Berlin. Although the treaty of Versailles does not forbid the appointment by Germany of military attaches, the governments have refrained from appointing them, primarily as a passive protest against the treaty's limitations on the German army.

It was understood that seven attaches would be appointed shortly, including one to Paris.

2 NEW NOMINATIONS SHELVED BY SENATE

(Associated Press.)

A fresh pair of Presidential appointments, submitted in disregard of the Democratic ban upon any further Hoover nominees, were tucked away last night in a Senate committee pigeonhole, virtually sure to remain there.

President Hoover, sticking to his expressed determination of continuing to appoint men to fill vacancies regardless of the Senate edict, named Representative Samuel S. Arentz, of Nevada, to the Federal Power Commission, and renominated Wayland W. Magee to the Federal Reserve Board.

Arentz, a Republican defeated last November, recently went to the White House and announced he was asking for the power post.

Only Appointment Confirmed.

So far the only appointment confirmed this session has been that of Roy D. Chapin, as Secretary of Commerce, exempted from the ban because all Cabinet terms expire with the President's.

Arentz, who had served continuously for four terms as representative at large from Nevada, would fill out the unexpired term of the late Ralph B. Williamson, vice chairman of the power commission. This term runs until next June 22.

The present term of Magee, who represents agriculture on the Reserve Board, does not expire until January 25. He has served on the board since May, 1931, filling the unexpired term of Edward Cunningham. His home is outside of Bennington, Nebr., near Omaha.

Repercussion From Policy.

The Democratic ban on Hoover selections has extended even to members of that party. It has been so strongly enforced that difficulty has been found in selecting men willing to face the slim prospect of Senate approval.

One repercussion from this policy was the decision of former Representative Charles A. Crisp, of Georgia, a Democrats, to retire from the Tariff Commission after accepting an appointment to it. He took a private position instead.

Arentz was an exception. When he called at the White House several weeks ago to make known to Mr. Hoover his desire for the Power Commission post, he told newspapermen he had presented several recommendations from Nevada citizens.

CONGRESS ABSORBED BY CROP PROBLEMS

$103,000,000 R. F. C. Loan Occupies House; Senate Studies Price Fixing.

(Associated Press.)

Methods of helping the farmer grow, and profit from, his 1933 crops absorbed the attention of Democratic House leaders last night, while the Senate studied a variation of the emergency relief bill introduced by the assistant Republican leader, McNary of Oregon.

Successful in placing high upon the legislative program of the House, a measure to set aside $103,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds for production loans on this year's crops, chairman Jones of the Agriculture Committee concentrated upon plans for bringing the emergency bill to a vote by Thursday.

Consideration of a host of amendments is to begin today. The crops loan measure is to be taken up as soon as the allotment bill is disposed of.

McNary's measure would flatly fix prices to be paid farmers on their share of domestic consumption of all farm commodities. This price would equal the world price plus the tariff with cotton duties at 10 cents a pound.

"Largest Wheat Grower."

McNary said he had put the bill in at the request of Thomas Campbell, "the world's largest wheat grower," and declined to give his views either toward it or toward the House allotment bill. The latter measure, sponsored by Jones, would seek to guarantee producers of wheat, cotton, tobacco and hogs a fixed price by taxing the processing and paying farmers a bounty over actual market prices on that part of their production which is consumed within the country. The committee has authorized an amendment to include rice as a fifth commodity.

Also introduced in the Senate were bills to alleviate farm mortgage troubles. Senator Hull (Democrat), of Tennessee, proposed authorizing the Reconstruction Corporation to lend $1,000,000,000 to farm mortgagors to obtain lower rates of interest and sought to obtain postponement of foreclosures for two years.

Pork Tax Is Opposed.

Jones said he was willing to accept changes in the House bill proposed by Republican progressives to protect the farmers' bonus certificates from attachment by his creditors and to prevent the pyramiding of the processing tax on the consumer.

Beam, of Illinois, one of two Democrats who cast "no" votes in committee, said he would speak against this provision today and at the proper time offer an amendment for its elimination.

"Pork is the poor man's food," Meam said, "and this puts a tax on it. The testimony shows conclusively, I believe, that this bill will not work on hogs."

Andresen was of the same opinion.

P.-T. A. President Is Guest of Club

Mrs. Bradford Is Among Speakers on Vocation in Schools.

Mrs. Hugh Bradford, of Sacramento, Calif., president of the National Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations, who came here by plane to attend the Conference on Education, was a guest of honor at a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Willard Hotel last night.

Others who addressed the meeting were Miss Mary Stewart, chairman of the national education committee of the club, who presented plans for a city-wide program of vocational guidance; Miss Helen Samuels, of the Gordon Junior High School, and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle.

The group discussed the need of arranging school programs in accordance with the demands of business and the professions. This, Miss Stewart pointed out, could be attained through the institution of vocational guidance course in primary schools and high schools.

ROOSEVELT FAVORS BILL, GLASS CLAIMS

(Associated Press.)

Disputing factions neared a compromise on the controversial branch banking provisions of the Glass bank reform bill last night after President-elect Roosevelt had been represented to the Senate yesterday as favoring the measure.

Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrat and sponsor of the bill, told the Senate he felt "authorized to say that President-elect Roosevelt wants this bill passed."

His statement was made after efforts had been begun to reach an agreement whereby the branch banking clause of the bill would apply only to those States whose laws permit such practices.

Metcalf Fights Clause.

As this hurdle in the bill's path was lowered another rose to take its place, however, in formal notice of a fight against the measure's requirement that national banks and their security affiliates must be divorced within three years.

Senator Metcalf, Rhode Island Republican, announced that he would move to eliminate this provision, which sponsors of the bill insist is all-important.

Metcalf characterized the bill as "sweeping" and "drastic" in its effect, and said he would offer several amendments to strike out what he considered "dangerous innovations."

Glass Takes Floor.

As the Senate resumed debate on the bank bill, Glass took the floor and denied that Roosevelt was unfriendly to the measure. He was referring to statements by Senator Long, Louisiana Democrat, that Roosevelt would oppose the bill.

Senator Vandenberg told the Senate branch banking is now "absolutely necessary from the viewpoint of public necessity" and contended his amendment would "delete whatever rational fears may attach to it."

Explaining that his amendment would permit branches only where there are no existing banking facilities, or compel absorption of existing institutions, Vandenberg said it would limit branch banks to those communities which would be benefited by them.

templating very early action in foreign affairs, possibly through present diplomatic channels, even before he enters the White House, but if such is the case it was carefully guarded.

Both Mr. Roosevelt and the Secretary of State recalled other instances of similar conversations between the incoming and outgoing officers of the Government.

With the World Economic Conference preparing to convene shortly after March 4, the disarmament parley still in progress and the war debts issue hanging fire, the new Democratic administration faces full activity in international affairs. In addition, there is the ever-present question of recognition of the Soviet Government in Russia and the conflict between Japan and China over Manchuria in the Far East.

Declining to join with President Hoover in joint commission action on the war debts, economic and arms problems, Mr. Roosevelt indicated in that exchange of communications that he had very definite ideas for tackling these problems through regular diplomatic channels.

Stimson Parries Question.

Just Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Stimson, each dressed in regular business clothes, participated in today's conference. If the Democratic President-elect has selected his Secretary of State he gave no indication of it.

Mr. Stimson recalled to newspapermen that when he was Secretary of War in President Taft's Cabinet he spent a week in conversation with Lindley M. Garrison, his successor in the Wilson Cabinet, before the latter took office.

"Have you talked with the new Secretary of State?" he was asked.

"Wouldn't you like to know," he replied, laughing.

Mr. Roosevelt also recalled that Woodrow Wilson consulted Philander C Knox, Mr. Taft's Secretary of State, before entering office.

While photographers pictured the unusual meeting of the two in dining room at the Krum Elbow estate on the banks of the Hudson, Mr. Roosevelt talked with newspapermen.

To Confer With McAdoo.

"It was very delightful to have the Secretary to lunch," he said. "Everything in relation to foreign affairs was discussed."

"I indorse thoroughly what the President-elect said about a delightful lunch," interposed Mr. Stimson, "and it was a most satisfactory conversation."

It was the intention of the Secretary to leave Mr. Roosevelt early tonight here. The President-elect had an appointment with Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest, upon his arrival here.

He understands Senator-elect McAdoo, of California, is coming through New York soon and he intends to confer with him.

FIGHT ON SHERIFFS' SALES GAINS IN IOWA

Hundreds in Wisconsin Also Force Postponement; Protest March Planned.

Logan, Iowa, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The farmers' fight against sheriffs' sales spread to other communities in Iowa and Wisconsin today.

Meanwhile, members of the Farmers Defense Council at Le Mars, Iowa—scene of last week's disorder, in which farmers halted a foreclosure sale with threats to an insurance company attorney and a district judge—were organizing an expedition to Des Moines, to exert their influence on the State Legislature which convened today.

About 100 declared intention of making the trip with the avowed purpose of urging legislation which would deprive courts of jurisdiction for a period of several months, in cases involving money judgments.

Traveling by truck, they will stop first at Sioux City tomorrow, leaders said, to participate in a protest against a foreclosure sale there. Sioux City authorities said they expected no demonstration, however.

Other Sales Halted.

Approximately 700 farmers gathered here and succeeded in preventing the scheduled sale of the A. H. Cleaver farm near Modale. Judge Ernest Miller postponed hearing the application for receivership made by William King until Friday, when the latter failed to appear. The demonstration was orderly. The group also secured postponement of another sale, in which Representative Malcolm Baldridge (Republican), Nebraska, and Fred D. Wead, Federal building custodian at Omaha, Nebr., were among the plaintiffs.

At Tipton, Iowa, scene of the "cow war" outbreak in 1930, when the Iowa National Guard was called out to enforce administration of the bovine tuberculin test law, 20 farmers gathered at the courthouse to protest foreclosure of the farm of J. A. Hayslett near West Branch, birthplace of President Hoover. Sheriff W. W. Christian agreed to postpone the sale three days.

Officials Give to Poor.

Three hundred farmers assembled at Appleton, Wis., and forced postponement until April 8 of the sale of a widow's farm on a mortgage foreclosure action brought by her brother, Arthur Kunkel, of Manawa, holder of the paper. Mrs. Lillie E. Krake owner of the property, operates it with the assistance of a minor son.

A delinquent tax sale at Forest City, Iowa, also was postponed when between 600 and 700 taxpayers met to prevent bids. All county officials were called before the group and agreed to give a 20 per cent salary cut to the poor fund. A permanent organization was formed to meet the first Tuesday of each month.

Wife of Bandmaster Says Home Was Free-Love Nest

Associated Press Photos.

Mrs. Frances Schildhauer, questioned in her husband's murder, and Carl Bradberry, with whom, she said yesterday, her husband wanted her to go to Memphis so he could pay attention to another woman.

Conflict Is Found in Story of Mrs. Schildhauer, Police State.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Frances Schildhauer told police today her story of her married life, but insisted she had no knowledge of who killed her husband, Edwin, a high school bandmaster.

In seclusion for a week, the young widow went to a police station in response to a charge by Police Capt. John Stege that she knew the identity of two men with whom he rode away in an automobile an hour before he was found shot to death.

"I'm not interested in Mrs. Schildhauer's marital or extramarital affairs," Capt. Stege said. "What I want to know is what she knows about the killing of her husband."

The widow's reply was a repetition of her flat denial that she knew anything about why the bandmaster was killed, or who killed him.

The marital affairs of which Stege spoke first were disclosed today by Mrs. Schildhauer's lawyer, Joseph M. Burke. The lawyer said the Schildhauer home was "a free love nest."

Two hours before Mrs. Schildhauer was questioned by police, Burke revealed what she intended telling them, including an assertion that her own husband insisted on her going to Memphis, Tenn., for a week with a mutual friend, Carl Bradberry. Burke said Schildhauer wanted his wife away so he could pay attention to another woman.

Further, the lawyer quoted Mrs. Schildhauer as saying, the bandmaster insisted on accompanying Miss Carriotte Holland while Bradberry escorted her when they visited night clubs.

On one of those excursions, she said, Bradberry became ill and she took him to her home, Schildhauer refusing to leave the cafe. A quarrel resulted when the bandmaster came home with Miss Holland and found them dressed in pajamas.

Miss Holland previously informed police of the pajama incident and professed friendship for both Schildhauers.

Detectives helped Mrs. Schildhauer through a crowd of 200 persons as she arrived at the station. Her first words to police were that she had not submitted to questioning before because of fear she might be prosecuted for violation of the Mann act in connection with the Memphis trip.

Attorney Burke added she could not submit to lengthy questioning because of ill health, brought on by the killing of her husband and the approaching birth of a child.

Stege said there was a discrepancy in her story that Schildhauer left their home at 8:20 p. m. the night of December 9, was slugged as he reached the street, and was taken away by two men in an automobile. Previous events of the evening, Stege said, indicated Schildhauer could not have left before 9 p. m.

Police received a communication today from Paul Walton, disbarred lawyer and for weeks a mysterious figure in the case. In a letter, he informed Stege of his admiration for the bandmaster and his wife, but maintained he "had no intimation" regarding the cause of the killing or the identity of the slayers.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS RITES FOR MISS KIRK

Among those at the services were many who had received the kindly aid of Miss Kirk. Nigel H. Dixon, who was taken into the Kirk family when he was a small boy, was in the cortege. State's Attorney John Briscoe halted his strenuous investigation of the crime to attend the funeral.

In the crowd were Sheriff Hammett and Detective Sergt. William Feehley and Walter Martin, of Baltimore, who are aiding St. Marys County authorities in their investigation.

Dr. Joseph G. Gibson, rector of Christ Church and husband of Miss Kirk's companion when the bomb exploded, conducted the ceremony for his friend. Injuries suffered by Mrs. Gibson kept her from attending the final rites of her friend.

The burying ground where Miss Kirk rests is nearly as old as the colonization of Maryland. The church was built in 1736.

At the close of the third day's investigation detectives again confessed they were baffled. They spent the day in investigating rumors which they found to be without foundation. They were unable to verify a report that a mysterious car was seen Friday night near where Miss Kirk left her automobile before the fateful start to Washington early Saturday.

Dynamite was the explosive used, detectives concluded after they had made a further investigation of the automobile, aided by Harry Gough, of Waldorf, Md., who is familiar with explosives. Mr. Gough said that two or more sticks of the explosive were used, and that it was his theory they were set off by a blasting cap attached to the muffler of the car.

Detectives said a report that Miss Kirk's death was linked with bootlegging activities was absolutely false.

After questioning several persons last night, the detectives reported they had definite hopes for solution of the crime. They were reluctant to discuss their leads, but stated they led away from the southern Maryland vicinity. They also expressed belief the murder was committed by a person or persons who were either hired or influenced by others.

NEW AUTO MODELS DESIGNED FOR SPEED

Stream-Lining and Engine Studies Are Features of New York Show.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Despite a short opening day Saturday and rain today, exhibitors at the National Automobile Show were unanimous in expressing satisfaction over the public's reception of their new models.

Although it was too early to obtain figures on which to compare sales and attendance the four exhibition floors of Grand Central Palace were crowded with sightseers and dealers reported numerous inquiries.

Emphasis has been placed upon elaborate exhibits showing the workings of the engines and nearly every booth has a chromium model of its car's motor with glass plates, through which the entire mechanism may be seen.

One exhibitor has a device which revolves an entire chassis in a 30-foot wheel in which a demonstrator and two pretty girls point out the features of the machine. Every model displayed in this booth is the same color—sandy brown—with carpet and attendants' uniforms matching.

115 Miles an Hour Pledged.

A drastically stream-lined model brought out by a manufacturer of cars in the higher-priced class created much attention, but attendants reported none had been sold and only a few would be manufactured.

The car, guaranteed to do 115 miles an hour, is "teardrop" shaped, with air pockets entirely eliminated. The headlights at the front of the fenders are carried back in molding along the sides of the car, simulating the exhaust pipes of a racing car. The frame tapers at the front and rear, the door handles on the sides are counter-sunk and there are no running boards.

Sensational streamlining also features the new model of a low-priced four, but it is of a different fashion. The lens of the headlights in front are flush with the fenders and the rear light also is sunk into the body. The car looks something like a locomotive from both the front and rear.

Ad Value Praised.

Beneath a placard reading, "Advertising has been one of the principal factors in the success of the motor industry," is an extensive display of automotive advertising from the earliest days to the present time.

That the automobile really would run was the principal theme of the early advertisements. "Buy a Bates and keep your dates" was the slogan of one manufacturer, who went on to say that "the Bates is always ready and always goes."

Rambler advertised that "men of muscle are not required to operate it. It starts on the first turn of the crank and runs until you stop it, controlled by the pressure of the thumb."

Other advertisements said, "No expert chauffeur is needed," "Built to run all the time," and "Runs anywhere." The Yale 12-horsepower touring car was represented as "instantly responsive—starts and stops in a second."

Head of Milk Firm Loses His Tax Case

Court Holds H.N. Brawner, Jr., Improperly Deducted Sum of $109,889.

A deduction of $109,889.71, which Henry N. Brawner, jr., omitted from his income tax for 1923 as being "Ordinary and necessary expenses during the taxable year," was made improperly, the District Court of Appeals held yesterday in affirming a previous decision of the Board of Tax Appeals of the Treasury Department.

Mr. Brawner, it developed, had paid that amount to Mrs. Cecile R. Oyster, widow of George M. Oyster, jr., for her husband's share of a milk-distributing business which he controlled with Mr. Brawner. The appellate court said a regulation of the tax act reading "the cost of defending or perfecting title to property constitutes a part of the cost of the property and is not a deductible expense," established the liability of Mr. Brawner under the law.

Mr. Oyster died in April, 1921, and the agreement between him and Mr. Brawner was that the survivor should have first chance to buy out the other's interests. This Mr. Brawner did, gaining complete control of the milk company.

House Members Escape As Elevator Is Jammed

(Associated Press.)

About a dozen members of the House yesterday had a narrow escape from being dropped about 30 feet in a Capitol elevator, and Representative James A. Frear, of Wisconsin, barely avoided being caught between it and a floor.

The members plied into the elevator in the basement and it slowly climbed. Mario Pizzaro, operator, halted it at the second floor and opened the door. As Frear stepped out the elevator slipped down about 5 feet.

Pizzaro pulled the representative back in time. The operator then let the elevator down to the first floor and had two members step out. It then returned to the second floor.

"The elevator was overloaded with heavy men," Pizzaro said.

COOLIDGE'S TRANSIT POST TO STAY OPEN

His Place as Chairman of National Survey Experts Will Not Be Filled.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—At its first meeting since the death of Calvin Coolidge the national transportation committee announced today that the former President's place on the committee would not be filled.

The committee was formed last fall to make a comprehensive study of the Nation's various forms of transportation, with a view to recommending changes in legislation and regulations governing them. Mr. Coolidge, as chairman, had directed the work of the committee, which last month held a series of hearings here, at which various groups of transportation enterprises expressed their viewpoints on national coordination of traffic systems. Included were the railroads, railway equipment manufacturers, automobile makers, aviation industry, savings banks, investment bankers and the inland waterways groups.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith said after today's meeting that the committee's report would be completed as soon as possible. He said that it would be far more comprehensive than had been originally planned.

Bernard M. Baruch, as vice chairman of the committee, presided.

The committee' resolutions of condolence and sympathy will be drawn up by Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, and sent to Mrs. Coolidge.

Dr. Harold G. Moulton, head of the Brookings Institute of Washington, who is serving as special adviser and investigator for the committee, submitted reports at today's meeting. Dr. Moulton has gone over the Interstate Commerce Commission's records, preparing a digest of its findings covering a period of years of study of railroad problems.

COOLIDGE'S ESTATE WILLED TO WIDOW

Hemenway said she had been busily occupied with affairs of the family. He described her general condition as "all right."

A State police guard which was posted at The Beeches soon after Mr. Coolidge's death was continued tonight, although there were no known attempts of outsiders to enter the grounds.

Postoffice Department Orders Coolidge Stamp

(Associated Press.)

The Postoffice Department has ordered the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to prepare dies for a 3-cent postage stamp in memory of Calvin Coolidge.

The stamp, it was learned yesterday, probably will be black and similar to the one issued when President Harding died. It is expected, like the William Penn stamp issued last October, to have no border.

Normano Accused As Illegal Visitor

Castle Reports Time Limit Is Up on Lecturer's U. S. Entry Permit.

Boston, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A hearing before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney brought forth today the allegation that Dr. Joao Frederico Normano, director of the Harvard University Bureau of Economic Research in Latin America, was in this country illegally. Dr. Normano was arrested last week on representation of the German government that in reality he was Isaak Lewin, former Berlin banker, who allegedly participated with an accomplice in a swindle involving $750,000. He denied knowledge of the affair.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Haven Parker presented a letter at the hearing on the question of bail for Dr. Normano's release, in which Undersecretary of State Castle said the defendant's one-year visitation period expired in April, 1932, and that it had been believed he and his wife, Berta, had left the United States.

A. K. Cohen, counsel for Dr. Normano, demanded that he be released in bail to permit him an opportunity to prepare his case regarding identification, but Commissioner Jenney remanded him to jail without setting a date for hearing. Jenney intimated, however, that the matter of identification would be taken up again Friday and that he would not be averse to considering $25,000 bail.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Renz L. Jennings, county attorney, said today he would obtain a court order, directing that Winnie Ruth Judd be brought to Phoenix as a witness Wednesday afternoon for the preliminary hearing of John J. Halloran, charged with being an "accessory to the crime of murder." The blonde slayer is in the State prison at Florence awaiting execution February 17 for the murder of Agnes Anne Lerol.

TOKYO AIRMEN ROUT CHINESE IRREGULARS

Heavy Military Movements Continue; Nippon Rejects Offer to Mediate.

Tokyo (Tuesday), Jan. 10 (A.P.).—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch said Japanese troops occupied Chiumenekow, important pass through the great wall of China, today without resistance. Chinese troops earlier were reported passing through this gate to defend the province of Jehol against an admittedly planned Japanese invasion.

Peiping, China, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—The Japanese launched an aerial bombardment on irregular Chinese forces outside the great wall of China along the borders of Jehol Province today.

The attack followed skirmishes involving these guerrilla Chinese forces in the vicinity west of Shanhaikwan, captupred last week by Japan.

Attack Seems Isolated.

The attack seemed isolated. Inside the great wall, or in China proper, below Shanhaikwan, all reports indicated complete lack of military maneuvers or developments. Both sides appeared content for the moment to consolidate their defenses.

The countryside remained comparatively quiet between Peiping and Shanhaikwan, although there were considerable troop movements in the troubled area. As result, attention concentrated on the arrival at Tientain of Gen. Umetsu, chief of the general affairs department on the Japanese general staff.

It was generally understood he was bringing important instructions to Lieut. Gen. Kotaro Nakamura, in charge of Japan's forces in north China.

British Offer Rejected.

Tokyo (Tuesday), Jan. 10 (U.P.).—The Japanese legation at Peiping today was instrucetd by Foreign Minister Yasuya Uchida to refuse the British offer to mediate the Shanhaikwan dispute.

Uchida issued his instruction on grounds there was no danger of fighting between Japanese and Chinese spreading. He said preparations were being made for direct negotiations between China and Japan.

Tokyo, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Japanese sources reported today that Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, military leader charged with defending China's northern border, had indicated willingness to negotiate an armistice between the Chinese and Japanese troops in the vicinity of Shanhaikwan.

(Associated Press.)

A statement from Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang given out here yesterday by the Chinese Legation upon receipt from the ministry of foreign affairs at Nanking said:

"Since international peace efforts appear to have ceased to be effective, I see no way to maintain peace and protect China except through sacrificing our lives and blood."

"Our immediate program," she said, "comprises three subjects—the passage of the equal rights amendment, equal rights reservation to World Court adherence, elimination of discrimination against married women and the completion of equal nationality rights for women."

Dog Gives Alarm In Apartment Fire

Families Driven to Street as Flames Threaten to Spread.

The frightened barks of a little dog probably prevented a serious fire early today in a colored apartment house at 1617 Swann street northwest. A tenant, aroused by the dog's barks, sounded an alarm.

The fire started on a rear second floor frame porch. It spread to the third floor porch, and for a time was threatening. The first fire company to arrive immediately sent in a second alarm.

Families living in the six apartments of the three-story brick structure were driven into the street. Some of the tenants in the adjoining building also fled from their apartments.

Police Say Wife Slain by Husband.

Flagstaff, Ariz., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles Salas, 38-year-old mother of three children, was shot and killed by her husband today, police said, as she started to leave their house during a family quarrel. Testifying before a coroner's jury, Salas said he and his wife frequently had quarreled "because she had affairs with other men."

Hyattsville Feud Flares in Council

Old Fire Chief Dispute Is Reopened and Sunday Movies Discussed.

The feud between the Hyattsville Town Council and fire department flared up again at last night's council meeting when an ordinance to dissolve the fire department was proposed. The vote on the ordinance was postponed until a special meeting on January 18, to give the councilmen a chance to study the statute.

The council meeting was marked by a clash between attorneys for the council and for the fire department. J. Frank Lillard, lawyer for the department, gave as the basis for his contention the claim that the fire department was a separate corporation legally distinct from the town. Caesar Aiello, representing the town, then explained the legal aspect of the town's stand.

A report signed by Noble Rushe as chief of the fire department was accepted by the council after the "chief" had been amended to "ex-chief." At its last meeting the council voted Rushe out as chief.

The question of permitting Sunday movies also received attention last night. A petition in favor of Sunday movies and bearing 500 names was received, and the pastor of the local Seventh Day Adventists Church appeared and argued for repeal of all Sunday blue laws. Seven other church organizations, however, sent in letters recording their opposition.

STALIN SAYS DANGER OF WAR HURTS PLAN

First Speech in Year Reveals 5-Year Project Is 93.7 Per Cent Complete.

Moscow, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Joseph V. Stalin, reporting to the country today on the results of the first five-year plan which has just been concluded, admitted that only 93.7 per cent of the general industrial program had been fulfilled, declaring the danger of war compelled the nation to neglect this production in in order that it might divert itself to preparing means of defense.

The bolshevist chieftain's report was delivered verbally last Saturday at a joint meeting of the Communist party central committee and the central control committee. It was published today.

In his first speech in more than a year and a half, Stalin defended his policies which, he acknowledged, had been a great strain on the country, declaring they had been necessary in insure future development.

Asserting that the failure to attain the objectives of the plan was "explained by the fact that neighboring countries refused to sign guaranty pacts with us and by complications in the Far East," Stalin added that "we were compelled then to change the work in our factories in order to increase our means of defense.

"We have filled all the gaps now in this respect—we have completed everything for the defense of our country, but this had an effect on the fulfilment of our five-year plan," he continued. "Without this circumstance we doubtless would have even exceeded the plan.

"The accomplishment of our means of defense, then, is the general result of the five-year plan in industry. Now you can use your own judgment about the shoutings in the capitalist press about the 'failure' of the five-year plan."

Contrasting dropping industrial output in crisis-ridden capitalist countries, he declared the volume of industrial production in the U. S. S. R. had increased three times over the prewar level and had doubled since 1928.

Redeemer College Is Dedicated Here

Corner Stone Is Laid and Home Will Be Completed by September.

Ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon formally dedicating the Holy Redeemer College at Catholic University. This new addition to the university will be used for the education of Redemptorist priests attending the university. The new building, constructed of Indiana limestone, occupies a commanding area facing Seventh street, extending from Hamlin to Jackson streets northeast.

The corner stone was laid by the Very Rev. A. B. Kuhn, C. SS. R., provincial of the Redemptorist Order, assisted by Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University. Other clergymen in attendance were the Rev. Richard C. Cartwright, rector of St. Paul's College at the Catholic University; the Rev. Theodore Peterson, C. S. P.; the Rev. James McVann, C. S. P.; the Rev. John Beleschmidt, C. SS. R.; the Rev. John Behr, C. SS. R.; the Rev. Leo Hiobil, C. SS. R., rector of the Redemptorist Church, Baltimore; the Rev. Francis Clairo, C. SS. R., rector of St. Mary's Church, Annapolis, Md, and the Very Rev. Henry Ottenheim, C. SS. R., provincial consultor of the Redemptorist Order.

Among the laymen present were Anthony Schmidt, of New York City, the architect, and Joseph L. Parkhill, builder of the new institution. The new college will be ready for occupancy next September. The Very Rev. James C. Barron, C. SS. R., will be rector of the new college.

Early Hearing Seen For Bond Measure

Palmisano Would Disbar Attorneys Who Pay for Business.

Early hearings before the House District Judiciary Subcommittee on the King bill for regulating practices of professional bondsmen, was promised yesterday by Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. Palmisano yesterday said he favored disbarring attorneys who pay fees to bondsmen for clients, in a letter to John P. Mullen, local attorney, who assisted The Post in a campaign for the proposed legislation.

"A bill should be passed disbarring these attorneys who are paying fees to these bondsmen for soliciting business," Mr. Palmisano wrote Mr. Mullen, in reply to a letter supporting the King bills. "I am satisfied that the bondsmen would not solicit business for an attorney unless there was some consideration for him to do so."

Mr. Mullen, in a letter to Representative Loring Mr. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, a member of the subcommittee, urged that the King bill be amended, so that local judges would have to promulgate rules prohibiting professional bondsmen from influencing persons whom they liberate on bond in the choice of attorneys.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

Only one Owney,
And this is he.
The dog is aloney,
So let him be.

YOU'VE read of the Postoffice Cat. Don't forget there is a Postal Dog. Owney's his name, just dog.

RILEY.

A homeless, hungry dog, shivering from cold one day, crept into the postoffice at Albany, N. Y., where clerks were busy and where no notice was paid him, as he huddled onto a pile of mail bags and went to sleep.

Found the next day, wistful looking and with his wagging tail pleading, Owney shared lunches with the clerks. Then it was Owney's love for the mail service started, love for all men who handle Uncle Sam's postal business, love that was to send him around the world in 132 days, love that was to be recognized by absolute monarchs. It must be remembered that Owney's day was also the day when we still had absolute monarchs, whose number has now been whittled to one, the ruler of Abyssinia.

Owney was friendless. He headquartered himself at Albany's postoffice for weeks and was adopted. He was intelligent and alert.

Perhaps his curiosity led him to travel with the mail bags. Going somewhere and seeing something. Often he was gone several weeks, but always back to Albany's postoffice. Lest he get lost, the clerks bought Owney a collar with name and address.

The story to date is just this:

The other day in the office of W. L. Brown, National Museum's chief taxidermist, we spied Owney, all decked out in his 200 or more tags.

"What's this?"

"They have sent Owney over from the Postoffice Department to be spruced a bit," said Mr. Brown. "He's not at journey's end yet. He's going to Chicago's fair and they want him to look his best."

Owney did look a bit frayed around the edges at that. But when Mr. Brown finishes he'll be good as new again.

Wherever Owney went before he assumed a permanent sitting position, he went laden with his tags and medals.

Owney was pretty much his own boss. But he had his work to do. There was the time when he left Tacoma with letters of introduction to postal people in many ports. He was the ship captain's guest and he liked it. Dogs are that way. They have ways of showing appreciation of favors that humans often take for granted.

In Japan the mikado gave him a passport bearing the empire's seal, for it is known that an American, even if just a dog, must have his credentials while "wandering o'er a foreign strand."

Globe trotter as he was, his home was anywhere he circled three times and settled on a mail sack.

And would you believe it? Owney went to his death at the hand of one he called "friend." The postmaster at Toledo, Ohio, not knowing Owney's identity, ordered him shot.

"The bottom was squeaky," said Mr. Fedd, Esq.

The janitor approached a bit uncertainly, at the driver's back, for he called his cab "Old Beck," you see.

"Oui, oui, we we." And he climbed in with the driver after reading the address and pointing down the street two blocks, over one, up two and three across, then back again for a second trial start.

So away they went, these three, no more, except for the youngster who swung onto the rear spare tire and who wanted to save his trolley tokens.

Has any one seen Ira T. Hill, Agriculture, doing his daily dozen? Talk about calisthenics. You should see him perform. He can touch the floor with his knuckles without a bend in his knee. He has another stunt, sitting on his heels. Occasionally he visits the nurse in the emergency room. But we didn't ask him if he had strained any of his muscles.

Some folks say the G. O. P.
Has its ups and has its downs,
Has its "brains" and has its clowns,
Has its "ins" and has its "outs,"
Has its "knows" and has its doubts.

Make initials read "G. P. O.,"
Has its printers and its presses,
Has its ems and has its s's,
Has its colors and its inks,
Printing Congress' bunk, by jinks.

Lillian Willoughby, Agriculture, we're happy to see you've recovered from illness.

Is it economy to cause highly specialized men in Government service to make their own equipment for tests when the same could be bought ready made and the experts' time be used to greater advantage and more profit to the taxpayers? For reference, Bureau of Standards.

Our Own ? Box.

Q. What picture is on the reverse side of the $20-bills?—E. R. P.

A. Sorry, E. R. P., but we can't even say what picture is on the front side.

"There's one established fact," said Swarmi Fedd, "my friend Herman Saurian down by the Aquarium is not worth more than $40 on the hoof. He can't turn over on his back. And Aloysius is just small change. He's just a little fellow.

We learn Miss Marion F. Finucane, secretary to Harold M. Graves, executive assistant to Postmaster General Brown, is seriously ill with pleurisy.

His best friends tell him perhaps supposedly Havana cigars caused his recent brief illness. But Charles Dean, his friends call him "Corona," is back on the job at Commerce telling of Latin-American conditions.

Vacation will soon be over for Miss Leta June Creel, Public Roads, Treasury, who is spending a month at her home, Mexico, Mo. She'll be back January 17.

It's exciting when girls get so many strikes none of them can count them, but such was the case Thursday evening when Nina Brown, Emma Luebbing, Charlotte Crabbe, Louise Larsen, Dorothy Renkes, Marion Carwithen and Frances Skelly, all of Prohibition Bureau, met at Arcade Alleys for three and four games each.

Somewhere S. Fedd heard that Miss Hilda Darnall, Prohibition Bureau, has a big weakness for Tennessee men. Wonder who he is? Limit yourself to three guesses.

Glendoris Huffman, we're sorry to hear you spent your New Year's holiday treating a mean case of grip. Hope you'll soon be able to return to work at Agriculture. Has any one missed Glendoris' smile and curly locks around the corridors? Mr. Swarmi did.

Did folks bring you fruit and sit on the bed and eat it?

There should be some economic use for those Christmas trees resting in ash cans.

Funny how street cars get bunched. Ten Rosslyn cars, some Decatur and others in two blocks along the Treasury.

Irma Kuhnert, secretary to the chief of regional information, Commerce, carried on a whole week, despite frequent sneezes, trying to move the vast amount of work ahead of her.

A spinal injury suffered two weeks ago has kept Miss Anna L. Lewis, clerk in charge of classification, Prohibition Bureau, in bed.

That baby carriage, empty, found by Patrolman L. H. Hozier on the Ellipse, near the White House, the other night. Some absent-minded father, perhaps.

ALL of us know him, but for obvious reasons let's call him Jim. Jim, the Government clerk, is not a bad "scout." Mrs. Jim is always reminding him (now that he's suffered an 8 1-3 per cent pay cut) how much better off she'd be had she married Mr. So-and-so, the business man. And, Mr. So-and-so, the business man, does not realize how lucky he is. No denying Mrs. Jim is a fine, handy woman. She knits, tats, crochets and mends clothes for the poor, and all her friends know this. But—Jim is a bit tired of using small safety pins where buttons should be on his clothes. He's also a bit heavy on his feet, and his 15-cent stockings tell the tale. They can easily be mended, and Jim is very much willing to have this done. Mrs. Jim's stockings never need mending. Mended silk stockings on a pretty, young woman do not look nice.

The children in the neighborhood all love Jim because he's continually dropping small change through his trousers pocket. Jim loves to stay home at night, read and play with children.

Now, please don't misunderstand me. Mrs. Jim is a fine woman—highly educated, a social favorite and all that, but I'm afraid she's a bit too cold-blooded and blue-blooded toward Jim, who is being overlooked and dubbed a social impossibility.

PHILIP EBERT.

We see that—

Miss Sarah Patterson, Commercial Intelligence, Commerce, is back after two months' illness.

Ben W. Ashmead, Commercial Intelligence, Commerce, is at work, after escaping an operation.

Miss Marion Clare, Translation, Commerce, is translating again. She made a visit to see her folks in Florida.

Mrs. Florence Richards, Transportation, Commerce, is beating back to recovery from a two months' illness.

We had the pleasure yesterday of meeting Lindsay S. Perkins, senior translator, State Department. More about Mr. Lindsay.

It's the old law of compensation. Robert F. Martin, Statistical Research, Commerce, who improved his economic background by attending the Cincinnati meeting of the American Economic Association, nevertheless paid for the journey from his own purse.

Practical Prize Picked By Miss in Diary Test

Just another week. Just another of those $5 merchandise prizes for another of those readable stories for The Federal Diary column. It's easy. Just ask Miss Mabel Cuddy, Airways, Lighthouses, Commerce. She's the winner this week.

Miss Mabel Cuddy.

Miss Cuddy is a bit camera-shy. At first she didn't want her picture made. Of course, that's one of the rules of the contest. You must have your picture taken when you win. This weekly box would look most unattractive with a lot of white space and no picture, even though it would be something different.

Miss Cuddy said she wanted the order drawn on Hahn's F street shoe store, so it looks like her prize will have something to do with shoes.

This contest is beginning all over again, starting today. Who'll win next? That's the question. What's the answer?

WE have received word of the death December 18 in the Presbyterian Hospital, Albuquerque, N. Mex., of Richard Lyon, official fifteen years in the office of the advocate general, War Department, and who left for a vacation on his ranch in Albuquerque, when after arrival there, a week's illness terminated fatally.

Upon departure from Washington Mr. Lyon was presented with a handsome auto robe by the office force, and the following poem was written and dedicated to him by his messenger, Eddie W. Reeves:

"We hate to see you go away,
We'd rather have you here;
We'll think of you most every day
That comes within the year—
You've been a most congenial one—
Made each of us a friend
There's very few beneath the sun
Works to this noble end.

"You've lit a fire in our hearts—
We'll keep it burning there,
We'll keep it there when you depart
And go—no difference where.
Long may your star light up the sky,
Your banner keep unfurled,
And dazzle in the breeze on high
About your peaceful world."

Willis E. Hurd, Marine Weather Bureau, reminds us all the way from Cherrydale, Va., of the meeting of the District Department, A. F. G. E., at the Hamilton Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock, when Mrs. Edwina Avery, chairman, Government Workers' Council, National Woman's Party, will speak.

Date worth remembering: January 15, 1933.—Better get earlier this date to read The Washington Post. Of particular interest to every woman employe in the Government service.

COAST and Geodetic Survey wire-drag equipment is responsible for finding off Bass Rocks, between Broad Sound and Nahant Harbor, near Boston, of the airplane of Edward Mallinckrodt, III, St. Louis, and Donald Mackay Frost, jr., of Boston, who left for a pleasure cruise December 29.

The plane was seen soon after leaving the Boston Municipal Airport to plunge into Bass Rocks waters. Appeal was made to Capt. R. S. Patton, director, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, after other methods had failed to locate the bodies by means of the wire-drag equipment. One body has been found. Capt. N. H. Heck and Lieut. J. C. Partington, survey engineers, volunteered to aid. They left for Boston immediately.

Wire-drag equipment was developed early this century to insure discovery of navigation menaces ordinarily missed by surveying methods. These dangers include pinnacle rocks, boulders and other menaces peculiar to New England and Alaskan coasts. Heck was responsible largely for improvements which brought the wire-drag apparatus to its present efficiency.

Norway prefers to count its money and do its business by hand, if the recent import duty of 18 per cent ad valorem, reported by Consul General Thomas H. Bevan, Oslo, is a yardstick. Adding machines, bookkeeping machines and parts, calculating machines, cash registers, typewriters and parts and electric vacuum cleaners are affected.

NOW it's a "layette" for a milk wagon, including rubber shoes for the horse, rubber tires for the wagon, rubber footwear for the driver and rubber bottle carriers. The idea is to lessen the noises usually accompanying the milkman on his early rounds, according to E. G. Holt, rubber division, Commerce.

In many large cities the clatter of horses' hoofs still supplies that metallic-on-stone-or-asphalt sound "so early in the morning." So the rubber industry has set out to solve that and other problems.

Kitchen and bathroom ware, washable wall panels and bath fixtures, rubber balloons for use as floats on fish nets and pneumatic rubber tires on certain types of rail rolling stock are viewed as sales possibilities.

Ray Tucker Is Speaker To Democratic Women

Ray Tucker, of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, was the luncheon speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday. Mrs. Bolick Hurd introduced Mr. Tucker, who spoke on "Prospects Under Roosevelt." Others at the speakers' table were Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. Richard Jackson, Mrs. Edwards Shouse, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty and guests, Mrs. Louis Brandeis and Mrs. Luke I. Wilson.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman entertained Mrs. Willard and Mrs. Hugh Wallace; Mrs. Edward Keating's guests were Miss Grace Shallenberger and Miss Roberta Bradshaw; Mrs. W. F. Keohan's guests were Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. William Delaware Harris, Mrs. Walter J. Hayes, Miss Christie Allen and Mrs. Clayton Moore.

McLean Quits Hospital At Paris to Take Rest

Paris, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, today left the American Hospital, where he has been convalescing from influenza. His attorney said he would go away for a rest.

PERSIAN RULER ASKS CLOSER U. S. TIES

By EUGENE LYONS.
(Copyright in all Countries, 1933, by United Press.)

Teheran, Persia, Jan. 9.—The Shah of Persia sat at his desk in a modern office built into his new and westernized palace here today and gave voice to a vigorous plea for closer economic relations between his country and the people of the United States.

Garbed in a plain khaki uniform rather than the rich royal robes one associates with rulers over the fertile Persian lands, he was most cordial and Democratic throughout the interview.

He denied that his arbitrary cancellation of an oil contract with the Anglo-Persian Oil Co. had been a result of pressure brought by foreign interests.

Instead, the Shah declared, he had left the door open wide for negotiations with the company, but in view of what he called the menacing attitude of the British government—which controls the company—had presented the matter to the League of Nations. He realized this was defying the might of the British empire, but hoped that the League Council would cooperate with the Persian government in reaching an amicable decision in a controversy which has threatened to inflame the Near East.

Denies Soviet Link.

Riza Shah Pahlevi, Persia's shahanshah, or king of kings, indignantly denied intimations that Soviet Russia or other foreign interests were back of his action. He said:

"The insinuations are entirely false. We acted altogether independently to protect our own rights and natural resources."

The shah, a towering, square-shouldered man of 60, was warmly cordial throughout the interview. He expressed a warm friendship and admiration for the American people, and added:

"I sincerely hope that this friendship will deepen and bear fruit in closer cultural ties and larger economic relations to our mutual benefit. If any incident or misunderstanding has arisen, I want to assure America that the responsibility does not rest on my government or on the intelligent, patriotic portion of my people, who are always anxious to strengthen our traditional bonds of friendship."

Marked by Simplicity.

My audience with the shah, the first he has granted to a foreign newspaperman since his coronation, was marked by a simplicity which seemed strange in this remote land. Here was a man who had risen from a private in a Cossack regiment to become ruler of his country—a potentate who ruled from the historic "peacock throne" of fable. But he rose to greet me, and shook hands in Western fashion. I found that he was unquestionably the hardest working monarch in the world. He arises at 4 a. m. daily.

I had been coached by diplomats in the proper manner of bowing and speaking before the shah, but when I came into his office it was more like meeting a big business executive than an Oriental potentate used to intricate social forms of greeting.

The palace, built since his coronation, is more modest and modern than the palace of his predecessors, Colestan Palace, where ceremonial occasions are still celebrated. I was accompanied by his highness Amir Nezam, master of ceremonies in the imperial court, to the interview. We crossed a luxuriant garden, mounted a broad marble staircase and were ushered into the royal offices.

In Informal Manner.

I took a seat before a crackling fire and the audience proceeded in a most informal manner. The Amir Nezam interpreted.

"Your majesty's extraordinary rise to power," I said, "has touched the world's imagination like a modern Arabian Nights tale. What elements of your character explain this success?"

The shah's stern features beneath his visored military cap relaxed in a hearty laugh. He fingered a string of flame-colored amber beads a moment. Then:

"It is not easy to answer, but if I should summarize my own explanation, I should say:

"'I am a soldier, a simple soldier, and I love my job.'"

Brawner Estate Loses Tax Appeal

Court Holds That Stock Was Dividend and Not Gift.

The action of the Board of Tax Appeals of the Treasury Department in finding that an allotment of 1,507 shares of preferred stock of the Emerson Drug Co. to John W. Brawner was a "dividend" and not a "gift" was sustained by District Court of Appeals yesterday.

Mr. Brawner received the shares in 1926 and he did not include the value of them in his income tax for that year on the ground that they were a gift. Upon a hearing by the Treasury Department, though, it was held that the shares had been given as a dividend. They had a market value of $37,675 at that time.

The Lincoln National Bank, executor of Mr. Brawner's estate, carried the fight to the higher court. Mr. Brawner having died in January, 1929, before the matter could be disposed of.

Clarence Herbert New, 71, Author, Succumbs

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—In 1909 Clarence Herbert New started writing a serial story for a magazine called "Free Lances in Diplomacy." It has run continuously nearly every month since then, exceeding 3,000,000 words in length, but it will never be finished.

New died suddenly last night at the age of 71. He passed away peacefully in bed after surviving many adventures, including a clipper shipwreck off Australia and an attack by a bear in a zoo in which he lost an arm.

Lawmaker Makes Donkey Debut.

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Senator C. (Nifty) Garrett, Democrat, rode up the Capitol steps on a donkey today for the opening of the Washington Legislature. "We'll Put Kick in the Senate," said a sign draped on the donkey.

Mrs. Snipes' Lawyers Get Appeal Extension

York, S. C., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Attorneys for Mrs. Beatrice Snipes, expectant mother, who was sentenced to death a month ago for the murder of a rural policeman, today sought and obtained an extension until February 10 of time for the perfection of an appeal to the State Supreme Court. Attorneys told the court there had been insufficient time for them to prepare their appeal because of the volume of testimony taken at the trial.

Mrs Snipes' date of execution was set for April 7, but the notice of appeal, filed immediately after she had been convicted, automatically serves as a stay of sentence until final court action is taken.

FRAUDS BY KREUGER ARE TRACED TO 1917

Auditors Unable to Account for $116,000,000 That He Withdrew.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The manipulation of Kreuger & Toll accounts goes back at least to 1917, reported Price, Waterhouse & Co. today, following an investigation which has been under way by that auditing firm since last May.

Price, Waterhouse & Co. were asked to make an accounting of the Kreuger & Toll assets, following the death of Ivar Kreuger about a year ago, which led to the exposure of his irregularities in manipulating the affairs of his companies.

From June 1, 1918, to March 31, last, said the report, moneys raised from the public through the sale of shares and debenture issues amounted to 2,104,000,000 Swedish kronor, or approximately $560,000,000 at par. In addition, 614,000,000 kronor, or about $164,000,000 was obtained through bank loans and on bills.

$116,000,000 Unaccounted For.

Most of this money was invested in the Government and other marketable securities, in subsidiary manufacturing and trading companies and in the match monopolies, except for 432,000,000 kroner, or about $116,000,000, which were withdrawn by Kreuger and remain unaccounted for.

The investments were valued on March 31, last, at 775,000,000 kroner, or about $207,700,000 which, compared with the aggregate cost of 1,710,000,000 kronor, or $458,280,000 reveals a shrinkage of 935,000,000 kronor, or $250,580,000.

Earnings of the companies, the firm states, averaged about 1½ per cent a year on the average capital invested in the shares and debenture bonds of the company, or considerably less than Kreuger's reports indicated.

Kreuger Inspired Confidence.

"The perpetration of frauds on so large a scale and over so long a period would have been impossible but for the confidence which Kreuger succeeded in inspiring, the acceptance of his claim that complete secrecy in relation to vitally important transactions was essential to the success of his projects, the autocratic powers which were conferred upon him, and the loyalty or unquestioning obedience of officials, who were evidently selected with great care (some for their ability and honesty, others for their weaknesses) having regard to the parts which Kreuger intended them to take in the execution of his plans."

The auditors made no attempt to fix individual responsibility for the Kreuger fiasco, but stated generally that the frauds would not have been perpetrated "without outside assistance, witting or unwitting."

California Girl Violinist Pleases Capital Audience

Ruth Calvert Wilson, 20-year-old California violinist, who appeared at the Willard last night, astounded her audience by the brilliance of her technique, the purity of her tone and her sympathetic understanding.

The difficult Brahms "Sonata in D Minor," with which she opened her program, was a triumph of precision, remarkable for its solidity and true Brahmsian spirit. The four movements, played without music, were proof of her virtuosity. Her tone quality in the second movement was rich and deep and showed an evenness and rhythm remarkable in so young an artist.

In her second group, the "Largo" by Gluck-Ries was played with no hesitation and no uncertainty of modeling, the sustained melody and rich tone a revelation of emotional depths. The "Praeludium and Allegro" by Pugnani-Kreisler, was remarkable for its perfect technique and clever bowing, and in the "Nigun" by Bloch, she played with fine breadth of tone and fire, interpreting the Jewish prayer with fine religious feeling. Schubert's "Ave Maria" exhibited her finesse and artistry and won thundering applause from the audience. "Sumara," an ultramodern composition, was played with much charm and spirit. Her last number, "Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 11," was given with true abandon and spirit, evidence of her exceptional spirit. "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See, Lord," in response to demands for an encore, was a lovely soft melody, beautiful in tone and rhythm.

Great credit is due Miss Wilson's accompanist, Winifred Lakeman, who met the artist just four hours before the concert.

Edna Fisher Hall, contralto, also from California, sang two groups of songs, among them "Lungi Dal Care Bene," by Secchi; "Ewig," by Wolf; "Der Tod und Das Maechen," by Schubert, and the lovely Brahms "Meine Liebe Ist Gruen." She has a voice of rare beauty and power, remarkable range and purity.

Tchaikowsky's "Tell Me Why" was given with dramatic style and "That Day We Met," by Braine, was sung without a break between registers. She was accompanied by Minna Niemann at the piano. Both singer and accompanist were somewhat too generous with encores, making the program longer than was necessary.

RAINEY SAYS FARM UNREST SIGNIFICANT

Roosevelt and Garner Club Hears House Leader in Jackson Day Talk.

The specter of "grim-visaged men, who've always paid their taxes," rising in rebellion against the law demanding the sale of their farms and homes to satisfy unpaid tax bills, was presented to the Lawyers Roosevelt and Garner Club of the District last night by Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader of the House.

The rebellion of these heretofore taxpaying citizens, who have been caught between the upper and nether millstones in the present period of economic distress, Mr. Rainey said, was significant of the conditions which the Democratic party had to face and of the problems it has to solve.

Representative Rainey was but one of several nationally prominent Democrats who spoke at the dinner, which was presided over by Charles A. Douglas, president of the club, which gathered to celebrate the anniversary of Andrew Jackson, the Democrat, who entered the White House with the ruthless slogan that to the victor belonged the spoils of Government jobs, which were paid much fatter salaries, comparatively, in those days than are paid today.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, outlined a program which called for balancing the Federal budget through most rigid retrenchment in governmental expenditures and every economy that is possible, as of first consideration; a farm relief program to restore parity between prices for farm and other products; elimination of abuses in the banking system, and reestablishment of broad international trade relations.

Senator Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, who is one of those least heard about as among the confidential advisers of President-elect Roosevelt, but who was chosen by Roosevelt to preside as permanent chairman at the convention which nominated Mr. Roosevelt, touched on various "mandates" which had been given the Democratic party in the last election.

Senator James Byrnes, of South Carolina, youthful, buoyant and capable, who served a considerable apprenticeship in the House before he went to the Senate, but who now is credited as one of those "close to, and having the confidence of the President-elect," said the party had to redeem the pledges made in its platform. He painted a dreary picture of existing conditions. The country has got to rid itself of the idea that Uncle Sam is Santa Claus and the Federal Treasury is a Christmas tree, from which any State may pluck what presents it pleases, Senator Byrnes said.

Representative John W. McDuffie, of Alabama, a candidate for Speaker of the next House; Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson; Representative J. Condon, of Rhode Island; Huston Thompson, former trade commission member, who acted as toastmaster; John P. Costello, Democratic national committeeman from the District, and others were guests of honor at the gathering, which was held in the University Club ballroom.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate; Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana; Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, candidate for Speaker of the next House; John B. Colpoys, chairman of the Democratic central committee of the District; Admiral Cary T. Grayson, former physician to President Wilson and chairman of the Roosevelt inaugural committee; Senator William H. King, George O'Connor, Matt Horne, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, were among those who attended.

BORAH AND JOHNSON ENGAGE IN HEATED DEBATE ON DEBTS

the conference) there would be a reconsideration of debts in some form."

Borah emphasized that he was not defending France's default. He said this was a grave mistake, but felt the French eventually would pay.

After asserting the Stimson and Mills letters "did not impress" him as a "categorical or any other denial," Johnson recalled when the moratorium was before the Senate "a mere handful of senators stood upon this floor asserting what has been asserted today by the senator from Idaho."

Dealing In Prophecies.

"We were dealing in suspicions, perhaps," he said, "and in prophecies, for that little band which then made the fight had not the advantages which attached to greater men in this body, of being a part of White House confidences and conferences."

When he assailed Borah for quoting from newspaper dispatches in his argument, the Idahoan replied:

"Everything which I have said might have been gleaned from the public record and from the public press."

"Not so, sir," Johnson fired back, moving closer to Borah's chair. "How was it a matter of news on Wednesday last? It was a matter of news throughout the United States when the senator took his fiery stand and made the remark that he did."

"The senator from California did not need to rely upon newspapers," Borah said. "He could have read the public documents signed by responsible public officers and had all the information that has been given to the Senate by the senator from Idaho."

"That may be," retorted Johnson, "but I think the senator from Idaho possesses a wealth of information that the rest of us do not possess."

"I am willing to admit it," Borah replied as laughter swept the chamber.

"Of course he possesses a wealth of information upon this subject," Johnson asserted, "that the rest of us do not possess and he locks it in his own heart during the debate upon the moratorium."

"That is absolutely without foundation in fact," Borah replied heatedly.

Further on Johnson pressed his question whether Borah had spoken during the moratorium fight.

"I uttered it (my views) to the public press," the Idahoan said.

Johnson Returns Statement.

Johnson returned the "utterly without foundation" statement when Borah said he knew nothing about the debt situation at the time that Johnson did not know, if the latter desired to read the public press and documents.

"I grant him anything he desires in the unlimited wisdom he attributes to himself," Johnson said. "I accord that readily and he has it. But for the love of heaven if we get another moratorium or another fight upon the debts and he knows anything about them, let him tell his colleagues and tell the American people.

"It is not in keeping with the senator from Idaho to sit mute and silent during the discussion of such a question as the moratorium."

Letters Placed in Record.

The Stimson and Mills letters were placed in the Record earlier in the day by Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, on behalf of Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who last week took issue with Borah on the Hoover-Laval conference results.

Stimson's letter said no cancellation or revision of either debts or reparations was proposed by President Hoover or Premier Laval, and added:

"No assurrances or commitments on such subject was either asked for or given. The communique given out at the close of these discussions was an accurate statement of the discussion in all these respects."

In like vein, Mills' communication said there was "no justification for any assertion or belief that during the course of those conversations any assurance, direct or indirect, was given that there would be a revision of French debt obligations to the United States in consideration of a revision of German reparations such as subsequently took place at Lausanne."

Despite the two letters, Borah argued "it was perfectly plain that the question of debts was discussed at length between Hoover and Laval.

"It is plain," he added, "that there was an understanding there would be a reconsideration of debts in some form. As to a definite agreement, I do not know.

"Does the senator think enough was said between the President and the premier to justify France in defaulting?" asked Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader.

Declared Not Justified.

"No," Borah replied, "I do not. The sound position was taken by Premier Herriot. He contended there had been such negotiations to justify asking an extension, but said he would not support default, regardless of what took place in the past.

"He was overridden by the chamber speaking the popular will of France. It was this popular sentiment of France to which I referred last week. These negotiations had created the opinion among the people of France that if there was a readjustment of reparations there would be a reconsideration of debts.

"But it was not justification for their refusal to pay. It was sufficient justification for France to ask for reconsideration."

New Tooth Preservative Perfect Cleaner But—

A perfect dentifrice—an absolute tooth preservative. And no worry about film on the teeth. To the contrary the film is to be preserved.

Its worth is attested by Dr. W. A. Archer, American botanist and explorer. He discovered it in the rain-drenched jungles of the Choco region of northwestern Colombia.

The aborigines of that region, Dr. Archer says, insist that it is a perfect tooth preservative. The children chew the leaves of the plant until a film of some kind is formed over the teeth. Adults chew them about twice a year to restore any worn-off parts of the film.

But this dentifrice has only one slight drawback—it turns the teeth almost jet black.

TENNESSEE TO PAY M'MILLIN TRIBUTE

Roosevelt Sends Message of Condolence; Body Lies in State Today.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—In Tennessee's Capitol, where as a member of the legislature in 1875 Benton McMillin embarked on a career that led to the halls of Congress, the governor's chair and the diplomatic service, his body will lie in state tomorrow prior to funeral services and burial with military honors.

Armed guards will stand silent watch at the flag-draped coffin as friends file by for a last glance at the departed "Democratic Warhorse of Tennessee." He died of pneumonia last night in his eighty-eighth year, after almost six decades of activity in public affairs.

Telegrams paying tribute to the veteran politician and expressing sympathy to his widow arrived today from President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, United States senators and representatives and many others in high places.

McMillin managed Roosevelt's preconvention campaign in Tennessee and stumped the State in his behalf during the election campaign.

The body will lie in state in the rotunda from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., when, accompanied by a military escort and a National Guard band playing a funeral dirge, it will be moved nine blocks on a gun caisson to Vine Street Christian Church for services in charge of Dr. Roger T. Noce. Statehouse offices will be closed during the three-hour period.

PAY CUT IS INDORSED BY GROUP IN SENATE

York and New Orleans. Provision was made that $300,000 should be used for extending air mail service westward from Bismarck and Mandan, N. Dak., to Cheyenne, Wyo.

Opposition to the Senate economy committee's pay cut recommendations and "unprecedently bitter and vicious efforts of selfish special interests to disrupt and ultimately destroy the Federal service structure," was voiced last night by the executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employes, following an all-day session.

The executive group declared vigorously against "false economy, which brings sweatshop and stretch-out tactics into Federal personnel administration, which brings lengthened hours without extra compensation, and which deprives many employes of even one day's rest in seven."

The council charged efforts by certain interests to make of the Federal Government an example of drastic and permanent deflation.

"The executive council expresses the conviction of the membership of the National Federation of Federal Employes in affirming that the way out of the present economic dilemma does not lie in crushing Federal services and Federal wages, in policies of deflation and destruction," the statement read, "but in holding wage scales and maintaining and augmenting essential Government services to the American people."

Members of the council, who came here from all sections of the country, said they are convinced the people generally are out of sympathy with such practices, and, once the true condition is known, will emphatically disapprove them.

Montgomery Federation In Heated Pay-Cut Debate

Arising to observe that indorsement of the resolution before it objecting to cuts in Federal pay also would indicate objection to salary cuts in the county, Robert E. Bondy last night precipitated a heated argument that lasted an hour at a meeting of the Montgomery County Civic Federation.

The federation finally voted to reaffirm its previous stand against pay cuts in the Federal Government and overrode an amendment proposed by O. M. Kile, which would delete from the resolution any mention of opposition to cuts after July 1, 1933, which were opposed. The federation also overrode a motion by Mr. Kile to recommit. It made no mention of county pay rolls in its resolution.

The federation voted to ask Maryland representatives in Congress to do all in their power to obtain gas rates equable with those of the District for the county. Frederic P. Lee, president, presented his report of progress for the past year. He urged that more attention be given to obtaining representation from the eastern and rural portions of the county, and lauded the aid given the federation officials by county officials.

Paul Linebarger, legal adviser of China and honorary president of the Friends of China Societies, introduced the visitor as "one of the ten great reform leaders of the world" and as a man capable of ruling India better than any British agent. He said that the occasion was a momentous one because it marks the first time India and the United States had been brought together in a common bond.

SICKNESS AND DEATH RATES DROP IN 1932

Dr. Olson Asserts Economic Slump Has Improved Health of Nation.

Despite adverse economic conditions, sickness and death rates in 1932 were the lowest on record. This statement was made yesterday by Dr. Robert Olson, senior surgeon, U. S. Public Health Service, and now attached to the National Institute of Health, in a talk before the Council of Social Agencies held under the auspices of the health committee, at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Dr. Olson's topic was, "What Place Have Public Health Agencies in the Community Welfare Program?"

In introducing Dr. Olson, Dr. Joseph W. Mountin, chairman of the health committee, called attention to the speaker's work in the Philippines, in Europe, Asia, and all parts of the United States, and paid him a high tribute for his work on public health subjects.

In pointing out the low death rate for 1932, Mr. Olson said that public health workers can not take full credit for this achievement, because of the operation of numerous other aiding factors. Among these he cited favorable weather conditions, absence of serious disease epidemics, better health habits (especially less overeating and overdrinking), more rest and exercise and outdoor enjoyment, which have all, he said, contributed to public health improvement.

Mrs. E. H. Griffith, reporting on the activities of the Parent-Teacher Association during the recent toy campaign, sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies, paused to introduce Mrs. Hugh Bradford, of California, national president of Parent-Teacher Associations; Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders, president of the District of Columbia Association of Parent-Teacher Associations, and Mrs. Frank T. Parsons, associated with Mrs. Griffith in the toy work.

NEW BATTLE BEGINS IN VILLAGE IN SPAIN

town with Vandia to prevent ascertaining the situation there.

At the village of Ripolles, in the Barcelona district, the City Hall was seized by Communists, who raised a red flag and proclaimed a state of "Liberal Communism." Civil guards, after a long battle, forced them to retire. One dead and several wounded were listed.

At Puente de Becos, extremists last night forced passing motorists to alight and kiss the red flag before proceeding.

Reports from Murcia said the rioters there awakened the city, shouting the revolution had triumphed in a majority of the provincial capitals of Spain. A group formed, but after doing some damage to telephone lines dispersed.

Madrid authorities laid the uprisings onto a nation-wide plot to overthrow the present regime. The explanation was that anarchists planned to take advantage of the fact the barracks were manned with small forces over Sunday.

They had expected to seize the barracks and arms, and then have the soldiers flock to their banners, it was said. Authorities expressed surprise at the amount of explosives and arms the Extremists had in their possession.

AMERICA AND JAPAN.

One of the most significant conversations in recent years was that held between President-elect Roosevelt and the Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, in New York yesterday. If foreign governments could have listened in they would have obtained information of the utmost importance, bearing upon the future.

The foreign relations of the United States were not at issue during the recent campaign. Gov. Roosevelt's knowledge of foreign affairs is far above that of the average citizen, because of his experience in the Navy Department and his keen interest in international questions. So far as the public is aware, he holds substantially the same views as those held by President Hoover and Secretary Stimson, which are entertained by the majority of citizens. The President-elect has expressed his opinion in a general way on war debts, maintenance of the gold standard, world co-operation on economic questions, and certain other matters, but his views concerning the Manchurian question are not yet disclosed. It does not seem improbable, however, that these views coincide with those of the present administration.

As the crisis approaches in the Far East, great importance attaches to the attitude of the incoming administration toward the rule or doctrine enunciated by the Hoover administration, refusing to countenance the gains made by an aggressor in violation of treaties. President Hoover holds that while the United States is not required to take action when a foreign nation violates the Kellogg pact in dealing with another, it is equally free to refuse to acknowledge the validity of any treaty or situation arising from such violation. It is not the duty of the United States to resort to war with Japan on account of Manchuria, but neither is it the duty of the United States to acquiesce in what Japan has been doing, or to recognize the regime which Japan hopes to establish.

If Gov. Roosevelt holds a similar view, the course of events in the Far East may turn for the better, after Japan has run to the end of a dangerous adventure. The nations have adopted Mr. Hoover's principle of non-recognition of any regime based upon treaty violations. By adhering to this rule Japan can be brought to realize that the advantages of invasion are not worth their eventual cost. The chances of ultimate peaceable adjustment of the Sino-Japanese quarrel will be improved if the nations will continue to insist that treaties must be observed. On the contrary, if the nations countenance the violation of treaties, all international engagements will be weakened and the world's confidence in the good faith of nations will be so impaired that a violent reaction toward universal preparation for war may be expected.

An era of international good will, based upon confidence in the observance of treaties, or an era of alarms and provocation of war is the natural outcome of the Far Eastern adventure and the attitude of the nations toward it. The nations can not be passive much longer. Japan is pressing forward. They will be compelled soon to consent to the ripping up of treaties, upon which the world depends for peace, or present a solid front against Japanese policy.

It is not necessary that the nations should regard war against Japan as the remedy for the situation. They can exert influences short of force which Japan can not long resist. The domestic situation in Japan is such as to make it impossible for the imperial government to finance a long war which is discountenanced by all nations, and against which they can bring powerful economic weapons. But they must act unitedly if they are to succeed in discouraging Japan from pursuing its policy of trampling upon treaties and ignoring the common right of all nations to enjoy peace based upon the universal pledge of renunciation of war.

PREFERENTIAL LAWS.

Having received renewed commendation at the New York conference as the measure demanded by the farmers the farm allotment bill, now before the House, appears destined to be made law either by the present Congress or the next. Two questions regarding it acquire greater prominence as the bill is discussed and more generally understood. First as to whether it really is a measure of relief acceptable to all, or even a majority, of farmers, and, second, whether a majority of the population as a whole will not condemn legislation whose benefits make both class and sectional distinctions.

The added costs of necessities to the general consumer which will be returned as bonuses to the farmers are, as the bill stands at present, designed to benefit the agricultural products that are distinctly the important crops of the South and West. Eastern farmers who are not extensive raisers of wheat and hogs, or of cotton and tobacco, are beginning to figure out how meagre are the possible bounties they might receive in comparison with the important additions that will be made to the price of many daily staples they must buy.

The added retail costs that the allotment plan would add to retail prices is variously estimated from $600,000,000 to $1,000,000,000. It is held that the bounties on wheat and cotton alone will impose a per capita cost of about $5. New York statisticians have been figuring out what that State could get. The farmers sell about 3,000,000 bushels of wheat a year to the millers. If the bounty should be 60 cents there would be $1,800,000 to divide among 170,000 farmers, or a little more than $10 each. A family of five would be out about $15 on the deal. New England farmers would fare even worse. They could collect an $18,000 bounty on possibly 30,000 bushels of wheat at an increased cost of other things to 500,000 farmers of $2,300,000.

The spirit of American fair play opposes class legislation. It also opposes sectional preferments. The domestic allotment plan combines both these objectionable features. The farmers can be better helped by measures which help all the people.

THE NEW AUTOS.

Automobile manufacturers are doing their best to make it impossible for American drivers to resist any longer the purchase of a new car. With an eye to the 4,000,000 cars that should have been turned in long ago, this year's models offer the double attraction of being better and cheaper than ever before. After viewing the 300 new cars on exhibition at the New York Automobile Show the experts say that more improvements and refinements have been added in the developments of one year than in any three years previously.

Most of the features which are being stressed this year are of a thoroughly practical nature. New standards of mechanical efficiency have been set, but even with increased horsepower, claims are made for savings in fuel consumption. The general price reduction, found in nearly every class, has not resulted in inferior quality, but improvements in production methods and the development of new alloys and materials have made possible higher quality cars in the lower price range.

The machines now on display indicate a trend toward increasing horsepower without sacrificing fuel and oil economy. The lighter and more durable parts which have been developed in better metal combinations enhance thermal efficiency. Operation has been simplified with gear sets which make shifting easier and safer.

The automobile industry is preparing to launch an intensive selling campaign through the entire United States this year, believing with many others that the bottom of the depression was reached last year. The need of new cars and replacements has never been greater, and salesmen have never had as many good talking points for new cars as they have for the present models.

THE IRISH CAMPAIGN.

Few countries take their politics more seriously than does Ireland. A first-class political storm blew out of a relatively clear sky last Tuesday, and the Free State is already in the midst of a momentous campaign. By January 24 the contest will be over, and Ireland will go along with President Eamon de Valera or reverse its policy and follow ex-President William T. Cosgrave.

Mr. de Valera's decision to hold an election at this particular time was very shrewd. His excuse for dissolution of the Dail was the opposition of the Labor party to his proposed wage cuts. But the underlying reason why Mr. de Valera brought about the election was his desire to promote his anti-British policy and to thwart the Conservatives' efforts to merge several factions for a united drive against him. Mr. Cosgrave was trying to organize a new party when the election was announced. Obviously there is no time between now and January 24 to bind loose factions together and organize a united campaign against the Republicans. The Conservatives had to suspend their plans and allow each faction to enter the election on its own responsibility.

While his opponents are still disorganized President de Valera hopes to secure a new mandate from the people that will enable him to carry on for four or five years. In that time he would be able to complete his preparations for divorcing the Free State from the British commonwealth of nations. Furthermore, victory for Mr. de Valera would mean the end of the oath of allegiance to King George and would raise another obstacle to payment of the land annuities owed to Great Britain. The present Dail passed a bill abolishing the oath, but that measure was not approved by the Senate. If it is passed again by a new Dail it will become law without approval of the upper house.

Thus the campaign will turn upon the relations of the Free State to Great Britain and not upon the labor question, which was used as an excuse for calling the election. Mr. de Valera and his Republican followers are determined to convert the Free State into a republic, although they would bring about the change gradually. The first step, after definitely abolishing the oath and the annuities, would be to get rid of the governor general, who represents the British crown in Ireland. The Republican policy also contemplates "making over" the economic life of the country. Mr. de Valera aims at a measure of economic self-sufficiency for Ireland. Ranches that now supply cattle for the British market would be converted into wheat farms, and industry would be stimulated. Apparently the Irish Napoleon thinks he can make an empire out of the southern portion of this small island.

Mr. Cosgrave contends that the Free State must remain a part of the British empire to take advantage of the British market and the benefits of the Ottawa trade agreements. He promises relief from the retaliatory British tariffs against Irish cattle and other products, which have caused widespread distress to Free State farmers. He would build up the Free State as part of the British commonwealth on friendly terms with London.

Ireland is thus again at the cross-roads. This 20-day campaign may seal her fate as a tiny economic unit, lost in a labyrinth of tariff walls, or restore to her the promise of future growth as an integral part of a great commonwealth.

Drys and wets oppose the Senate committee's repeal resolution. If they would agree upon their grounds of opposition the great likker war might come to an end.

Not having been present, Senator Borah reserves the right to believe whatever he likes regarding the conversation between President Hoover and Premier Laval.

Beer and April Fool's day are drawing dangerously together.

FALSE ECONOMIC PREMISE OF PHILIPPINE BILL.

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The Hawes-Cutting bill came upon the political stage as a plan of Filipino liberation and went down in congressional deliberations as a farm-relief measure of doubtful value.

The bill's economic plan rests on the premise that certain Philippine imports offer injurious competition to American farm products. The accuracy of this premise was taken for granted. No one even hinted that it should be tested and proved.

The fact is that competition does not exist between Philippine sugar and beet sugar in America. However, it must be admitted that Philippine sugar does compete with Cuban sugar, which is wholesome.

Beet sugar is produced and consumed in a territory comprising roughly the Middle West and the inter-mountain regions. This territory is a no-man's land for imported sugars, for it is effectively protected by a high wall of overland freight rates.

Not a pound of Philippine sugar enters or can enter the beet sugar territory. Conversely, no sizable amounts of beet sugar go to the seaboards where imported sugar dominates. It is conceded that if Philippine sugar disappears from the American market it will be Cuban, not beet, sugar that will take its place.

The dominance of beet sugar in its territory is so complete that consumers there, who are almost all farmers, have to pay from 10 to 25 points more than the consumers in the competitive areas. The average American sugar beet farmer complains more against the beet sugar manufacturer and high freights than against the Philippines.

The most sanguine beet sugar manufacturer does not hope that the industry will greatly expand, convinced of the essential unsoundness of increasing the volume of uneconomic sugar and bringing in thousands of Mexican seasonal laborers who are indispensable in the production of sugar beets.

It must be forthrightly admitted that it is economically unwise for the Philippines to refine sugar or make cordage out of hemp for export to the United States, for that would be competing with the Philippine customers in America, the American buyers of Philippine raw sugar and Manila hemp fiber. This bad business policy needs correcting before it develops too far.

Coconut oil irks the dairy industry because of its use as a component part in margarine. Here again, the margarine consumers are mostly the poorer class of farmers and others who can not afford the price of butter, which is concededly the more nutritious article.

The bulk of Philippine coconut oil goes to the soap industry, where, according to that industry itself, it can not be properly substituted by any other material. Much of the coconut oil used in margarine comes from mills in the United States employing duty-free copra imported from different countries.

The competition of coconut oil with flaxseed oil is a myth, for coconut oil is never utilized as a drying agent. So is its alleged competition with cottonseed oil, for 99 per cent of this cotton by-product is used in edible compounds, having been "kicked upstairs" by coconut oil out of the soap kettle, where it commanded much lower prices.

So while subscribing to the wisdom of agricultural diversification in the Philippines it is not inconsistent to point out that the economic premise of the Hawes-Cutting bill is false.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE GENUINE JOY.

What sorrows has a man to tell
If those at home say all is well?
If those he loves report in glee
That health is theirs, what can there be
Of grave anxiety and doubt
For him to sit and fret about?

For what are pain and hurt and care
And all the burdens man must bear
If when the dreary day is o'er
A smiling child is at the door
And at the table where they sit
Is heard the mirth of youthful wit?

Is life a thing to be compressed
Into man's utmost and his best,
Or may it drift along or run
Like summer brooks beneath the sun,
Loving the shore line's flowers and trees
Before they join the mightier seas?

What matters loss of place or pride
Or glory on life's selfish side
If those at home are undismayed
By any petty failure made?
If those we love are hale and strong
Then nothing can be very wrong.

No Matter What Power the Motor Has, It Will Stall When You Overload It

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A TRAVELER in India many years ago attributed the laziness and indifference of the farmers to want of security.

When they had made a crop, the tax gatherer appeared and seized for the prince any portion of it that he desired. He might take a fourth or three-fourths.

If the farmers resisted, they were beaten and driven to the hills to watch the burning of their shelters. And eventually it occurred to them that industry was a poor virtue if it served only to satisfy the greed of their master.

Stalin tried to feed his industrial workers by forcing the peasants to sell their surplus at a price fixed by him. It worked the first year, but after that there wasn't any surplus. The peasants simply refused to exert themselves to produce a crop for the government to steal.

There is a law of diminishing returns in taxation as in the height of skyscrapers.

The man who produces wealth will endure much injustice to avoid conflict with the law; but there comes a time when his soul sickens, and then he says to his masters: "I am through. Never again will I turn a hand to produce wealth for you to seize."

Do you know why the pioneers labored so hard and so cheerfully despite danger and misery? Because they were as free and as independent as the eagles that soared above them.

No meddling agents of authority told them what to do or how to do it. No tax gatherer stood at their elbows to seize the better part of their gains. What they won was theirs to keep, and no law interfered with their chosen way of life so long as they did no hurt to their neighbors.

Do you wish to see good times again?

Then let the government concern itself with the proper functions of government—protecting honest men from rogues, and collecting from industry the minimum toll needed to pay expenses.

Then let it say to the decent: "Do what you will; go where you will; think and say what you will; and so long as you remain honest and injure nobody, no agent of the law will meddle in your affairs."

Can't you picture the result—the new birth of hope, the reawakening of ambition, the eagerness to build and expand and fight for a fortune under this new guarantee of security?

That is all men need—a new birth of liberty to make trying worth while.

The best of mules will quit trying to pull when you give them a load that can't be moved.

POLITICAL COMMENT

The Hoover Plan.

Wilmington News.

President Hoover is nettled, and justly so, with those Democrats who have blocked his plans for the merger of various United States agencies in the interest of economy and efficiency.

Some leaders in both parties dislike these economic plans, for their idea is to have as many jobs as possible to distribute among the henchmen. Mr. Hoover has reviewed the history of a quarter of century of effort to effect reorganization of the functions of the Government. He declared that "either Congress must keep its hands off now or must give to my successor much larger powers of independent action than given to any President if there is ever to be reorganization."

"Concurrent Power."

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The purpose of repeal is to restore to the States the power to deal with the liquor traffic as their people may see fit. The retention of "concurrent power" in Congress to regulate this traffic within the States would mean either the perpetuation of Federal enforcement, which it is the purpose of repeal to abolish, or else continual agitation for its exercise. Straight repeal would prevent Congress from dictating to the States how they should handle this matter within their own borders. It would not prevent Congres from extending continued protection to dry States against their wet neighbors.

Before and After

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Roosevelt to cruise southern waters before March 4," says a Washington news item. After March 4 change "southern" to "troubled."

Iowa's Plan for Reducing Taxes.

Minneapolis Journal.

Iowa's legislative interim committee, after laboring nearly two years to devise ways of easing the tax burden on property, reports to the governor that the effective way to help the taxpayers is to reduce public spending.

This conclusion is backed up with 60 legislative bills calling for specific economies. Some of these are to be effected by consolidating certain offices and departments and by abolishing others, but all bear directly on the committee's program of reducing taxes by reducing spending.

More and more citizens everywhere are coming to the common sense conclusion that the problem of high taxes can be best solved by the same rule now used by the prudent family—live within income by cutting expenses.

Solutions No Good.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Alexandrian Calls Attention to Government's Alleged Injustice to Street Railway Company.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let me ask your indulgence for a few lines in your valuable paper, of which I have been a reader for over 30 years. The Washington Post has always had a large circulation in the City of Alexandria and in the City of Washington and vicinity. Its readers are numbered in the hundreds of thousands. It gives both sides of any controversy a chance to be heard in its columns.

Some time ago the Planning Commission of the Government decided that the tracks of the Washington, Alexandria & Mount Vernon Railway were in the way of intended improvements. The station and car tracks were ordered removed, and at the same time the company, whose president is R. L. May, was refused a terminal north of Pennsylvania avenue. A terminal anywhere else would have entailed a still further loss in revenue.

This line was in other hands for over 35 years. They secured all the cream, and when Mr. May's company bought it, about four years ago, he obtained the "skim milk," for many thousands of dollars had to be spent on it. Little did Mr. May know that in less than five years it would be junked before his company had made a dollar. In addition to this, Congress (the party that took his road) refused to pay him one cent for damages.

This looks like "might makes right," when any one in power can take another's belongings without the slightest consideration being shown the owner. I am pleased to note that Senator Swanson and Congressman Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, have introduced bills in both the Senate and the House allowing Mr. May to sue before the Court of Claims. Perhaps here the wrong done him and his company will be righted and he and his company will come into what is rightfully theirs, which should have been granted without such suit. I am also glad that others in Washington, recognizing the fairness of his contention, have allowed him $16,000 for his portion of the tracks on Fourteenth street.

It has been said that everything comes to him who waits, but if you visit the cemeteries you will discover, on tablets of stone, names of those who still are waiting on claims owed by the United States Government for services performed.

GEORGE H. HAYDEN.

Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard, of Noted Ancestry, Passes Away in House Where She Was Born.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard, who died at her residence, 1617 H street northwest, in this city on January 8, was one of Washington's noted women and came from most distinguished American ancestry.

Mrs. Bayard, born Mary Willing Clymer, was a great-granddaughter of George Clymer, signer of the Declaration of Independence for Pennsylvania and of the Constitution of the United States. Her grandfather, Henry Clymer, married Mary Willing, of a very well-known Pennsylvania family.

Her father, George Clymer, was a medical officer of the U. S. Navy before and during the Civil War and was fleet surgeon, South Atlantic Fleet, under Admiral Dupont during the Civil War. He retired as Medical Director U. S. N., in 1869.

Her mother was Mary Shubrick, daughter of Admiral Shubrick, a distinguished officer of the Navy of the United States.

Mrs. Bayard was born in Washington, in the house in which she died.

GEORGE CLYMER SHAW.
Brig. Gen. U. S. Army, retired.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see in the paper that the United States Government began the last half of the fiscal year, January 2, with a deficit for the first half year of $1,153,766,424. The Government spent $6,904,000 each day more than its income. All of this was done by our Government during the worst depression we have ever known, when we were least able to stand such extravagance. This deficit is upon us after Congress has sought every possible way to "lay it on us" in taxation. Oh, that it had tried reducing expenses! I also observe that every newspaper that I have picked up in the last month contained some form of propaganda favoring a reduction in Government expenses. Good; keep that up!

Were it not for the "relief" Congress, we might get relief. We have 750,000 people receiving salaries from the Federal Government. We are not using them all, but we are paying them all. Several times the President has tried to discharge those that have no substantial duties. Congress has in each case defeated him in such measures. President Cleveland consulted J. G. Carlisle, then Secretary of Treasury, and learned that there were many clerks in his department who were not needed. The President ordered their dismissal. As soon as the news was out the legislative halls were practically deserted by the members while Congress made a rush on the President demanding that he revoke his order of dismissal of useless Government employes.

I see in the paper there is some talk of putting into the hands of President Roosevelt the reorganization of the Federal Government, so as to reduce expenses. Let us pray that such may be done, and that the President will make his name immortal as soon as he enters upon the duties of his office, by cutting half the expenses. Then it will be too high.

EDWARD N. LAWSON.

SALARY CUT ASKED BY ARLINGTON BAR

Tax-Reduction Resolution Is Also Adopted; Group to Offer Plan Named.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Bar Association, at its luncheon meeting yesterday at Windsor Arms, adopted a resolution offered by Charles B. Green that salaries be reduced and that no salary be paid to any county official in excess of that paid to the Circuit Court Judge, whose salary is $4,500 a year.

The resolution further sets forth that due to the strenuous economic conditions it behooves those in authority to use all means to accomplish tax reduction in every way to lessen the burden of the people.

Declaring that public utility rates are excessive in Arlington County, another resolution, offered by John Green and adopted, calls for official action looking to an early contest of public service rates.

President Claude O. Thomas announced appointment of the following tax and economy committee: Emery N. Hosmer, chairman; Capt. Crandal Mackey, Roy Fulcher, Bryan Gordon, F. M. Walter, jr., and John L. Green. The committee will appear before the board and ask for a reduction in taxes.

The President announced he would appoint a special committee to take up with proper authorities the location of a central postoffice building for Arlington County.

County Manager Roy S. Braden and Harry A. Fellows, chairman of the Arlington County Board, who will go to Richmond today to confer with the State fee commissioner on the question of salaries of fee officers, also will confer with State Highway Commissioner H. G. Shirley on a traffic light at Lee highway and Harrison street. This matter was presented to the county board at its recent meeting by a delegation of Cherrydale citizens.

The East Falls Church Citizens Association will meet tonight in the Community Hall.

Monroe H. Stockett, chairman of the road committee of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, will be principal speaker.

Thomas Nelson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at the home of Mrs. Mae Pinckney Williams, 215 South Clarendon avenue, Clarendon.

Mrs. Pemmie Rogers Yetton, president of the Arlington County Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, announces appointment of Mrs. Lulu McLean Taylor and Mrs. Eula T. Maffett as a program committee to arrange for the annual Lee, Jackson, Maury birthday celebration to be held January 19 at the home of Mrs. Ashton C. Jones, at Clarendon.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

Cecil B. De Mille.

No spectacle in years has so completely filled the screen either with staggering action or colorful pictorial embellishment, or both, as this mammoth piece of pageantry depicting the steadfastness, the struggle and the martyrdom of the early Christians. There are no bare or empty spots in the composition of Mr. De Mille's mighty canvases.

Perhaps the most significant index to the magnitude of the whole work is to be found in the fact that it opens with the thrilling spectacle of Rome in flames—a scene of such vast and far-flung destruction that it might in all reason be expected to serve as the picture's climax instead of its introductory sequence. It is an eloquent commentary upon the directorial ability of Cecil Blount De Mille that his film did not trail off into a flagrant anticlimax after this expansive and thrilling start.

When it is the wish to make clear that Poppaea, Empress of Rome, is to be introduced being laved in the milk of asses in the semiprivacy of her capacious marble bath, Mr. De Mille shows us the yield of not one, but seemingly all of the long-eared beasts there are in the world being passed by a numerous bucket brigade to the tank from which the empress' bath is fed.

Again, to make sure that the Christians are in for a hideous martyrdom in the arena with the lions, no single, vicarious roar of any unseen solitary lion is employed for the suggestion, but, instead, dozens of the noble animals are shown snarling and snapping at each other as they fight their way up the rough stone steps from their cages to the floor of the Circus Maximus, where the brutal gladiatorial games are being held to assuage the ennui of the Caesar Nero. All the tent shows in southern California, plus the Gay lion farm, and any other breeding spots there may be on the West Coast, must have been depopulated to supply the king of beasts in such numbers as here shown.

And when Poppaea, while engaged in the leisurely processes of her elaborate lacteal ablutions, feels moved to indulge in a little acid comment on the behavior of Marcus Superbus toward her rival, the Christian girl, Mercia, Mr. De Mille takes the trouble to train his camera on a gorgeous Persian cat lapping up milk from the edge of the pool. As she induces Dacia, the bearer of further gossip, to join her in the quaint rituals of the sunken tub, Mr. De Mille takes the trouble to train his camera on two gorgeous Persian felines lapping from the edge of the pool, thus subtly indicating that the volume of "catty" remarks has been doubled.

Once more, what could be more perfect symbolism for the youthful fidelity of Stephanus, the lad cruelly tried by fire, than that his pet dog should be shown whenever it is the desire to emphasize his absence from home and the dire threat of his disappearance to the cause of the Christians with whom he lives?

And throughout the action, a flock of preening, strutting pouter pigeons effectively satirize the colossal egotism, the arrogance and the pomp of the pagan court of a decadent empire.

These are only a few of the obvious highlights of a detailed and rounded treatment that converts "The Sign of the Cross" into a tremendously impressive example of imaginative, illuminating and intelligent direction, as well as a supreme demonstration of the resourcefulness of the modern property man.

Whoever kept track of all the gadgets, widgets and whatnots used in this production deserves to be written down among the master minds of the ages!

Corroborating our notion that Mr. McFadden's reconstruction of the early history of "The Sign of the Cross" in this country, as communicated to the dramatic department of The Sunday Post, would arouse grateful memories in more than one Washington breast, Mr. Albert Kirchner, for 28 years a resident of Washington, but a native of St. Louis, Mo., calls up to say that back in the middle '90s, on a Wednesday night in Holy Week, he attended the second American presentation of the play in the Olympic Theater in St. Louis.

Mr. Kirchner points out that St. Louis looked upon Wilson Barrett as peculiarly its own and that for that reason Mr. Barrett gave his play its premiere performance in that city; also that the inspiration for the play had come to Mr. Barrett two years before during an earlier visit to St. Louis in the course of which he had engaged Robert Ingersoll in a friendly argument on issues raised by that noted agnostic's views. "The Sign of the Cross" was his answer to Mr. Ingersoll's widely expounded pet theories.

Mr. Kirchner goes on to say that he was so deterred from attending the premiere by churchly scruples against so seemingly unnecessary an indulgence during a period of such sacred significance, but was convinced upon second thought that so devout a play would be no less inspiring than attendance at divine worship.

Unfortunately, this was a quality of Mr. Barrett's play that has been largely sacrificed to the picture's lust for splendor and sensationalism.

A long letter from Lina Basquette, recently seen on the stage of Loew's Fox, whisked overnight from her escritoire in the Hotel Delmonico, Park avenue at Fifty-ninth street, New York, to my massive desk, heavily inlaid with cigaret burns and strange white stains, in addition to many personal things that are extremely pleasant to read, remarks: "After a happy week in Baltimore, am back in the big city preparing for future dates in the various and sundry Loew theaters. About the middle of February, Mr. Hayes (Teddy Hayes, her husband, former trainer of Jack Dempsey) and I expect to take a trip to England, as he has arranged a picture contract over there for me, as well as 'in the flesh' performances in the bigger music halls. However, I go on record right now and solemnly promise that when I return to the States I shall not be boring my friends with an acquired English accent, but shall probably be more Yankee than ever just for spite!

"Tell Shirley Povich that Teddy and I saw Schaaf beat the daylights out of Poreda the other night at the Garden, much to our sorrow.

"And here's hoping the D. C. reformers have stopped worrying about La Basquette's rhumba * * * After the excitement in Washington, Baltimore went for it in a big way. Hohum, so it goes."

Yes, indeed, so it does! And the best of luck and a happy and prosperous New Year to you two, too, both here and over in the 'alls.

Then from Ray Henderson the definite assurance that as previously announced, Katharine Cornell will present "Alien Corn," a new modern play by Sidney Howard, as the second production of her season in the Belasco Theater, New York, immediately following "Lucrece." Guthrie McClintic will stage "Alien Corn," which will open on tour in February.

"Alien Corn" is a play of today, its scene being in a small university town in the midwest. Mr. Henderson is further helpful in reminding us that the title is taken from Keats' "Ode to a Nightingale":

"Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick for home,
She stood in tears amid the alien corn."

In these days of uncertainty about the eighteenth amendment, Mr. Henderson, I'd like to make sure whether this "alien corn" business is really from an ode to a nightingale or a cuplet to a swallow!

Prince Georges Pastors Fight Blue Law Repeal

Resolutions opposing legalization of gambling, Sunday movies, or repeal of the Prince Georges County liquor law have been adopted by the County Ministers Association and are expected to be sent to the county's delegation to the Legislature.

The resolution opposing the repeal of the blue laws not only voiced disapproval of Sunday amusements, but opposed a referendum on the law, because it would entail an unnecessary expense. A number of other organizations in the county have already gone on record as favoring Sunday movies, on the ground that it will keep money in the county.

D. C. Man Expires In Maryland Crash

Deaths in Auto Accidents Mount to Five; Woman Hurt.

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Two deaths from injuries received in week-end automobile accidents occurred here this morning, bringing the toll for Maryland to five. Norman Clayburn, 37, of 1000 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, Washington, died at the Washington County Hospital here of a fractured skull received when his automobile collided with a truck at a street intersection yesterday.

William K. Beck, 21, of Baltimore, a hitch hiker, died almost at the same time as Clayburn at the Washington County Hospital from injuries received when the automobile in which he had been granted a ride left the highway and overturned near Clear Spring, Md.

Miss Catherine Kuhn, of Washington, who was with Clayburn, is still in a serious condition. She received a fractured skull and a broken leg.

Bank Cashier Answers HoldupOrderWith Shots

Rural Hall, N. C., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—E. E. Shore, cashier of the Commercial & Farmers Bank of Rural Hall, frustrated an attempted holdup today when he refused to obey a command to turn over the bank's money, fired his pistol at two would-be robbers and chased them from the building.

A third robber, who had waited outside, was left behind when his two companions fled from the bank, jumped into their automobile and made good their escape. The third man also escaped in the excitement, but a posse was searching the vicinity for him while officers were scouring the area near Winston-Salem, where the robbers' automobile was abandoned, for the other two.

GAYETY

"HUMMING HONIES." Empire Burlesque attraction, featuring Georgia Southern, Mae Dix, Gladys Smith, Violet Jordan, Sam Raynor, "Bimbo" Davis, Lee Hickman, Joy St. Clair and Billy Rogers. Reviewed by Bud Hyman.

Newcomers into the realms of girlesque shows, as well as old-timers craving nature in the raw, will find "Humming Honies," the current attraction at the Gayety Theater, sufficiently satisfying.

Georgia Southern, guest star, again received a generous share of applause and rightfully so. The public seems to like her and she apparently returns the feeling in full measure.

In a more humorous vein, Mae Dix is sufficiently entertaining to warrant her inclusion in any laugh parade. In the one bedroom scene of the evening, Miss Dix and Sam Raynor prove beyond doubt that being "Friendly Enemies" can be a diverting business.

No member of the present cast seems to get such real pleasure out of her work as does Joy St. Clair, the girl with the friendly smile, who, with less restraint, would probably soon rank among the topnotchers of burlesque artistes.

Several dances by Billy Rogers, one of the chorines, and a young woman, whose name did not appear on the program, were very well done, while numbers by Gladys Smith and Violet Jordan, both newcomers, received merited applause.

Sam Raynor, "Bimbo" Davis and Lee Hickman pleased the audience in their many comedy bits in which they were ably assisted by Parsons and Sponsler, both straight men of ability.

The several changes in the chorus seem to have a deterring rather than a beneficial effect upon the group efforts in the direction of precision.

Laurel Man Injured by Auto.

Struck by an automobile while crossing the Baltimore boulevard near his home in Laurel, Md., yesterday, John H. Collins was taken to a Baltimore hospital to be treated for a fractured arm and lacerations of the scalp. Fred Benedict, jr., of Kingston, N. Y., said to be the driver of the car which struck Collins, was arrested by State Policeman C. W. Cubbage and charged with reckless driving.

TUESDAY JANUARY 10, 1933 SPORTS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

A FUMBLE that occurred in 1926 was recovered last Sunday by Harvard and Princeton who fell on each other's necks and announced that the split in football relations had been healed with no traces of a scar and that 1934 and 1935 would see them meeting on the gridiron again.

Score another victory for the depression. This department does not know how soon the interest on Soldiers' Field and Palmer Field bonds fall due, if at all, but it is significant that Harvard and Princeton were able to nurse their grievances only until declining gate receipts demanded the restoration of their natural rivalry with its capacity crowds.

For six years Harvard has been scheduling Army and Michigan and other attractions calculated to offset the loss of the Princeton game, and Princeton has been meeting Navy and Chicago among other opponents in lieu of the Harvard battle, but it is not on record that these substitute contests packed the stadiums of Johnny Harvard and Old Nassau.

Princeton Initiated Actual Break.

This department recalls that it was Princeton which actually severed relations with Harvard, despite the fact that Harvard's student publication, the Lampoon, injected the first ill feeling between the institutions by lampooning the Princeton student body as a whole and casting serious reflections on its fitness to mingle with Harvard even in football.

But the chief cause of the break was not the fact that student friction had been irritated to the fighting point, or the report that impressions of Princetonian signet rings were found on the busted beaks of Harvard linemen after the 1926 game. The real rub was Harvard's refusal to alter its schedule in Princeton's favor.

As a member of the then potent Big Three, Princeton was playing Harvard and Yale on successive Saturdays, whereas both Harvard and Yale were able to schedule Brown as a breather between their games with other members of the Big Three. Princeton for years importuned Harvard to give the Tigers an earlier or later date, but was met with steadfast refusals which tested the tensile strength of Princeton's patience until it snapped and resulted in the severance of relations.

College Coaches Agree With Pros.

Tim Mara's suggestion that the National Professional Football League abolish the extra point has long been a pet theory of certain coaches of college teams.

This proposal is brought up annually before the rules committee, only to be voted down, despite eloquent pleas of the coaches that a single point made when the offensive team has a huge advantage over the defending eleven is not sufficient to decide the ultimate winner and loser.

But these exponents of the abolition of the extra point usually have a method in their efforts. With their high-salaried jobs usually hinging on the number of defeats sustained during a season, the coaches are unwilling to take their chances on the extra point and this department believes that these coaches are the same who successfully urged the dead-ball rule on fumbles which stripped the underdog of its best chance of winning a game and made the contest more safe for the team which was supposed to win.

Rudolph Takes Lead In Cue Play With Ponzi

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, former national pocket billiard champion, captured the first two blocks of his 1,750 point match with Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, today.

Rudolph won the afternoon block 125 to 28, in five innings with high runs of 68 and 55, and accounted for the second block, 125 to 50, in six innings, with a high cluster of 37. Ponzi's best run in the matinee contest was ten, while he put together 24 for a high run in tonight's game.

Influenza Threat Halts Army Sports

Game With G. U. Five Is Among Week's Contests Canceled by Cadets.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—In order to prevent the spread of a mild outbreak of influenza prevalent in this section, Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, today ordered cancellation of all athletic contests this week, the cadet hop Saturday and chapel services.

Authorities explained that the move was largely precautionary as only a few light cases of the disease had been discovered in the corps. All cadet classes and formations will be held daily.

The athletic contests canceled included a basket ball game Wednesday with Lafayette College and five sports events scheduled for Saturday—basket ball with Georgetown, hockey with Boston University, polo with Princeton, swimming with Colgate and gymnastics with Bowdoin.

Tech Facing Western in Debut

Contest Today First Test for Boyd's Team in Series.

Best Action Promised as Eastern Clashes With Roosevelt.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

AFTER a rather tame beginning of the high school series last week, action typical of last season's championship race, when the heart specialists did a landslide business, is promised today in the games billed for Tech's spacious gym. Eastern and Roosevelt lock horns in the feature at 3:30 o'clock, with Tech making its series debut against Western in the nightcap.

Eastern lost everything but its pants in the Central game last week, saving them only because they were buttoned on, but it can partially redeem itself with a victory over the Bears today.

There has been considerably rehashing of that game and a great many fans concur in the belief that Eastern's stage-fright, laid the team wide open to the potent attack of the Mount Pleasanters. There is no doubt that Central touched off some dynamite under the Light Blue.

Roosevelt, although rough and ragged in spots, had the earmarks of a good team and it enters today's fray an even choice. The Bears routed Western in a highly efficient manner once they hit their stride. They passed well, were fast in cutting for the basket and not a bit bashful about running up the point score.

Praise Spoils Players, Says Woodworth.

Coach Lynn Woodworth is loath to give the team too much praise. Long experience has taught him that it spoils players.

"What these youngsters read in the papers is gospel truth to them," he sa'd yesterday. "Consequently, if the sports writers comment favorably on a certain player's work his cranium expands a trifle, making it more difficult for the coach to handle him.

"In 1929, when I was coaching at old Business, I had a player who was an in-and-outer. When in form he could make baskets with both eyes shut, and when off color couldn't make one snowbird in ten.

"During the season he was afflicted with boils, and, though they had no effect on his work, an alert sports writer got wind of it and wrote a story saying the boy was hampered on the court by his boils. One morning before classes he came dashing into my office, picked up the morning paper and thumbed madly through its pages to the sports sheet. Naturally, I was inquisitive, so I asked what he was so anxious to see."

"I have to see how my boils are today," was the reply.

Tech Develops Inferiority Complex.

"It used to be that they were overconfident. Now, after seeing Central play, they have developed an inferiority complex," Boyd said in a hopeless tone yesterday. "If their spirit doesn't rise by Friday, when we meet Central, I may have to use some of these team managers and their assistants," he said, waving his arm in the direction of a small army of boys.

"On a second thought, that's a pretty good way of getting some work out of these birds."

Tech has three games to play in four days, counting the high school series games, so the coach let it off lightly with only a two-hour scrimmage against Gallaudet yesterday.

"Too much work will make them stale," he explained.

Scattered around the gymnasium were the assistant managers tabulating the number of shots made and missed. The consensus revealed that one in every third found its mark.

"Oh, it's not that we're good," Boyd stated, "Gallaudet is simply off color today."

He evidently spoke the truth, for over on the opposite bench Wally Krug, Gallaudet coach, sat with head between hands propped up on both knees, the spirit of dejection. Krug looked like a man who couldn't make up his mind whether to fire the entire team or start them in a tough ping pong tournament, thereby disposing of them.

Loughran Fights Levinsky Tonight

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—Tommy Loughran and King Levinsky were primed for their battle tomorrow night at Convention Hall, in the outstanding bout of the winter boxing season in Philadelphia.

Levinsky, impressive in recent battles with Max Baer and Primo Carnera in which he narrowly dropped decisions, is held the favorite. The bout will be Loughran's first since he won a decision over Steve Hamas to avenge an earlier beating.

Two Iowa Court Stars Declared Ineligible

Iowa City, Iowa, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Edward Break and Ivan Blackmer, University of Iowa basket ball players, were ruled "technically ineligible" by the Western Conference eligibility committee, according to a telegram received today by Dr E. H. Lauer, Hawkeye athletic director.

The two players were barred from competition by the eligibility committee of the Iowa Athletic Board December 30, after an investigation by Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, that information had been filed against them.

SANSTOL FIT FOR BATTLE TONIGHT

Norwegian Brimming With Confidence for Mack Bout.

By DAVE HERMAN.

PETE SANSTOL, Norway's fleet little wizard of the ring and most important contender for the world's championship, who stoutly maintains that clean living is two-thirds of the fight game, breezed into Washington yesterday morning, registered at a local hotel, spent most of the day touring the famous buildings hereabouts, and before retiring early declared he was in wonderful shape for tonight's match with Jimmy Mack at Portner's Arena in Alexandria.

Tipping the scales at 120 pounds, Sanstol, a bundle of nervous energy, brimming over with confidence, made it known that he is being groomed for another shot at Al Brown's bantamweight championship in either June or July, at Montreal.

"I just returned from a visit to Montreal," Sanstol remarked, "and my friends there informed me that they are arranging another match with Brown. In our 15-round fight last August a year ago we drew a gate of $25,000. Brown at present is in Europe, and I understand he will return to this country in March."

Sanstol Tours City.

The first time he has spent more than a day in the Nation's Capital, Sanstol, accompanied by his trainer, Ned Johnston, visited the White House, the Treasury Department and other points of interest. Later in the day he was the guest of the Norwegian Minister, Halvard N. Bachke, at his home on Massachusetts avenue.

Sanstol will enter the ring tonight without the presence of his manager, Charlie Johnston, brother of the Madison Square matchmaker. Johnston was taken suddenly ill, Sanstol explained. The burden of seconding the Norwegian champion and 1932 second ranking bantamweight will fall upon the sturdy shoulders of Ned Johnston.

Jimmy Mack, two-fisted battler from Philadelphia, who recently conquered Billy Landers at Portner's and Matty White in his home town, will arrive early this afternoon with the board of strategy, composed of Joe Ferguson, Johnny Loftus and Eddie Burns. Loftus trained Stanley Ketchell when he was at the zenith of his power in the squared circle.

Won Prestige Against Schwartz.

Sanstol's victorious showing against Benny Schwartz at Portner's on December 19 won him a host of admirers, who have clamored for his return. Sanstol has lost but three fights in his career—to Al Brown, Joe Scalfaro in 1930 and Joe Eulo on a foul in 1927. He has decisioned among others Phil Tobias, Archie Bell, Eugene Huat and Joe Scalfaro. A sure-fire body puncher, he is fast afoot, shifty, and likes to punch with the rapidity with which a drumstick travels during a fast beat.

An old-timer, Joe Chaney, of Baltimore, whose more famous brother once held a world's record for knockouts, shows his wares in the eight-round semiwindup with Lloyd Phelps, of Arizona. Chaney is a smart body puncher; Phelps, a rugged and aggressive fighter.

Doug Swetnam and Izzy Caplan, of Baltimore, will clash in the six-round main preliminary. Two changes were made in the two four-rounders. Leroy Dugan, Arkansas youngster whose fighting has been impressive here, has been substituted for Eddie Compton, and will be pitted against Young Gentile. Leroy Zinkham, former lightweight amateur champion of Maryland, will replace Izzy Raines in the duel with Whitey Saylor.

Tickets are on sale at Vic's Sport Shop.

BOXING BITS SELECTIONS—Sanstol to beat Mack; Chaney to beat Phelps; Caplan to beat Swetnam; Dugan to beat Gentile; Zinkham to beat Saylor.

French List Davis Cup Play Draw February 2

Paris, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The French Tennis Federation, holder of the Davis Cup, today announced that the draw for the 1933 international tennis competition would be made February 2.

Entries for Davis Cup play close at Paris January 31. Only 9 teams had entered at the time of the last public announcement, several days ago as compared to the 30 which competed last year, but most if not all of the laggards are expected to enter before the deadline.

Canada, which was not included in the first list, announced Saturday that she would have a team in the North American zone again.

Los Angeles Open Won By Wood

Jersey Pro's Total of 281 Wins Tourney by 5 Strokes.

By BRIAN BELL.

WILTSHIRE COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Craig Wood, tall, blond New Jersey golf professional, showed today that nothing succeeds like success when he won the eighth playing of the Los Angeles open golf tournament with a 72-hole score of 281.

Wood also won the San Francisco match play open and the Pasadena open, making a clean sweep of the California open tournaments for the 1932-1933 winter season.

The hard-hitting pro from Deal was three strokes under par for the four rounds of competition and never once bowed to perfect figures for the exacting Wilshire course. His play of 69—71—70—71 represented two rounds dead level with the old man of the links and two better than the card.

Diegel and Hunter Tied For Second.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, and Willie Hunter, Los Angeles pro, tied for second place with 72-hole scores of 285. Hunter, who was British amateur champion more than a decade ago, holed a 12-foot putt for a par four to tie Diegel's mark for the championship.

Harold Sampson, slim lightweight pro from Burlingame, Calif., came in just as darkness settled over the course with a subpar 68, the best round of the day, to take fourth place with a total of 287. Sampson knocked in a putt from 10 feet for a birdie three to escape a tie with Charles Guest at 288.

Gene Sarazen, British and American open champion, was forced to withdraw from competition after the third round and go to a Santa Monica hospital for treatment for a severe cold which threatened to turn into influenza. The New York star practically staggered through his morning round, which he started against the advice of his friends. He could do no better than 74 in the morning round.

Wood Nets $1,525 for Victory.

Wood collected $1,525.50 as first money, the gate receipts exceeding the guaranteed $5,000 by $636.98. Diegel and Hunter received $746.50. Sampson's cut was $565. Guest took $395.50. Eddie Loos, Macdonald Smith and Fred Morrison collected $226 each.

Wood and Diegel attracted a great gallery, thousands following the two leaders and the faltering Horton Smith in the fourth and final round. The stage was set for some golf drama as Craig and Leo started out three strokes apart and Diegel whittled two away on the first three holes, reducing Wood's lead to a scant one.

The very first hole of the afternoon was played with a typical Diegel flourish when the Agua Caliente pro drove a tee shot out of bounds and still got his par four on the hole, making a neat second shot with his second ball.

Wood was short and had to take five shots, Diegel going to the second hole two behind.

The second was halved in par fives, but Wood took a five on the par four third when his ball rolled into a barranca and Leo was one down. Par golf was played by both to the seventh, although Diegel had to hole a 20-foot putt at the sixth after visiting a trap.

Seventh Heart-Breaker For Diegel.

The seventh was a heart-breaker for Diegel and the result of the championship might have hinged on a sensational shot from Wood's No. 6 iron. Diegel drove first and was 8 feet from the pin. Wood followed with a pitch that came to rest within less than 3 feet of the cup. Wood holed his and Diegel just missed. The other two holes were pars for both and Diegel started the second nine 2 strokes back.

They got par 3's at the tenth and then Diegel dropped a 10-foot putt for a birdie 3 at the eleventh and again was 1 in arrears. Again a short hole proved a friend to Wood and foe to Diegel. On the wee thirteenth, some 120 yards, Diegel's ball from the tee went into a trap and he had to take 4. Wood holed his 20-footer for a birdie 2 and the end was in sight.

DUQUESNE IS VICTOR OVER G. W. FIVE

Colonials, Outplayed in Pittsburgh, Bow by 52-32 Score.

Special to The Washington Post.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan 9.—Minus speedy little Marty Reiter, who is bedfast with the same throat ailment which attacked him on the Eastern trip last season, the Duquesne University floor team romped off with an easy 52 to 32 victory over George Washington University tonight on the Bluff Gymnasium. It was the third triumph of the season for the Red and Blue.

The Davies delegation cut down the giant visitors with a snappy, short passing game which sent local players into the net for many set-up shots. They grabbed the advantage shortly after the start and added to it throughout the game.

By half time, the margin had mounted to 25 to 13 in the home team's favor, and the issue was settled. A steady procession of Duquesne reserves got a chance under fire before the final whistle ended the uneven struggle.

Brenner Star for Duke Courtmen.

Irv Brenner, playing his second game as a regular, led the Bluffite attack with six field baskets and one foul shot for a thirteenth total from a strange spot at guard. Coach Davies shifted Brenner from the pivot position to fill Reiter's shoes and he turned in a stellar performance.

Wick Parrack and Forrest Burgess, the George Washington forwards, were the "big guns" in the invaders' attack, both boys scoring 10 points each for their team.

The George Washington team was one of the best that has appeared in Pittsburgh this season, with some of the tallest boys ever to appear on a Pittsburgh court.

Ralph Hertzler, standing 6 feet 5 inches, got the jump on the Dukes' center, who only stands 5 feet 6 inches. Wayne Chambers, the visitors' star guard, was banished late in the first half, due to the four personal foul rule.

The feature game of the night's program brings together the War Department A. G. O. and the Post Exchange, two of the four tied teams.

New Big Four Looming on Gridiron

Schedules Harvard, Dartmouth, Princeton, Yale Interlock.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The closing of the Harvard-Princeton football breach served today to emphasize (1) the effective formation of a new and so-called "big four" by 1934 consisting of Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth and Princeton, all with interlocking schedule agreements, and (2) the somewhat startling rapidity with which old rivals have agreed to forgive, forget and play football again in order to help balance wavering athletic budgets for the next few years.

To the energetic and stimulating influence of Herbert Orrin (Fritz) Crisler upon the Princeton athletic system apparently is due much of the initiative that has enabled the Tigers to resume relations with Dartmouth and Harvard sooner than was anticipated.

Princeton-Dartmouth Forge Last Link.

Princeton and Dartmouth obtained releases from other opponents in order to play this year. With the Princeton-Harvard renewal at Cambridge, in 1934, the last link is forged in the new "Big Four." Dartmouth already was established on the Yale and Harvard schedules.

Whether it is intentional or not, the quadrangular arrangement will help minimize a revival of the old "Big Three." Up to the time of the Princeton-Harvard "break" in 1926, it was apparent the old triumvirate was losing its popular appeal, as well as much of its old prestige. It is clear, now, that Harvard and Princeton have not resumed relations on the old-time basis. In the first place, it is a two-year agreement subject to renewal. Secondly, it puts the game in the early November spot where it is not linked up as formerly with the Yale-Princeton and Yale-Harvard games.

Harvard's Big Guns Pointed for Yale.

In short, Harvard will continue to point its big guns mainly for Yale, while Princeton, with a better balanced schedule, will concentrate on either the Elis or Dartmouth as a climax foe.

Meanwhile, although the possibilities and advantages of an Eastern Intercollegiate Conference may exist, there is no foundation for the reports that Cornell, Army, Pennsylvania and Brown, to list those most prominently mentioned, will join the new "Big Four" in closer football schedule-making.

Pennsylvania will again play Yale, in 1934, but otherwise the relations in the group mentioned already are pretty well fixed. Cornell is linked up with Dartmouth and Princeton, but meanwhile has renewed relations with Syracuse for this year. Army's dates with Yale and Harvard are fixtures, the same as Brown's. The next and most logical move would be for Dartmouth and Brown to get together but this is not under discussion, so far as it is known.

Penn-Dartmouth Series Problematical.

Brown and Princeton play this year at Providence but are not scheduled in 1934. The future of the Pennsylvania-Dartmouth series also is problematical, though this game is a big drawing card in Philadelphia. Penn renews relations in 1934 with Columbia, which also plays Princeton and Cornell.

Thus, the realignments and renewals in Eastern football schedule-making offer the natural development of anything from a "big four" to a "big twelve," starting with Harvard-Yale-Princeton-Dartmouth, then adding Cornell-Pennsylvania-Brown-Army and, finally splicing with Syracuse-Columbia-Colgate.

Charity Match Jan. 28 May Be Last for Tilden

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—William T. Tilden 2d will make what may be his last competitive appearance in New York January 28 when he plays an exhibition series with Hans Nuseslein, Bruce Barnes and J. Emmet Pare at the Seventh Regiment Armory for the benefit of the unemployed.

Tilden plans to retire from competitive tennis after a few more appearances in the United States and a tour of Europe.

Six Major Grid Teams Listed by Yale in 1932

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Malcolm Farmer, Yale chairman of athletics, announced tonight the Yale eleven would meet six major football teams in 1934, postponing for at least one more year the proposed five-game schedule.

Farmer's announcement did not say whether or not any other games would be scheduled that season. The Elis will meet Pennsylvania in the Yale bowl October 13, the first time those two teams will have clashed since 1925. In addition, agreements have been reached to play Brown, Army, Dartmouth, Princeton and Harvard, all regulars on the Yale schedule.

Last year, announcing a new athletic policy to be instituted with the introduction of the residential plan of class administration, Yale said the football schedule would be reduced to five games. Eight have been scheduled for 1933.

TRIBE EAGER TO RELEASE SEWELL

Supported Ferrell in Many Tiffs, Is Report.

Special to The Washington Post.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 9.—It is no secret here that Luke Sewell was traded to Washington because he had a bad influence on Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland star and one of the most temperamental pitchers in the major leagues.

Ferrell took it upon himself late last season to criticize Manager Roger Peckinpaugh for his handling of the team and drew a suspension without pay for his vocal outburst. The star hurler also let the baseball world know that in his opinion Joe McCarthy, of the New York Yankees, was the best manager in the game.

Teammates openly accused Ferrell of not giving his best efforts to the team and the morale of the team suffered.

Ferrell charged that he was forced to work with a sore arm and that he was putting as much as he could on the ball. Sewell supported him in many arguments with the other players and soon became as unpopular as the pitcher.

Officials of the Cleveland club could not very well dispose of Ferrell so they did the next best thing and put through a trade for Roy Spencer, giving Sewell and an unnamed amount of cash for the veteran National receiver.

Washington wanted George Detore, slugging third baseman who has been recalled by the Indians from Buffalo, and it was this angle that held up the deal so long. Detore belted out between 20 and 30 home runs last season and Cleveland wants him as an understudy for Willie Kamm, who is slowing up.

It also was learned that Washington tried hard to land Clint Brown, clever right-hander, in the deal that brought Ross, rookie first baseman, to the Indians.

The Indians would have let him go had it not been for the fact that Ferrell is scheduled to take a big pay cut and the Cleveland officials are not certain that he will join the team at the training camp in the spring.

Sarazen Suffers Influenza Attack

Two-Time Champion to Miss Agua Caliente Tournament.

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 9 (A.P.). Retiring from the Los Angeles open golf tournament in a state of collapse from influenza, Gene Sarazen, United States and Great Britain open champion, was admitted to the Santa Monica Hospital today with a fever of 103 and a pulse of 112.

His physician, Dr. Robert O'Neal, said he believed the star would respond to treatment readily, but that there was no possibility that he would be able to play in the Agua Caliente tournament starting Wednesday.

Sarazen finished the third round of eighteen holes with a 74 for a total of 221, and confessed he would be unable to continue.

"Mr. Sarazen was in a state of collapse when he entered the hospital," Dr. O'Neal said. "Not only will he be unable to play at Agua Caliente, but I am surprised that he entered this morning's round at the Wilshire Country Club. I am confident, however, that he will be able to check the influenza and that a few days in the hospital will restore him to health."

HANLEY ILL WITH FLU.

Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Ill with influenza, Dick Hanley, Northwestern University coach, arrived here for a visit today and was taken to the Hollywood Hospital. Attendants said his condition was not serious.

Star Recruit Alone Gets Increase

Cronin Now One of Four Highest Paid Members of Cast.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

MONTE WEAVER, the Hilton, N. C., boy who made good in the big city, has had many honors come tumbling down on his large and translucent ears in his time. He has had some unmentionable number of academic degrees inflicted on him—ranging from two to six, depending upon your choice in newspapers—and at the conclusion of last year he was further laden down with the title "Best freshman pitcher in the American League."

But his greatest claim to fame came yesterday when Clark Griffith, the grizzled old boy who operates the local output of the depressed national pastime, acknowledged that Monte was the only player on the team, the only clerk in the office, the only groundsman, bat boy or scoreboard manipulator—the only anything in fact—connected with the Washington Baseball Club, that gets a raise in salary.

That is, a raise that can be called a raise. Last fall Griffith naturally boosted Joe Cronin's yearly stipend a couple thousand two by fours, and as is usual will award cigarette money increases to a smattering of neophytes—Mr. Cecil Howel Travis, Mr. Edward Linke, known to the trade by the nickname of "Missing," and Mr. Luther Baxter Thomas, who owes his present caste in life to Mine Host Bert Olmsted.

Players Offered What They Earned.

But Monte is just about the only one that comes under the slim heading of "Raise in Pay." You know, it's an old tradition with Grifith that his accomplished hirelings are offered for the coming season just what he thinks they earned last season. In figuring out this delicate question of baseball production and consumption, Griffith not only takes into account such mundane matters as number of hits, runs, errors and spiked rivals, but also the player's ability to fit his own personality into the harmonious regime the Nat prexy is always attempting to set up.

Of course, many of the remaining players made more hits, more runs, more errors, more spikes and exerted more harmonious thoughts and deeds during the season just closed than the year before, but they must be reduced in pay in deference to the dear old deficit.

This "cut," together with the natural raise of Joe Cronin last fall, will boost the new manager about on equal terms with the three big money men of the Washington Team—Goose Goslin, Heinie Manush and Al Crowder, all of whom make about $15,000 a year, a figure comfortably above the pay of Vice President Curtis, Secretaries Stimson, Mills, Hurley, Mitchell, Brown, Adams, Wilbur, Hyde, Chapin and Doak, the Speaker of the House and the two sinister local celebrities who divide the beer and numbers games nicely between them, being a sorry commentary on the paying propensities of politics.

Nats About to Receive Sad News.

The Nat contracts were duly stamped and recorded in the office of Judge Landis yesterday and distributed to the boys, now spread out all over the country pursuing occupations ranging from Al Crowder's select beanery in Winston-Salem to

ON RUSH COASTS HOME IN FEATURE AT JEFFERSON PARK

Winner Given Great Ride By McCoy

Modesto, Favorite, Second; Cresta Runs Third.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Under a perfect ride by the grizzled J. (Googles) McCoy, the Paramount Stable's gelding, On Rush, easily won the West End Country Club Purse of 6 furlongs here this afternoon. Two lengths behind came Modesto, the favorite, to beat Cresta Run by four lengths for the place. On Rush paid $5.80 and his time was 1:13 2-5. Eight 3-year-olds started.

Modesto appeared a winner for a half-mile, but McCoy was sitting still on On Rush, ready to strike when they hit the stretch. When straightened out, On Rush responded willingly to urging and once in front, just coasted the remainder of the trip. Cresta Run showed some improvement, moving up from a rear position around the bend, but failing to come on in the final furlong.

Principio was forced to take the overland route in the 6 furlongs of the third contest, but he was good enough to earn a nose decision at odds of $8.20 for $2. Blighter was a scant head before Plucky Girl, which was deprived of free racing room in the stretch for the place. Agnes Sorel, a field horse, showed the way for 5 furlongs after which Tommy May sent Principio to the fore. The gelding showed plenty of heart to outlast Blighter and Plucky Girl in the final drive.

SEE NEXT SUNDAY'S WASHINGTON POST

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, JANUARY 9.

Johnny Gilbert, like myself, is waiting for Miami to open on the 16th. However, he's waiting and resting at his home in Pittsburg, Kans. Johnny's record of 31 winners at this track for the meeting was tied today by Monte Parke, whose brother Ivan thrilled the turf world. Monte, who has been here since opening day, appears well on the road to the riding honors for the course. He rode Palatine home in the sixth race.

I didn't expect to have any luck today when they scratched my pal Drombo. And I wasn't wrong. I hooked the Bennings win stamp on seven horses and it must have acted as an anchor in each case. Fortunately, Bill, like Pete Bostwick, can take it. Tomorrow we shall see what we shall see. BILL.

FIRST RACE—IMELDA, beaten a head the other day, while entrusted with some of Mrs. Bennings' weekly allowance, gets a chance to make good in this. Is in fine form and needs only a good ride and the desire of those most closely connected for a victory. BILL ORANGE is the one to beat. BUCK HERO may be third.

SECOND RACE—DORAMELIA has been passed along by the boys who get up early, and I'm giving this one the opportunity of making it winner No. 2 for the Bennings boys. ELEGY and PULIS appear to be best of the others.

THIRD RACE—QUARTERDECK is ready for brackets, according to those who should know best, and I'm stringing along. Must get out of the also eligibles, however. TRANSFORMATION and FRIAR to battle for what's left.

FOURTH RACE—NOTIFY won a race of this sort the last time, and I can not pass her up. Showed courage and speed in her debut. GRAND FLIGHT put up a good race against her and should be second tomorrow. AIDA B. for the show.

FIFTH RACE—ENNIS seems to be the best fast-track proposition in this test. COL. HATFIELD and KILMORE to contribute the principal chasing.

SIXTH RACE—SISTER MARY gets in light and has speed enough to take care of these. LA SALLE might be turned loose here. BILL LOONEY for the show end.

Barry Matched With Gastanaga

Capital Heavyweight Is to Fight Spaniard at Holyoke, January 16.

Donald (Red) Barry, Washington's young heavyweight boxer, has been matched with Isadore Gastanaga, Spanish champion, on January 16 at Valley Arena, Holyoke, Mass., it was announced yesterday by "Mushky" Jackson, manager of the District scrapper.

Gastanaga, a 200-pounder, has been featured at Madison Square Garden. The Spaniard has won 34 out of his last 36 fights by knockouts, according to reports, and holds victories over such topnotchers as Charlie Retzlaff, Hans Birkie, German heavyweights, and Stanley Poreda. Gastanaga's match with Tom Heeney at the Garden was postponed because of the Spaniard's illness.

Since coming under Jackson's wing in September, Barry has decisioned Arthur Huttick, Frankie Sims, Joe Sirtuis and knocked out Jack McCarthy. Last month Barry was given a high ranking by Metropolitan ring experts.

Indications are that Barry will fight the winner of the Les Kennedy-Marty Gallagher fight on January 31 at Portner's. Kennedy and Gallagher meet next Tuesday.

Manor May Reelect Its Officers Tonight

All officers of the Manor Golf Club are expected to be reelected tonight at the annual meeting of the board in the clubhouse at Norbeck, Md., starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Ray Garrity, local lawyer, is president of the club. Other officers are Frank Bergfeld, vice president; S. B. Willis, secretary; George Quirk, treasurer, and David L. Thomson, chairman of the golf committee.

The annual meeting and election of the Congressional Country Club is slated to take place on January 20. J. C. Koons is the present head.

Emerson, Friends Fives Active Today

C. U. Frosh and Takoma-S. S. Respective Foes; Good Games Promised.

Two games not in the championship scramble are on the scholastic bill of fare today. Emerson plays Catholic University Frosh in the preliminary to the Cardinal varsity's tiff with the Quantico Marines, which gets underway at 7 o'clock. In the afternoon, Friends School entertains Takoma-Silver Spring High School.

Emerson, after beginning the season in reverse gear, appears to have hit its winning stride and will offer the Brooklanders all they bargain for in the way of competition. With Mike Scanlon, Fred Scheele, Gene Swift and others of high and prep school fame last season in the line-up, Emerson has the power to propel it along to victory.

A host of former high school team captains, including Bernie Lieb, giant center of last season's championship Eastern quintet will greet Coach Harley Sanborn's aggregation.

Takoma-Silver Spring and Friends are evenly matched and a fast game should be the result of their meeting. Friends recently dropped a close decision to Western. Takoma has lost only one game this season and will be a strong contender for the Montgomery County title.

Good W. & L. High Star As Takoma-S. S. Bows

Takoma-Silver Spring tossers journied to Ballston last night and took a fancy shellacking from the Washington and Lee High five, 31 to 14. The Little Generals led from start to finish, having a 13-to-7 advantage at the half, and never were in close quarters.

Good surely lived up to his name for the winners, his six field goals and three charity tosses giving him one more point than was rung up by the entire visiting team.

EXTRA POINT HIT BY PRO GRIDMEN

League May Abolish Try and Substitute Extra Period.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A suggestion that the National Football League abolish the point after touchdown and decide tie games with an extra period was made today to his fellow directors by Tim Mara, owner of the New York Giants.

Mara pointed out that only one game of 58 played in the season just closed was decided by the point after touchdown, while 20 ties indicated the need of some solution for that problem. League players made good 77 tries of 105 attempted for the point after touchdown.

"These statistics show how ridiculous it is to decide a game on such a mechanical thing as making the extra point," Mara said. "A team could have kicked off and resumed play in the time devoted to preparation and execution of the extra-point play."

The 1932 record of extra points scored was:

Team.	Touchdowns.	Extra points.
Chicago Bears.....	22	18
Green Bay Packers.....	19	15
Portsmouth (Ohio) Spartans	4	11
New York Giants.....	13	7
Stapleton (Staten Island)..	11	9

MARYLAND U. BOXERS IN 4-4 TIE

Generals Even Match as Referee Disqualifies Farrell.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Jan. 9.—Featured by three extra-round bouts, one technical knockout and one clean knockout, University of Maryland lifted the lid off the Washington and Lee boxing season here tonight by tying the Generals at four all. The climax of the program came when Martin, Washington and Lee, knocked out McCann with a right uppercut to the jaw after one minute and five seconds of the first round had elapsed, to cut Maryland's lead to 4 to 3.

In the heavyweight division, Collins, Washington and Lee, opened strong and sent Farrell down with a clip to the jaw in the opening seconds, but had difficulty in keeping his advantage in what turned out to be a wrestling match. Most of the clinching was done on the part of Farrell, despite the fact that he seemed to be getting better of the fight. After repeatedly warning him, the referee awarded the bout to Collins just as the final bell rang.

Capt. Keener Winner.

Capt. Keener, of Maryland, defeated Capt. Pound who started well but could not keep his advantage, based on his jabbing, over the Marylander who insisted on forcing the fight. The bout was very close at the end of the extra round, and vocal objections were raised at referee's decision.

Both men were fighting hard and landing clean blows as they traded punches freely.

McAboy, of Maryland, defeated Short in an extra round bout that was packed with action.

115-pound class—De Lasossa (W. and L.) decision over Fluver.
145-pound class—Mincher (W. and L.), given technical knockout over Wingate.
155-pound class—Kenner (Maryland), decision over Pound in extra round.
175-pound class—Martin (W. and L.), knockout over McCann, 1m. 5s.
Score—4 to 4. Referee—Denton (V. M. I.). Timer—Mapel.

CRAIG WOOD WINS LOS ANGELES OPEN

Wood knocked in another 20-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the fifteenth and was 4 strokes ahead with three to play. Wood missed the green at the long sixteenth and went over par with a 6, while Leo was taking par 5, but the championship was all wrapped up by that time.

Coming to the home hole three strokes to the good Wood, nevertheless, played as though he needed a par to win. He sent a long iron to the closely trapped green, scorning to play safe in the face of the treacherous barrancas and ran down his par four, while Leo had to be satisfied with five, four strokes behind the winner.

The golfing caravan was on the move tonight headed toward Agua Caliente, Mexico, where a $7,500 open begins Wednesday and continues through Saturday.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A HIGHLIGHT of the special dedicatory program of the new wing of the Toledo Museum of Art will be the broadcast of a symphony concert by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra over a Nation-wide network, including WJSV, from 9:30 to 10:15 o'clock tonight. The program will originate in the recently completed music hall theater of the museum.

The feature of Stokowski's program will be the Prelude to Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde." Following the musical program a brief description of the new wings of the museum will be given by E. Dwight Northrup, program director of WSPD, Toledo, which will relay the program.

JOHN McCORMACK, Irish tenor, will be the soloist with Joseph Bonime's orchestra on the Five Star Theater program over WJSV at 10:15 o'clock tonight. This feature is scheduled for fifteen minutes later than usual to make way for the Philadelphia Orchestra broadcast from Toledo.

The program follows:

Overture to "Maritana" (Wallace), orchestra; "Bless This House" (Brake) and "Mary, Dear" (words by John McCormack, adapted to the tune of the Londonderry Air by Edwin Schneider), John McCormack); "Irish Rhapsody" (Herbert), orchestra; "Love's Roses Have Bloomed in Vain" (Broome), and a popular Irish air to be selected, John McCormack; excerpts from "Bohemian Girl" (Balfe), orchestra.

Florence Romaine and Eugene Kronin, characters in "The Goldbergs," have been reunited and are to be married on Thursday of this week, according to an announcement by Gertrude Berg (Mollie Goldberg), author of the sketches.

In keeping with the realistic style in which this series is presented, the wedding ceremony will be performed in the authentic Jewish form by a rabbi from real life, Dr. David Putterman, of the Washington Heights Congregation, in New York. Mrs. Berg has recruited the services of the Mechtenberg Boys' Choir to render the traditional music of the wedding ceremony.

The Romaine-Kronin wedding will conform with the ritual established by the Mosaic law and orbserved for centuries in the Jewish faith, Mrs. Berg pointed out.

Howard Lee McBain, dean of Columbia University, will be the principal speaker during the broadcast of the program "You and Your Government" (WJZ network, 7:15 p. m.). The subject of McBain's talk will be "Prohibition."

THE March of Time show recently called for the mighty buzzing of a devastating swarm of locusts. The results desired were achieved by the following method: Three men rubbed paper bags together just in front of a microphone; a small electric buzzer sounded in another "mike" and the string section of Howard Barlow's orchestra played in a low, rasping monotone what is known as a "punchinello" trill in various keys—and that's how a swarm of locusts swept through Uruguay in Studio 1.

Keller, Sargent and Ross, who for eighteen months were headliners on the British Broadcasting Corporation stations, will begin a series of programs in this country at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Station WJSV will be included in the hookup, bringing the feature to Washingtonians every Tuesday and Thursday.

HOWARD CHANDLER CHRISTY will tell of "Painting the Great" in an interview over WRC at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Tito Guizar, Mexican tenor and instrumentalist, who only lately has acquired speaking acquaintance with the English language, will be interviewed by Bob Taplinger (WJSV, 5 o'clock) this afternoon.

Why do the broadcasters consume time on the air by spelling names and street addresses? The New York Times inquires, and goes on:

"Even Washington is spelled. The broadcasters call attention to the fact that Acting Mayor McKee's name was spelled 78 different ways by the voters who wrote his name on the ballot. The spoken word is easily misunderstood on the radio because it is so fleeting. Therefore, if the name and address are spelled the mail response is multiplied.

A listener in Florida writes:

"No one with the physical and mental endurance to spend as little as three consecutive hours at his radio, listening to the programs of any selected station, or taken at random from many stations, can fail to notice the overwhelming preponderance of offerings that play down over those that play up to the unseen audience.

"Why, supposing I am an actual or possible buyer of headache remedies, must I take spelling lessons to protect myself and the program sponsor against switching by some unscrupulous drug salesman when I mention the article I want? Like the Japanese schoolboy, I ask to know."

"Brother Ezra and Sister Susan," a new number by Frank Crummit, will be sung for the first time by Julia Sanderson and the composer as a highlight of their program at 8 o'clock tonight over WRC. Other numbers will be "Wonderful One," "I've a Million Reasons, Dear, Why I Love You," and "Goodbye, Rose."

FOR the past two months Elsie Hitz, as June Armstrong of the "Magic Voice," has played the role of a girl confined to a hospital. According to the script, her romance, started when Jim Norman dialed a wrong number and fell in love with the voice at the other end, has been carried on from her hospital room entirely by telephone.

Truth caught up with fiction when Miss Hitz was stricken with an ear ailment shortly after her broadcast a week ago and was operated on late that night in a private hospital in New York City. As she could not leave the hospital for a few days, it was necessary for her to broadcast from her hospital bed, thus filling in reality the role she has been playing since the start of the series.

Another Grasshopper Outbreak Is Forecast

St. Paul, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Entomologists of Minnesota and North Dakota today predicted another grasshopper outbreak was probable this year and urged early action to prevent widespread destruction.

A. G. Ruggles, of St. Paul, who directed Minnesota's fight against the crop of hungry insects last year, said enough eggs were now in the frozen ground to hatch a devouring horde.

Stocks Defeated in Efforts To Make Successful Rallies

Eight-Tenths Loss Added in Sales Total of 931,300 Shares.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Stocks tried a rally or two, though rails did most of the advancing. Sluggishness of leaders elsewhere, particularly American Telephone and U. S. Steel common, tended to dampen enthusiasm, and by the close prices were largely lower, to the extent of a fraction to about a point. Sales totaled 931,300 shares.

Several carrier stocks were a point or more higher at one time. Pennsylvania, with a record of earnings on the stock in 1932, was a favorite, while its group was making progress, but its advance was finally halved. New York Central, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna and Northern Pacific finished within fractions, either way of last Friday's final quotations.

Both American Telephone and U. S. Steel were down just over a point. The former may have been exhibiting preliminary nervousness over next month's dividend meeting, while Steel faces an unfilled tonnage statement tomorrow and a directors' decision on the preferred dividend late this month. Declines of approximately the same size were returned by American Can, North American, Case, Woolworth, Loew's, National Biscuit and Western Union, while Westinghouse, Standard of New Jersey, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Anaconda, American Tobacco "B" and Bethlehem yielded minor or major fractions.

There was a flurry of firmness in the "wet" shares coincident with the Senate committee's prohibition repeal vote, but this effervescence was not particularly striking and the group turned very dull.

Rail stocks appeared interested in the announcement that the national transportation committee would speed its report and that the document would be more comprehensive than had originally been intended. Some brokers have attributed recent activity in carrier stocks to the efforts of a trading group which supported those issues last fall. Another factor currently mentioned is the possibility that the Reconstruction Financé Corporation will lighten its collateral regulations for railroad loans.

Stocks.

Efforts to rally were defeated and stocks closed eight-tenths of a point lower. The turnover totaled 931,300 shares.

Bonds.

Rails led bonds to higher ground. The advance was along a wide front, the market closing eight-tenths of a point higher. Sales mounted to $13,564,000.

Curb.

An early rise in prices was lost in a selling drive, and leaders closed lower. Sales increased to 160,000 shares.

Wheat.

Cotton.

Prices advanced 4 to 6 points in a final rally. Early gains were supplanted by losses. March sold at 6.20. Liverpool reported a small market with an improving demand for Russian cotton.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet but cheerful. Investment issues and industrials gained steadily while Argentine bonds were harder. Gold mining issues recovered early losses and the market closed steady.

Paris—Prices on the bourse declined, particularly French shares, partly as a result of liquidation due to the uncertainty over the government's budgetary measures. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Trading was cheerful on the bourse and prices were slightly higher. The closing was firm.

CURB MARKET SAGS ON SALES PRESSURE

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The curb market pushed forward a little further in the early trading today, but slipped back under moderate selling, which left the general list of stocks down from fractions to around a point. Transfers totaled 160,000 shares, against 190,000 last Friday.

Investors found little incentive in the day's developments to cause them to make fresh purchases, but resistance developed when stocks dipped lower. The session was of a waiting variety, most traders keeping on the sidelines.

The utilities moved up a little at the start, but closed with small net losses. Electric Bond & Share lost a point, while fractional declines occurred in American Gas & Electric, Niagara Hudson Power and United Light & Power A. Cities Service and American Superpower were steady.

Oils continued to show indifference to recent gasoline price reductions, although small fractions were lost by Gulf and Standard of Indiana in quiet trading.

Deere & Co. lost an early gain when the grain market eased. Aluminum Co. dipped a shade, while Singer and A. O. Smith were slightly higher. Cord lost a fraction, while Stutz gained slightly.

Ford Motors, Ltd., was steady, while Ford of Canada A and Ford of France surrendered minor fractions.

Freight Loadings Decrease 25 Per Cent From '31 Total

(Associated Press.)

The volume of freight carried by American railroads in 1932 dropped nearly one-quarter below the total hauled in 1931, a year which already had shown great losses from previous high marks.

The American Railway Association, reporting finally yesterday for the entire year, said freight for 1932 totaled 26,194,828 cars against 37,151,249 the year before, and 45,717,079 in 1930.

The report showed 406,779 cars of revenue freight were hauled during the last week of 1932. This was 87,801 cars under the previous week, 95,948 under the corresponding week in 1931 and 208,081 under 1930.

The annual report showed a reduction for the year of 24.1 per cent in total loadings with the drop in hauling ore providing the deepest cut—75.9 per cent—and less than carload freight the lowest with 17.1 per cent.

Coal, always the largest single item of freight, was off more than 1,100,000 cars. Loadings for 1931 were 6,493,200 and for 1932, 5,339,303. Miscellaneous freight dropped 3,000,000 cars, the loadings this year being 9,840,219 as compared with 13,851,908 in 1931.

Although grain and grain products brought the lowest prices in many years, the movement of these products dropped only 18.3 per cent between 1931 and 1932. Loadings in 1932 were 1,653,076 cars and in 1931, 2,024,894.

Loadings in other major classifications were:

Live stock, 949,091 in 1932 and 1,162,060 in 1931; coke, 223,772 and 324,743; forest products, 899,542 and 1,471,398; ore, 210,759 and 874,673, and less than carload freight, 9,079,066 and 10,948,873.

Southern Pacific Buys Up Foreign-Held Bonds

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The Southern Pacific Co., it was learned today, has been gradually buying up the foreign bonds of the $48,262,517 35-year European 4 per cent loan of the Central Pacific Railway Co. Approximately three-quarters of the total issue, or roughly $36,000,000 face amount of bonds, are now held in the Southern Pacific Treasury. The Central Pacific is controlled by Southern Pacific.

The European loan was floated in 1911 and does not mature until 1946. The issue totals 250,000,000 French francs, or about $48,000,000. Interest is payable in Paris, London, Brussels and Switzerland.

BONDS STAGE GAINS ALONG WIDE FRONTS

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Led by the rails and industrials, the bond market advanced on all fronts today, and lower prices retreated under a barrage of growing bids.

While there were no striking news developments, and economic and political conditions were still as uncertain as during the past several weeks, the urge of low money rates and the investment demand from large institutional funds apparently motivated the continuation of the recovery.

The trading volume was considerably above normal, sales totaling $13,564,000, par value. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced eight-tenths of a point.

Gains of 1 to 4 or more points were recorded by a long list of carrier and industrial specialties, while the highest grade maturities of all categories hovered around their top levels for the past year or more.

The best of the rails included liens of Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Delaware & Hudson, Erie, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, Illinois Central, M-K-T, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Reading, Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Southern, Union Pacific and Wabash.

United Drug 5s were the star industrial performers, stepping up 6¼ points following rumors the company might dispose of its foreign chain for cash.

Other gainers of a point or more included loans of U. S. Rubber, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Sinclair Oil, Otis Steel, Pure Oil, Goodyear, International Cement, Chile Copper, Container Corporation and American Metal. The most active were Tobacco Products, 6½s, up ½ point on a turnover of 236 bonds.

The leading utilities included loans of American & Foreign Power, Brooklyn Union Gas, Cleveland Union Terminal, Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, International Telephone, International Hydro-Electric, Laclede Gas, North American Edison, and Utah Power & Light.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange today reported that on January 1 there were 1,549 bond issues aggregating $41,304,596,305 par value listed on its market, having a total market value of $31,918,066,155.

On December 1 last there were 1,548 bond issues aggregating $51,542,847,249 par value with a total market value of $38,093,183,063.

During the month approximately $10,000,000,000 of the United Kingdom 5 per cent bonds were taken off the list. This issue was refunded as part of the British government's war loan conversion program.

Greyhound Buses Make Cut in Fares

Reduced Charges to All Points Are Effective Tomorrow.

In keeping with the general reduction in the cost of foods, clothing and other necessities, Greyhound Lines, the world's largest motor coach company, through J. B. Walker, vice president and general traffic manager, yesterday announced one of the most drastic reductions in travel costs in the history of transportation. Fare reductions reaching as much as 25 per cent will go into effect from the local Greyhound terminal to practically every major city served by Greyhound Lines outside of the State of Ohio on January 11.

While the most drastic reductions in rates apply to that territory east of Chicago and St. Louis, a reduction in fares outside this area will mean a substantial saving to all interstate commerce travelers, regardless of destination.

A 60-day return limit will be granted on round-trip tickets along with liberal stopover privileges en route, plus attractive additional savings on round-trip fares.

The Germans came back to establish new highs after early irregularity. Gains of a point or more were registered by some issues of Brazil, Bolivia, Buenos Aires, Colombia, Sao Paulo and Uruguay.

WHEAT VALUES SINK IN STOP-LOSS SALES

Exhaustion of Buyers List Also Blamed; Corn and Oats Lose.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Disquieted by reports of stop-loss selling at Winnipeg and by apparent exhaustion of aggressive buying in Chicago, grain markets underwent a notable setback today.

Downturns came after wheat here and at Liverpool had mounted to the highest levels in nearly two months, with the Chicago market showing 6¼ cents a bushel almost vertical climb of late. Much of today's selling of wheat was associated with belief expressed by trade experts that reactions were to be looked for after such a steep movement aloft.

Wheat closed unsteady, ⅝ to 1 under Saturday's finish; corn, ¼ to ¾ down; oats, ⅛ to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents lower.

Early Trend Higher.

Until Winnipeg prices began to break, the trend of the Chicago wheat market today was up grade. A reason for slashing of Canadian quotations appeared in the fact that North American wheat export shipments during the last week totaled but 3,900,000 bushels, the smallest so far on the crop. On the other hand, increased world clearances were due to heavy Southern Hemisphere sales. Argentina reported ideal weather for harvesting and crop movement.

A decrease of 1,889,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total failed to rally the market and had evidently been anticipated. Pit observers said there was not the same energetic speculative demand for wheat today that had been so conspicuous last week, and that a decided increase of future delivery offerings was in evidence. Furthermore, dimestic milling demand appeared spasmodic, with relatively little interest shown today.

Corn and oats receded with wheat, and as a result of enlarged primary arrivals of corn.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON RENEWED BUYING

March Closes at 6.20 as General Market Rises 4 to 6 Points.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—An opening advance in cotton today was followed by reactions under scattered local and Southern selling, but prices firmed again in the late trading on renewed trade buying and covering, closing within a few points of the best. March contracts after selling up to 6.24 at the start, reacted to 6.13 and closed at 6.20. The general market finished steady at net advances of 4 to 6 points.

The opening was 6 to 8 points higher in response to steadiness of Liverpool over the week-end and rains in the Eastern and Central belts.

Easier turn in the wheat and stock markets contributed to the reaction which carried July from 6.48 to 6.40 or back to about Friday's close. Other active months sold a point or two net lower but anticipated hedging failed to develop and final quotations showed rallies of several points from the lowest.

Buying for Continent.

Some of the buying here through houses with continental connections was again attributed to the recent talk of possible inflation, but Liverpool, after some early buying, was credited with selling here on the differences.

There was some scattered Southern selling or hedging at the start and again during the middle of the afternoon, but offerings from that source were not heavy.

According to local spot experts, cotton is coming out here and there in small lots on advances, but offerings on the whole are small and basis remains steady. Liverpool cables reported a small market there with an improving demand for Russian cotton in the spot market and a fair inquiry for cotton cloths from India. Traders here evidently found little inspiration in the day's news, and local brokers reported a disposition to await further developments in farm relief legislation or in the general trade situation.

Exports today, 7,051, making 4,418,833 so far this season. Port receipts, 26,018. United States port stocks, 4,782,333.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, one of England's most celebrated advocates, has been briefed by Sir Simon Flaquer, solicitor, to defend his client, Mrs. Paradine, against a charge of murdering her husband, Col. Paradine.

While Mrs. Paradine is in Halloway jail awaiting trial, Lord Horfield is appointed Judge of the case.

Sir Malcolm and his pretty wife, Gay, who bears a subtle resemblance to Mrs. Paradine, have been happily married for ten years, but the husband's obsession with the Paradine case is beginning to cast a dark shadow over their happiness. Sir Malcolm finds himself fascinated by the mysterious blonde, whom he passionately desires to save. Subconsciously he is not wholly convinced of her innocence, but he declares emphatically to Sir Simon that he believes her innocent. Sir Simon is skeptical about the defense Sir Malcolm has prepared, which is to suggest that the colonel's servant, William Marsh, who had been Paradine's batman in the war, might have had a hand in the murder. Sir Malcolm is afraid of Lord Horfield, who seems to have a streak of cruelty that manifests itself toward women who come up for trial before him.

Col. Paradine had been blinded in the war and had never seen his beautiful wife, who had been a servant before her marriage. She is a Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation by a philanthropic American. After a short period in the United States, she had settled in London to earn her living, and had married the rich Col. Paradine after the war.

Sir Malcolm goes alone to the north of England to look over the Paradine home at Hindley. On his return he invites the Horfields to dinner and the theater, against Gay's wishes. The dinner passes off in a friendly enough spirit. Leaving for the theater Keane takes Lady Horfield in his car and Gay accompanies Lord Horfield, who makes love to her, much to her disgust.

ALTHOUGH he had had an almost sleepless night and was feeling distracted by the misery which he was obliged to conceal and by dread of the line Mrs. Paradine might take when she went into the witness box, Keane, calling on all his power of acting, opened with a tone and manner of supreme self-confidence, which at once impressed the court. His voice was full and powerful and persuasive, his manner was serene and courageous.

"Sir Malcolm's wonderful!" Judith whispered to Gay. "Simply wonderful!"

Gay slightly moved her head in reply. With a passionate attention, absorbed in spite of the conflict within her, she listened while, with always the same air of self-confidence and at times almost light and easy assurance, he dealt briefly with the case brought forward against Mrs. Paradine. She followed on his track like a hound on the trail, always on his heels as he went onward, from Mrs. Paradine's beginnings as a lovely girl in Copenhagen, her almost miraculous escape from the underworld, "untarnished," as Malcolm affirmed, though having been subjected to the greatest danger that can befall an inexperienced girl on the threshold of life, her life of self-support and honest hard work in America, her return to Europe during the war, her meeting in a hospital in France and eventual marriage with the wounded and blinded man, the war hero whom she was now accused of having basely destroyed after his escape from destruction in battle.

She followed him up into the north to the romantic home facing the Cumberland Mountains, where this woman, still young and full of fascination, self-dedicated to what he called "a beautiful and touching task," gave herself up to making life possible for the blind man, ministering to him, consoling him with her affection for the tragedy that had come upon him. All this he dealt with rapidly and concisely, giving a high light, a dramatic touch here and there, but wasting no words. All was done swiftly.

He then proceeded to touch upon the two attacks of illness which Col. Paradine had in the north and which the doctors called in diagnosed as caused by severe dyspepsia, and pointed out that it was Mrs. Paradine who, after these attacks, persuaded her husband to leave Hindley and to visit London partly, if not mainly, with the object of being examined by a London specialist. Was this a probable move on the part of a woman who had already made up her mind to get rid of her husband, and who, according to the suggestion of the crown not bolstered up by any evidence whatever, had already made two beginnings of attempts on his life by the administration of arsenic? Arsenic was certainly found in the body of Col. Paradine after his death. That was undoubted. But there was no evidence as to whether he administered it to himself—at these words there was a definite sensation in court—or as to whether it was administered to him feloniously by some one in the household at Hindley, who either wished to get rid of him for reasons of their own undiscovered, or who, possibly in a passion of pity for the misery of his life in the dark, was ready to help him to do what he was unable to do without help.

At this point there was a movement in court and subdued murmurs were heard.

"Silence in court!" cried the usher.

"There must be absolute silence in court while counsel is speaking," said Lord Horfield, raising a hand and fixing his eyes on the crowd. "I shall allow no demonstration."

Continuing now in an easy and conversational voice, Keane pointed out that there was no evidence of Mrs. Paradine or any one else in the Hindley household having made purchases of arsenic. No chemist had been called to prove that. "The arsenic mystery," in fact remained impenetrable, and Keane would advise the jury to dismiss it from their minds and to concentrate their attention upon what occurred later in London.

Col. Paradine died from absorbing into his system sufficient antimony to bring about the cessation of life. The question for the jury to decide was who administered that antimony, who placed it within the colonel's reach. As to that, without accusing anybody, it was obvious that, as well as Mrs. Paradine, two other persons might have tampered with the wine. Lakin, the butler, poured it out and conveyed it to the colonel's bedroom. His evidence in the matter had been heard and the jury could form their own opinion upon it. Then there was William Marsh, Col. Paradine's body servant. From the evidence, it was obvious that for a time, long or short, Marsh was lingering on the first landing of the house, within sight of his master's bedroom, the door of which was open, Mrs. Paradine during that time being shut in her bedroom opposite and Col. Paradine locked in the lavatory. He passed away from that to the extraordinary scene which had preceded the murder, the scene in Col. Paradine's study between him and his wife, and subsequently between him, his wife and William Marsh. Marsh's evidence as to what had taken place on that occasion was, he suggested, false from beginning to end. In the box Mrs. Paradine would give them her version of what really took place. And they could compare the two versions and decide for themselves which carried conviction and which was obviously invented.

After briefly describing Col. Paradine's death and what followed upon it he closed with an unexpected allusion to what he called "a very peculiar incident," which had been brought up in the evidence of the crown, the incident of Mrs. Paradine's playing of "The Blue Danube" between the time when it was alleged that she had introduced poison into her husband's wine and the moment when it might be supposed that he had probably drunk it. Could the jury, could any one, in their senses, be brought to believe that a woman waiting in agonizing suspense to know whether her attempt to murder her husband was going to be successful or not pass away the time in playing waltz tunes on the piano?

He concluded by an allusion to the strange lack of motive in the case. All that the crown had been able to do was to scrape up evidence of marital disagreements such as occurred in nine households out of ten. Col. Paradine was unhappy because of his affliction and sometimes vented his unhappiness on his wife. Was that a reason that would drive a woman to murder?

"This is, in my view, a case in which no body of thinking men and women could possibly convict," he ended in an almost casual manner. "I will now put the prisoner in the box, absolutely confident that when you have heard her you will without hesitation agree with me."

Mrs. Paradine looked very tall as she stood to give evidence. All eyes were, of course, fixed upon her. The only indication she gave that she was aware of this was by an increase of the detached reserve which she had manifested ever since the beginning of the trial. There was a sort of white sulkiness in her fair northern face as she faced her counsel. It suggested a desire to repel the gaze of the multitude of eyes fixed upon her. But it did not suggest any fear of them. Her look conveyed rather a silent but definite rebuke of bad manners.

"If you wish you may be seated while giving your evidence," said Lord Horfield in his clear carrying voice when the prisoner stood facing him.

"No, thank you, my lord," said the prisoner.

Every ear in the court was strained to get the first sounds of her voice. What sort of character did they express as they carried this woman in sound to every one there? For the first time Gay felt a sort of physical contact with this woman who had altered her life, this woman who was supposed to have some queer physical resemblance to her. And for a moment, using her imagination violently, she transported herself to the dock. She was there facing Malcolm and he was beginning to ask her questions. His manner was manly, but very kind. Kind but not soft. Gay had the feeling that Malcolm knew he was dealing with a very courageous woman and was treating Mrs. Paradine as one.

"It has been suggested that you left your service with Mr. and Mrs. Powers in New York under a cloud. Is there any truth in this?"

"There was no cloud—no. But I left because Mrs. Powers did not like me in the house."

"Goodness! What a truthful woman!" the women in the court began to think almost universally.

"Why was that?"

"Her husband, a man of noble character, had befriended me. She seemed to resent that after we got to America. Her character was not noble. She could not understand. So I left." Many of those in court had opened their mouths to laugh at the implication. But something in the witness' manner stopped the laugh. There was a sort of stern simplicity in the two concluding statements. The witness was certainly not playing for humor. There was something startling in her simplicity both of manner and of matter, a directness that seemed to be inborn and that was impressive. Many in court were already comparing her and her demeanor with William Marsh and his. Some looked from her to Marsh, who, in a dark navy blue suit with a narrow black tie and white turned down collar, was sitting in the witnesses' seat, leaning back with crossed arms, his eyes bent down, his firm underjaw now and then quivering slightly.

Those two! A strange pair! Interesting people!

"You never saw your husband before he was blind?"

"Never."

"What was your feeling for him?"

"I thought him a great hero and I loved him."

Heavens! What directness and lack of sentimentality, yet how much seemed to be expressed in those simple words!

"You did not dread the idea of spending your life with a blinded man?"

"No. I thought it a great opportunity."

"How so?"

"To serve him as eyes."

"It has been suggested that you had reason to be very unhappy with your husband, that he was often unkind to you. What have you to say as to that?"

"He was sometimes unkind. What man is not?"

At this there was irrepressible but low laughter from the women in court. A curious expression of faint surprise came into Mrs. Paradine's face. She looked toward the judge. "I only mean, my lord, that it is difficult always to be kind."

"In what way was your husband unkind to you?" said the judge. "Was he ever physically cruel?"

"Never, my lord. But being blind made him often desperately miserable and then he would be unkind to me. But I understood and forgave."

Lord Horfield sent her a piercing look and bent slowly over his writing pad.

Market Meanderings

Peanuts, With High Calorie Content, May Be Served in Many Delicious Forms, Meanderer Finds; Oriental Coffee Offer Brings Many Replies

THE man who was frying fresh peanuts in piping-hot butter (really butter—the Meanderer saw the package from which the butter was taken) is authority, together with Government food statisticians and dietitians who write for current magazines, on the subject of the food value of peanuts as related to other foods.

Sirloin steak, with its 60 calories per ounce of food, and eggs offering 39 calories to the ounce of food and white bread, with its lordly 75 calories to every ounce, must take back seats and let peanuts lead them and many other foods, for in each ounce of peanuts there are 100 calories to the food ounce! So spoke the peanut man, at any rate, with scientist's figures at his fingertips to prove his statements.

From a purely personal enjoyment derived from munching the freshly salted peanuts, the Meanderer's interest expanded to the point of wanting to talk about peanuts to Washington housewives. Realizing that she had consumed enough peanuts to make it immaterial whether she had any dinner or not, according to the above caloric value information, the Meanderer further questioned the nut dealer. "How can the meal planner make the the best use of peanuts, then?" was the natural query following the declaration of the caloric values. He showed the Meanderer a pile of little peanut cook books called "Mr. Peanut in the Kitchen," wherein peanuts were suggested for soup, salads, breads, desserts, candies and even main dishes. "Peanut butter chops" and "peanut butter loaf" were two of the recipes most interesting to the Meanderer. The chops are made of rye bread, milk, eggs and peanut butter, while the loaf combines peanut butter with rice and carrots and tomatoes.

Copies of "Mr. Peanut in the Kitchen" are well worth the trip to the shop on Fifteenth street, around the corner from Pennsylvania avenue. They are free for the asking whether a purchase is made or not. Probably, though, a 2-pound bag of hot, freshly roasted peanuts for 25 cents, or a pound of broken cashews for 29 cents, will be more than the visitor can resist.

As to peanut butter, the manager of a large peanut butter-making factory down near the Capitol, where peanut products are put on the market at the rate of about 3,000,000 pounds a year, told the Meanderer that the best grade of peanut butter should not retail for more than 17 cents a pound, and that good grades sell for 10 cents a pound. This price represents a recent decrease of nearly 50 per cent in peanut butter prices. "Never buy peanut butter if the oil has separated from the butter," this factory manager warns. "The separation denotes distinct aging of the product.

In this Capitol street factory, also, there are dozens of recipes available for making dishes containing peanuts and peanut butter. Many of these are prize recipes obtained by the company from expert cooks. The Meanderer can arrange to mail these to those who send a self-addressed stamped envelope to The Market Meanderer, The Washington Post.

Since the traveled, sophisticated Washington man sent his authentic recipe for making Turkish coffee to The Meanderer last Saturday with permission to pass it on, the requests from men for this Oriental beverage recipe have come in rapidly. Women, too, want to know about it, but the Meanderer can not help but marvel at how man-satisfying this black coffee must be. No other item in the Meanderer's year and more of food writing has attracted half as much attention from men as has the mention of Turkish coffee. The recipe offer is a standing one, as plenty of copies are available, as well as the information as to where the coffee and special copper pots for making may be found.

Salted lakerda, from the Black Sea, is one of the Meanderer's findings this week for those who like to try something different. This fish has a flavor much like the Spanish mackerel sold in local food shops. The lakerda is found in an importer's shop on Ninth street. Heavily salted herring in gaudy painted cans from Spain are also on the fish counter in this shop. There, too, it was interesting to know that the best anchovies, some of them stuffed with pimientos, others with capers—the latter recommended as especially delicious—are packed in purest olive oil, and sell in 3 and 4 ounce sizes of glass jars, 30 and 40 cents, respectively. Tins of rolled anchovies of high grade in pure olive oil sell there, too, for two tins for 25 cents.

Fresh bread dough for whole wheat or for white rolls may be bought in a women's farm-to-home market in the Northwest section. The rolls are shaped in pans of a dozen, ready for baking, for 15 cents. Thus home-made rolls are made available even to the housewife who hasn't time to make the bread dough, or who has never been successful as she would like to be in their preparation. Cookery products from this farm-to-home market are carefully prepared by women from farm homes, cooperating closely with women home demonstration agents who are representatives of the Extension Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

Olives, cucumbers, red and green peppers, cauliflower, celery and carrots pickled together in grape vinegar are an inviting offering in a Ninth street importer's shop. Such mixed pickles should give a tang to the most carefully chosen midnight supper menu, or be a valuable item for the shelf where the housewife keeps something for the special occasion.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

IN LINE with the play spirit in exercise which we praised in yesterday's column is the exhilarating feeling offered by winter sports.

Some of us who are fortunate enough to follow the sun South have the same sports in winter as we have in the summer. Others who prefer Northern climes and can sojourn in Canada or Lake Placid will have their share of crunchy snow, skiing and skating.

Where There Is Snow.

Where there is snow, the spirit of play and youth should prevail. Forget the calendar, and the 20 or 30 winters chalked up against you. Forget your dignity, too, if snowball battles seem childish. Indulge in some old-fashioned snow fights, just as you did as a child. It's splendid arm and chest exercise and is grand to whip up the circulation, generally.

Those who are going South to sun and sand can have similar sand battles.

Where there is ice there should be skating. Outdoor skating is, of course, preferred. But if you live in the city and there's no duck pond to freeze over, perhaps there's an artificial skating rink near your neighborhood. Get into your skating shoes and get off. Skate to music. Skate with zest. Feel the rhythmic movement of your legs, the hips, the arms.

Beautiful Legs.

If you can't be persuaded to skate your way to beautiful legs, my next suggestion is walk a few miles every day out in the open, breathing deeply. In addition, you can do some systematic leg exercises and massage. My bulletin, "Beautiful Legs," will be sent you on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope. It includes full information on exercise and massage.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NOSEBLEED.

Miss S. A. K. N. writes: Are frequent nosebleeds harmful? My nose bleeds three to five times a day for a period of two or three weeks. In a month it will start again and, unless it comes in a month, it bleeds at night when I am in bed.

REPLY.

There are nosebleeds and nosebleeds and people and people. Whether nosebleed in a given person is important or not depends on the persons, his age, his blood pressure, and some other points, and on the amount of blood lost. Adolescents' moderate nose-bleeding is harmless. In older persons with high blood pressure it promotes comfort. You appear to be overdoing the thing. How are your adenoids and tonsils? Have you a bleeding point in your nose?

FIND PRIMARY CAUSE.

M. E. K. writes: How can one avoid swallowing air?

REPLY.

The simple answer is that swallowing air is a voluntary act. We can restrain it just as we keep from swallowing food or water or keep from doing other voluntary acts.

But the case is not quite so simple. The habitual air swallower and belcher has some discomfort in his stomach and swallowing air seems to give him some momentary relief. That's the reason for the habit.

AVOIDING BATH ITCH.

R. W. F. writes: My tendecy to bath itch continues. I can prevent it entirely by using no soap and water on my skin. I keep my skin clean by the use of cold creams and oils.

DESTRUCTION OF LICE.

Mrs. G. L. writes: I read an inquiry in your column about cleaning the hair of lice. Several years ago blue ointment was recommended to me. This is an old-fashioned remedy and inexpensive. It can be bought at any drug store.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

555.

"HOW'S BERMUDA?"

WHEN a Bridge player becomes deeply engrossed in the bidding of a Grand Slam, his thoughts are not inclined to stray to the balmy clime of Bermuda or the beauties of any other spot, however delightful he may have found a visit there to be.

Recently, in the Masters' Pair Contest of the American Bridge League, Messrs. Oswald Jacoby and Louis H. Watson were playing as partners and, as usual, were up among the leaders. As a matter of fact, they finished second. One of the hands of the last session of play was the following, Mr. Watson sitting South, and Mr. Jacoby holding the North hand:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A K 6 5 ♡ 7 3 ◇ K 8 ♣ A 10 7 6 5
♠ J 7 4 3 ♡ 8 4 ◇ J 7 4 3 2 ♣ 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q 10 9 ♡ 9 2 ◇ Q 10 5 ♣ K Q J 8 4
	♠ 8 2 ♡ A K Q J 10 6 5 ◇ A 9 6 ♣ 9

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	2♣
3♡(1)	Pass	4♣(2)	Pass
5♡(3)	Pass	6♠(4)	Dbl.
Pass(5)	Pass	Redbl.(6)	Pass
6♡	Pass	7♡(7)	Pass
Pass

1—A very strong bid, as the players were using the Culbertson One Over One, and the first response had been a bid of a suit over a bid of a suit. This second bid could scarcely have been dropped.

2—Equally a strong bid; an Overcall in an adversely bid suit, disclosing control of the first round.

3—Assuring North of the solidity of the heart suit, but refusing to use the new no-trump convention to show the possession of two Aces.

4—Mr. Jacoby passes the buck.

6—At this point, Mr. Harold Richards, one of the expert players of the country, who had not seen Mr. Watson or Mr. Jacoby since they had returned from a trip to Bermuda, approached the table and casually asked:

"How's Bermuda?"

7—Perhaps Mr. Jacoby remembered the successful use of the notrump convention in the match with the Bermuda team. In any event, he bid a Grand Slam, which was made without a finesse, the only necessity being the ruffing of one diamond.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ K J 10 2 ♡ A K 9 8 ◇ K Q 9 3 ♣ 8
♠ Q 9 6 5 3 ♡ 7 6 2 ◇ 8 7 5 ♣ A 3	N W E S	♠ 7 ♡ 10 4 3 ◇ 2 ♣ K J 10 9 7 6 5 2
	♠ A 8 4 ♡ Q J 5 ◇ A J 10 6 4 ♣ Q 4

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

I FEEL you again, as I told you this time last year—it is not a question of the mode at all! Whether you sun-tan or not is a matter for your very own taste, my deah.

Palm Beach seems to be doing its stuff as ever, repressions, depressions and hurricanes notwithstanding. Likewise Hollywood and Panama notwithstanding—because they are being more and more discovered—can a thing be more discovered than it is, by the way?

And letters are coming in asking the style value of sun tan. When there isn't any, daggon it.

Only one thing—for heaven's sake, if you are going to do it, do it well! Use some of the oils and pomades on the market, expensive though they be, which aid and heighten your sun tan, and make it chocolate-creamy looking and not just dried out. If, on the other hand, you argue for a white and pink complexion, use the skin protectors and stick to your guns—or rather, cold cream jars and parasols!

Sun tan is not only a matter of individual taste, based upon personal coloring, but a matter, also, of convenience. If, for example, you are one of the fortunates who have nothing more to do than tack about in a "yacht" or two, for a month or two during this Palm Beach season, and then for several more summer months—well, I should say to get your sun tan and be done with it—and plan your wardrobe accordingly. If you are only a few weeks in the midwinter-tropical sun, on the other hand, and your tan is doomed to an inevitable washout—then don't.

And if you have a naturally lovely and white skin don't. If you have non-color hair and eyes don't. It takes either black or red or golden hair to support a sun tan effectively.

Either course is fraught with danger and inconvenience—but what price beauty, my deah? Tan requires furtive slippings off of bathing suits below, strap-and-decollete demarcations. Pink and white means tireless war against freckles and sunburn, even veils and gloves and things. As to relative comfort, either course is as uncomfortable as the other. So what have you, and why, oh, why, erak me?

Neither one is any more or less stylish than the other, sez she, suddenly remembering what was asked!

• • • •

You'd be light-headed yourself if you just had made play sandals and bedroom slippers and beach slippers for all the family, all the neighbors' kids and several around the block—out of old automobile tires and inner tubes that you just knew you couldn't throw away. That's what I've done, and even though a couple of millyun Chinamen who are doing a thriving business along these lines—with old tires imported from the U. S. A.—may be out of luck, the kids around my block aren't. Of course, I couldn't think of doing anything so screamingly successful and economical without telling my deah publik about it—so a leaflet that is yours for a stamped, self-addressed envelope tells you exactly how to make footwear for the kids—from old automobile tires. Good looking, wearoutless, comfortable and even artistic. Am I smart or am I smart? Maybe the Chinamen were! But, anyhow, send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet and find out for yourself.

Au revoir.

What Today Means

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:20 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 4:50 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 9:50 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.

Influences operating on this January 10 are such as may bring about many changes—changes both at the office and in the home. Do not be surprised or alarmed if you find yourself making an "about face" on some matter of policy that you have been following for some time. It will probably result in a turn for the good. At home, too, you may encounter a new order of things, visible in many little things.

The child born on this January 10 will make many friends on his journey through life; childhood friends will remain with him as friends all through life. The child will have a sympathetic nature. He will be very affectionate though not unduly demonstrative. The child is most susceptible to flattery. Guard him against those he will accept too readily as friends.

If January 10 is your birthday, you like to feel you are of service, either to those about you as friends or relations, or to the organization for which you are working. You like to help others, to do little things for them to make them happy. Yours is a very unselfish nature; you are constantly giving either of your time or money. You are a tireless worker and an inspiration to your fellow workers who trust you implicitly and strive to emulate many of your ways.

Born on January 10, you are not easily discouraged, even in the face of great adversity. To "carry on at all cost" seems to be your motto. You do not seek money as an end to any endeavor; your satisfaction lies in having done something and in having accomplished it well.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

FASHIONED in the mountain sides of the Philippines by workers lost even in legend by their own descendants, the rice terraces of the islands stand as monuments to the hard work and the perseverance of farmers of 2,000 to 3,000 years ago.

The mountain-side rice farms are a series of narrow, level ledges, where the steep incline of mountains has been converted into narrow strips of farm lands, each separated from the next higher strip by walls. The primitive people who built these terraces worked only with wooden implements.

In some parts of the mountain country the incline is so steep that the highest terrace is a mile above the lowest—although the whole series occupies a lateral distance of less than the height. A wall, 50 feet high in some places, incloses a strip of tillable land but 6 feet wide.

Strange as it seems, the people who now work the vast mountain farms today have forgotten their industrious ancestors who built the terraces for them. They explain that there was no place to grow rice "until the gods made the steps."

The terraces are a far greater work than any Roman structure and, although they were made at least 2,000 years ago, they still serve their purpose of making rough mountain lands productive. If the narrow strips of land were laid end to end they would reach half-way around the world.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A PRESIDENT COMES HOME.

WHERE granite peaks a vigil keep
Protective of their kind,
And pine trees cast a shadow deep
Amid the ties that bind,
He sleeps within those hills he knew—
The land of boyhood days,
Where rugged, homespun folks and true
Knew not triumphant ways.

Where old Ascutney tops the heights
And snowclad mountains stand,
Where oft the soaring eagle lights,
And God reveals his hand,
There's now a grave that's freshly done
And marked by virgin loam—
A red-haired, freckled farmer's son
Who scaled the peaks is Home!

His shaft the silent peaks so tall,
His tomb the granite hills,
His requiem the bobwhite's call,
His hymn from mountain rills;
His invocation is the whirr
Of partridge in the brush—
His benediction is the stir
Of lowing herd and thrush.

He hears once more the sound he knew
In templed, silent glen,
And tramps in spirit through the blue
Of country dales again;
He rides the bobsled as a boy
Into the maple lot,
And moves with all the old-time joy
To each old fishing spot.

His spirit travels brook and stream
And roams the rock-strewn fields;
He knows again as in a dream
The fun that boyhood yields.
He thrills to sapping time once more
And hears his mother call;
Again he tends the country store
And knows no care at all.

No strains of state now burden him,
No furrows mark his brow;
The days of power now are dim—
No trials his shoulders bow;
His father walks with him anew
As Plymouth Notch they roam,
His son walks on beside him, too—
Cal Coolidge has come home!

Man Suffers Arm Hurt In Collision of Autos

Conway Brinkley Ball, of 3607 Warder street northwest, suffered a severe injury to his left arm last night when his car was in a collision with the car of James Alton Bruen, of 4715 Fifth street northwest, at Seventh and Decatur streets northwest.

He was treated by a private physician.

Federal Cut Proposal Is Called Demoralizing

The further reduction of Government salaries for additional economies were called "demoralizing" by Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, at a meeting yesterday of its executive council.

The council session will last until tomorrow and is being attended by all ranking officers of the federation from all parts of the country. The council also is drawing up a declaration of policy, to be used in fighting adverse legislation.

Two Schoolboys Reported Missing

Police Are on Lookout for Joseph Fers and David Redig.

Two 13-year-old boys were reported missing yesterday by their parents, who asked police to be on the lookout for them. Both boys failed to return from school yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Anna Fers, of 2713 Ontario road northwest, reported to Tenth Precinct police that her son, Joseph, failed to return from his classes at Petworth School. The boy left without money or extra clothing, she said.

David Redig, of 814 Thayer street, Silver Spring, Md., a student at Brightwood School, failed to return to his home last night, his parents informed the Sixth Precinct. A lookout was sent for both boys.

3 Slayers of Cabman Win Stay of Execution

Because their appeal is still pending in District Court of Appeals, Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in District Supreme Court yesterday postponed the date set for the execution of Leonard A. Layton, William G. Robinson and Charles E. Washington, all colored.

The date, originally set for January 20, was changed to March 16 at the request of Attorney E. Russell Kelly. The three were convicted of the murder of Mannie Solomon, taxi cab driver in an attemped holdup on July 30, 1931, in southeast Washington.

Electrocution Appeal Is Lost by Wife-Slayer

The conviction of Benjamin Brown, colored, on a charge of slaying his wife, Alice Brown, was upheld in District Court of Appeals yesterday. Brown is now under sentence of electrocution on February 15.

Attorneys for Brown had challenged his conviction because on the jury list sent them before the trial the name of one junior, who had been excused from duty by the court, was listed. This, they contended, did not comply with the law which said that a full list of 26 available criminal court jurors should be served upon them. The Appelate Court held the inclusion of the name of the excused juror was not a material factor in that it in nowise prejudiced the defendant's case.

Horse Trainer Is Killed By Train; Inquest Today

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, acting coroner, today will conduct an inquest over the body of William Beard, 61-year-old colored racehorse trainer, who was killed yesterday when struck by a Washington Railway & Electric car. Beard had been connected with many large racing stables and at one time was assistant stable foreman for Edward B. McLean. He had been training at Benning for Nick Huff.

DISTRICT BEER BILL, WITH CLEAR SAILING, HITS PATMAN SNAG

Texan Wants It Turned Over to Committee Headed by Dry Lame Duck.

The District beer-for-revenue bill, which seemed destined for smooth sailing after a stormy launching at the last session of the House District committee, yesterday encountered another squall in the person of Representative Wright Patman, dry Texas Democrat.

Following the last committee session, everyone thought the local beer measure was safely ensconced in the wringing wet judiciary subcommittee, headed by Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, former bartender.

Move Is Surprise.

Chairman Palmisano thought so himself. He had ordered hearings beginning tomorrow, when everyone who had any views on the subject would be given a chance to talk before his subcommittee.

But he reckoned without Representative Patman, who wants the measure referred to the fiscal affairs subcommittee, headed by Representative Ralph Gilbert, dry Kentucky Democrat.

As an upshot of Representative Patman's protest, the beer bill again will be called up before the House District committee at the next meeting of the group, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Norton Consents.

Representative Patman, in getting Chairman Mary Norton to consent to this arrangement, pointed out he had moved at the last meeting to have the measure recommitted to the fiscal affairs subcommittee, but that no vote was taken on his motion, due to absence of a quorum. He wants to offer his motion again tomorrow when a quorum is present. It is his contention that as the bill provides a $2.50 a barrel local tax on beer, Representative Gilbert's subcommittee should first pass on it.

Representative Gilbert was not reelected, due to Kentucky's redistricting, so the Democratic wet platform has no claims on him. Although he voted for Speaker Garner's submission resolution, he is known not to have changed his dry inclinations, and would have voted against the Collier national beer bill had he been present.

Man and Wife File Suit For $15,000 After Fall

Damages of $15,000 are sought by Mrs. Lily Hutt and her husband, Harry Hutt, of 1230 Seventh street northwest, for injuries Mrs. Hutt suffered last September when she slipped and fell on the floor of the fish market of Raymond T. Faunce, 1274 Fifth street northeast.

Through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, the suits charge that Mrs. Hutt, a customer in the store, was badly hurt in the fall. She asks for $10,000 and the husband wants $5,000 for the loss of her services and for medical expenses.

Suspected Holdup Trio Ordered Held for Jury

Arrested Wednesday night shortly after they are alleged to have held up Morris Stirman, proprietor of a Connecticut avenue delicatessen, three men yesterday were held for the grand jury after they had been given preliminary hearings in Police Court. Bond for each was set at $10,000.

The trio, Earl Wilkins, Thomas W. Joiner and Willie W. Pope, were accused of entering Stirman's store, where they ordered sandwiches. While they were being prepared, one of the men drew a gun and covered Stirman while another rifled the cash register of $5, it is said. The third, it was alleged, drove the car and kept a lookout.

Man Shot in Still Raid Succumbs to Injuries

Thomas Pinkney, colored, who was shot last week in a raid on a still near Forestville, Md., died yesterday at Casualty Hospital. An inquest will be held in Marlboro before Magistrate Thomas D. Griffith at 10 a. m. Thursday.

A coroner's jury was impaneled by Sheriff W. C. Hopkins yesterday and viewed the body. Pinkney was shot when county police and constables raided the still, where another man was also found. According to police, Pinkney was fleeing from the still, and had shot at the officers before he was wounded.

NICOLA ENTERTAINS CHILDREN AT HOSPITAL

DISTRICT RELIEF BILL GETS RIGHT-OF-WAY

Senator McNary Promises to Push Action Today on Deficiency Plan.

The first deficiency bill, carrying $625,000 for local unemployment relief, today will be given precedence over all other matters in the Senate, Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican), Oregon, assistant Republican floor leader, announced last night.

The urgent relief measure will be considered during the Senate "morning hour," which actually extends over two hours in the early afternoon—12 to 2 p. m. Senator McNary said he thought it could be disposed of in this time.

It appeared certain that the measure will have to go to conference, although no opposition has arisen over the local relief feature. If passed today, however, there is ample time for a conference and acceptance of a conference report before the last of the week, when relief funds will be entirely exhausted.

As approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee, the deficiencies measure carries a total of $31,761,535, an increase of $340,015 over the amount approved by the House. The local relief feature was unchanged. The largest increases were $150,000 for participation in the Disarmament Conference and $40,000 for the Capitol inaugural celebration.

Auto Hits Boy Skater In Grounds of Capitol

Fifteen-year-old Robert Sugars, of 317 A street southeast, was in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital last night suffering from head injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile in the Capitol grounds, where he was skating.

Thomas M. David, driver of the automobile, removed the boy to the hospital, where he was said to have a possible skull fracture and lacerations of the forehead. David, who lives at 1382 East Capitol street, was not arrested.

Thomas W. Tramwell Missing From School

Washington police were asked last night to look out for Thomas W. Tramwell, 18 years old, son of Walker L. Tramwell, vice president of the American Smelting & Refining Co., New York. Young Tramwell is reported to have left a Lawrenceville preparatory school at Lawrenceville, N. Y., yesterday. It is believed he is attempting to hitch-hike his way to Florida.

The youth is described as being 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing 145 pounds. He was wearing a grey overcoat, blue suit and brown hat.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Another case in which the motorist is not always at fault with regard to accidents involving pedestrians and motorists is that of the right of way at intersections.

The traffic authorities, as well as pedestrians and motorists, are rather lax with regard to this situation.

Article 2 section 2 of the traffic manual says:

"Pedestrians shall have the right of way at all crosswalks except those controlled by traffic officers and the traffic devices and it shall be UNLAWFUL for any person to cross the roadway through moving traffic on any street upon which traffic is controlled by electric signal lights."

Traffic statistics so far this year as compared with the same time last year show a surprising decrease. They are:

	1932	1933
Deaths	3	1
Injuries	121	53
Accidents	205	88

"Be Careful!"

RENT CUTS WITHOUT COMMISSION GOAL

Keech and Roberts Believe Proposed Body Would Be Unconstitutional.

Plans for reducing the level of rents in the District without recourse to a "rent commission" were discussed yesterday by the Senate District rent investigating subcommittee, which postponed until Monday its report to the Senate.

Peoples Counsel Richmond B. Keech and Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts advised the subcommittee in their opinion a rent commission at this time would be "unconstitutional." They pointed out that the last commission was a war emergency measure.

Following an executive session of the subcommittee, Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, said the group considered using the local license law to require filing of rent data, and to "bring down the level of rents by pressure of public opinion."

Assistant Corporation Counsel Roberts will file a report with the committee containing his recommendations. The report of Oscar H. Brinkman, committee investigator, recommended that a special housing division of the Public Utilities Commission operate to regulate rents.

Under a resolution extending the time for completion of the rent investigation, the subcommittee was to have reported to the Senate by today. It was informally decided yesterday not to ask for another extension—a mere technicality. The subcommittee's report probably will be agreed to and made to the Senate at a meeting next Monday.

Ask Gym

House Members Urge Use of McKinley Facilities for Columbus Fights.

The Board of Education was urged yesterday by Representative Clarence J. McLeod, of the House District committee, to grant the use of McKinley High School gymnasium to Columbus University so that it may stage intercollegiate boxing bouts.

The same request was made by Representative Fred A. Hartley, jr., of New Jersey, who spoke in favor of the issuance of the desired permission by the Board of Education, when it hears the report of its committee on buildings and grounds, which is now studying the application.

"I can conceive of no valid reason," Representative McLeod said, "for refusal to permit such use of the gymnasium * * * and therefore urge most strongly that the university's request * * * be granted at your next meeting on January 11."

The committee rejected the proposal at the last meeting of the board, but later the board directed the request be reconsidered. Dean John R. Fitzpatrick, of Columbus University, has asked that he be permitted to appear before the board tomorrow to present arguments on the school's application.

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR STRAUS, SUICIDE

Worry Over Health Blamed for Death of Jewelry Firm President.

Funeral services for Sydney William Straus, 52, president of R. Harris & Co., jewelers, who ended his life early yesterday, will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at the residence, 2305 California street northwest. Burial will be in Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

Mr. Straus' death was attributed to ill health. He had worried over his physical condition and had suffered from insomnia, members of the family said.

The body of the jeweler was found by his wife, Mrs. Alma Prince Straus, when she went to his bedroom to wake him about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Nearby was an empty box and a note which read, "Don't kiss or touch—deadly poison."

The box had contained a chemical used in cleaning precious stones, according to Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, who signed the certificate of sucide. Dr. MacDonald fixed the time of death at about 7 a. m.

When Mr. Straus was first found, Dr. Edwin B. Behrend was called. The physician, after finding that the jeweler was dead, summoned the acting coroner.

Mr. Straus had been a resident of Washington for 27 years and a member of the Harris Co. for 25 years. He became president of the company 18 years ago, after the death of his father-in-law, A. D. Prince. He was born in Baltimore on December 29, 1880, the son of William and Sarah Eiseman Straus.

The survivors, besides the widow, are four daughters, Victoria, Sylvia, Alice and Fleur. Mr. Straus was a member of the Rotary, Congressional Country and Woodmont Clubs. He attended the Eighth Street Temple.

Appeals Court Affirms Disbarment of Lawyer

The District Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the disbarment from the practice of law in the District of Sylvester L. McLaurin, colored, who was disbarred in June, 1931.

The Appellate Court said that "examination of the record discloses ample evidence to support the finding of the court below," the disbarment proceedings having taken place in District Supreme Court.

Taxi Dance Hearings Postponed.

The District Commissioners yesterday notified a half dozen organizations which had been granted a hearing for this morning on their campaign to ban taxi dance halls from Washington that the hearing would be indefinitely postponed on account of the Congressional hearings on the District government's appropriation requests.

CITIZEN COMMITTEE INDORSES PROPOSAL IN GAS MERGER BILL

The executive committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations yesterday voted to indorse the efforts of Senator Robert Howell and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech to attach a provision to the pending gas merger bill that "going concern" value is to be eliminated from future valuations of the merged company.

The action was taken upon recommendation of the public utilities committee at a special session of both committees in the board room of the District Building, and after the members had listened to talks by Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission; William A. Roberts, its special counsel, and Mr. Keech.

Position Is Explained.

Gen. Patrick explained the commission's position on the measure providing for a merger of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co. at length. He said the commission would be delighted if "going-concern" value could be eliminated by an amendment, but expressed certainty that the gas companies would not merge under any such condition because they would lose considerably more than they might gain in an economy of operating expenses.

Reed's Proposed Amendment.

Mr. Keech read a proposed contractual agreement which he predicted would be constitutional despite the Supreme Court's allowance of "going-concern" value in public utility valuation, and expressed the belief that the gas companies are eager enough to effect a merger so as to issue additional stock to be willing to relinquish "going-concern" value.

Reports of the federation's action will be made to the Senate and House District Committee today.

Apartment Robbers Get Box of Jewelry

A quantity of jewelry, the value of which could not be determined last night, was stolen from the apartment of Mrs. Katherine Frederick at 1737 New Hampshire avenue northwest, yesterday.

Mrs. Frederick told police the burglars jimmied the front door. The jewelry, in a leather box, was in a dresser drawer in her bedroom.

Retail Milk Quiz Is Urged by Group

Takoma Park Association Is Told Prices Vary in Other Cities.

Informed by a committee assigned to investigate prices of milk that local retail prices exceeded that of other large cities, members of the Takoma Park Citizens Association adopted a resolution last night urging an investigation of the retail marketing of milk in the District.

Meeting at the Takoma Park Library, the organization was presented with figures of milk prices in nearby large cities, but members of the group stated that the costs and conditions of milk distribution in this city might account for the difference in prices.

It was decided that the resolution be presented to the Federation of Citizens Associations at their next meeting, and suggest that appropriate action be taken. Reed F. Martin was elected to the membership of the organization. H. R. Smalley, president of the group, presided.

Purse-Snatcher Flees In Cruising Automobile

Mrs. Arthur Burwell, 3419 Mount Pleasant street northwest, reported that her purse, containing $100 in travelers' checks and $2 in cash, was snatched from her arm last night as she was walking near her home.

She told police a young man, well dressed and about 25 years old, jumped from a cruising automobile, grabbed her purse, jumped back into the car, and fled before she could get the license number.

Gasoline Manager Held Up.

Arthur Asher, night manager of a gasoline service station at 488 Maryland avenue southwest was held up and robbed of $7 by a lone robber early yesterday.

Knocked down by two colored boys who were skating in the street, Mrs. M. C. Beckwith, 83, 2523 Thirteenth street northwest, was found seriously injured late yesterday at Eleventh and Fairmont streets northwest. The boys fled, leaving the woman lying in the street.

KENILWORTH POLICE PROTECTION SCORED

Citizens Association to Ask Commissioners for Larger Force.

A charge of inadequate police protection throughout Kenilworth, D. C., was made last night by the Kenilworth Citizens Association at a meeting in the Kenilworth School.

The organization voiced the intention of petitioning the District Commissioners in an effort to obtain a larger police force for protection of the community.

Motorists from nearby Maryland were scored for fast driving while passing through Kenilworth. Machines, traveling at high rates of speed, are endangering the lives of citizens, the organization pointed out. Signs will be asked calling attention to the 22-mile-an-hour limit.

New officers were elected for the ensuing year. John F. Dritters, for seven years president of the body, was succeeded by Fletcher B. Shipley, when the former declined to run.

Other officers are Charles M. Maize, vice president; Willaid A. Dritters, recording secretary; Paul Dallman, financial secretary, and George J. Daur, treasurer. Mr. Dritters, the former president, and Samuel K. Murphy were appointed delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Speaker Says America Is Rapidly Becoming Child-Conscious.

America is rapidly becoming child conscious, Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent, in charge of elementary schools of the District, declared last night on "Modern Trends in Elementary Education" at a Stoddard School meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Mr. Haycock pointed out that child welfare work and elementary education has made rapid advancement since its inauguration at a Mothers' Congress here 25 years ago. "Prior to that time," he said, "little attention was given to the welfare of the child and child training."

He cited the child labor laws, compulsory school attendance laws, special schools for the blind, crippled, tubercular and deaf and dumb children, as modern accomplishments.

RESTORATION OF U.S. PAY SCALE URGED AS STEP TO PROSPERITY

Congress Should Have Faith and Return Old Status, Shaw Tells Lodge.

That it is for Congress to lead the way back to economic improvement was the declaration of President John Arthur Shaw, of the American Federation of Government Employes, last night at a meeting of Treasury Department Lodge, No. 24, at Hamilton Hotel.

"I am convinced there will be no upward trend in the economic situation in this country," said Mr. Shaw, "until such time as Congress has faith enough in the future of the United States to say to the world: 'We have regained our courage. We have started fighting our way back to normalcy.' The only way Congress can make this statement and expect to have it believed is not only by refusing to reduce salaries further, but also by restoring Federal salaries to their former status. When the Government approved this wage-cutting policy by its so-called economy act, the number of unemployed reached a new high figure.

Raps Cut Continuance.

"Just as surely as this cut is continued for another year and the people are officially advised by Congress there is no hope for recovery until July, 1934, just so surely will the hope for a new deal for the worker die aborning."

Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer National Association of Postoffice Clerks, pointed out that France had not balanced her budget for five years and that the United States got along without a budget for more than 140 years, to prove his contention that budget balancing by salary cutting is unwise and unnecessary in times of depression.

Other speakers were E. Claude Babcock, Civil Service Commission Lodge; R. A. Dixon, president Washington Central Labor Union; Charles F. Wahl, Panama Canal Zone Central Labor Union; Raymond Roche, Pressmen's Union, and David R. Glass, first vice president of the A. F. G. E. George J. Simmons presided.
